End Cash Relief, Balance Budget, Says Buchanan

Appropriations Official Drafts Plan to Stop 'Every Nickel.'

Roosevelt Outlays Will Face Paring

Jobs Gaining, States Can Care for Indigent, Texan Holds.

By Robert C. Albright.

A program for bringing the towering Federal budget within $800,000,000 of balance in the next fiscal year by eliminating "every nickel" for direct relief, and pruning at every possible point, yesterday was laid down by Chairman James P. Buchanan of the House Appropriations Committee.

Despite this front, Buchanan ventured a forecast that the President may ask as much as $1,000,000,000 in emergency appropriations from Congress this session.

The slight, firm-lipped Texan, who talked his plans over with the President before he returned to Washington yesterday to throw the House budget machinery into gear, indicated his dole-slashing views might not be entirely shared by the Administration.

"When we appropriated $4,880,000,000 in one lump last season, it was to cover relief needs for a two-year period, and to take the Government out of this dole business," Buchanan said.

Up to States, Charities.

"If it serves that purpose, the cost will be cheap. My personal opinion is that we should not appropriate another cent for direct relief. We have cut down the unemployment burden to a point where it can be carried by the State and private charity organizations. They carried the load before the depression, and they can do it again."

The House Appropriations chief said he hoped to carve ordinary budget funds in the next fiscal year down to $5,000,000,000 "at the outside" and to balance the budget completely in 1937.

The Appropriations chairman indicated President Roosevelt may send his requests for funds to the Capital in two parts—first, an ordinary budget of around $5,000,000,000 and later an additional request for emergency relief funds totaling a possible $1,000,000,000.

"I will try to make them less," Buchanan said.

He was questioned on reports that the President would seek $2,000,000,000 for relief. Newspapermen wanted to know if the President and he were in conflict on that point.

"Against Another Nickel."

"I am against another nickel," Buchanan replied. "I don't say we are in conflict, but if we are, there is where it is."

Later the Texan said that in his opinion the President could not tell yet what relief needs might be. He pointed out that private industry is re-employing workers at an increasing rate, and criticized Works Progress Administrator Harry L. Hopkins for shifting deadlines for putting 3,500,000 persons to work under WPA.

Cocking a foot on his desk and chewing savagely at the cigar which is ever in his mouth, Buchanan speculated on whether possible Supreme Court invalidation of the AAA or cassh payment of the soldiers' bonus might put a crimp in his economy plans.

He said he would not oppose appropriation up to $500,000,000 for completion of PWA or WPA works projects of permanent value already under way.

As for the $4,880,000,000 works relief appropriation under which some of these projects were started, he said that when he consented to that, "it was with the understanding that the money was to be spent on projects valuable to the Nation and not for boondoggling." It was his second slap at Hopkins.

Buchanan estimated that some $300,000,000 more may be required to continue CCC camps in operation,

Signals of Ellsworth Received By Warship

Wellington, N. Z. (Thursday), Nov. 28 (AP).—The warship Dunedin reported today it had heard signals from the plane of Lincoln Ellsworth, missing Antarctic flier.

The signals were heard at 12:20 a. m. Thursday, New Zealand time (7:50 a. m., Wednesday, Eastern standard time).

The signals were described as "weakest" and "unreadable," but the call signal "KHNIR" was heard several times. The airplane appeared to be giving position figures.

Talmadge Calls Upon Roosevelt To Defend AAA

Governor Also Charges TVA Bars Churches From Morris, Tenn.

By the Associated Press.

Atlanta, Nov. 27.—Gov. Talmadge today challenged President Roosevelt to defend the AAA, the Bankhead act, lack of denominational churches at Norris, Tenn., and the relief pay roll of Rexford Tugwell.

The Georgia Governor, critic of Administration's policies, in an article appearing in the current issue of his paper, The Statesman, asked the President to answer three "accusations" when he speaks in Atlanta Friday.

Mr. Roosevelt is to be honored at a "homecoming" celebration here the day after Thanksgiving. Officials expect 100,000 people to hear the President's address, scheduled between 1:30 and 2 p. m. (Central standard time).

President Makes Reply.

Talmadge made his article available to the press about the time he received a reply from Warm Springs, where Mr. Roosevelt is spending the holidays, to his welcome to the President.

The letter said:

"Thank you for your note. I am glad to be back in Georgia and I am looking forward, as always, to a very restful and pleasant visit."

Talmadge listed his "accusations" in his paper as follows:

1. That the Tennessee Valley Authority has copied communism by refusing to permit denominational churches to be built at Norris, Tenn.

2. That Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Tugwell has a staff of 12,089, drawing $1,750,000 monthly, to create 5,012 relief jobs paying $300,000 per month.

Calls Acts Unfair.

3. That the AAA and the Bankhead act are unconstitutional and unfair to the farmers of the Nation.

"The President will be here in Atlanta on Friday, November 29, to speak," the article read. "I wish that he would answer the above accusations.

"I also wish that he could see the mail that I receive every day and give an answer to the thousands of men, women and children, not only in Georgia, but throughout this country, who are being pressed almost to starvation by this cruel policy of scarcity that the Administration has forced on our country."

The Governor has been assigned no part on the official program at the speaking, but is expected to attend and sit with Governors from other States and statehouse officials.

The place assigned for this group is on a stage adjoining the special rostrum to be occupied by the President and his official party with the Georgia congressional delegation, sponsors of the "home-coming."

Bonus Stand Of Roosevelt Is Unchanged

Morgenthau Dims Hope of Passage After Seeing Chief.

Legion, V. F. W. Enlist Aid of Congress; See 'Sure' Victory.

Forecasts of veterans' leaders that approval of the soldiers' cash bonus this season is "assured" clashed yesterday with a statement by Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, jr., that "so far as he knew" the Administration's position is unchanged.

The expression by Morgenthau, just back from a conference with the President, was echoed on Capitol Hill by Chairman James P. Buchanan, of the House Appropriations Committee, also just back from Warm Springs, Ga., where the President is spending a Thanksgiving holiday.

Buchanan said any bill for payment of the bonus would have to provide the money, or "have to be vetoed." He said he favored giving the soldiers Government bonds with an interest rate enabling them to cash them at face value at the banks.

Morgenthau Reticent.

Morgenthau declined to speculate on the possibility of another Presidential veto.

"The bonus is not up at this time and I do not care to discuss it further," he said.

Meanwhile, representatives of the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars, now nearer an agreement on the bonus than they have ever been previously, said they had every reason to believe that the bonus not only would pass both houses this session, but would override a veto if one were forthcoming.

Commander in Chief James E. Van Zandt, of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, appointed a national legislative committee of 18 members, headed by Les Myers, of Green Bay, Wis., to work for the bonus and other veterans' measures. It included such members as Gov. Harold G. Hoffman of New Jersey, Gov. David Scholtz of Florida, Lieut. Gov. Lyed S. Alward of Nevada and Judge Arthur H. Day of the Ohio Supreme Court.

Heads V. F. W. Program.

"Immediate cash payment of the so-called 'bonus' is once more the most important measure on our legislative program to be presented to Congress at the January session," Van Zandt said.

"We have every reason to believe, however, that this will be the last time we will be forced to appeal to Congress for this simple act of justice to the World War veterans. A so-called 'bonus' bill will be enacted soon after Congress convenes."

Earlier yesterday, Federal relief officials disclosed that more than 500 veterans who had gathered here have been provided with railroad fare back home and promises of work relief.

McAdoo Advises "March."

Whether this was done to discourage bonus marches on the Capital was not stated. Senator William G. McAdoo (Democrat) of California, recently had advised veterans to march to Washington and demand bonus payment.

Relief officials indicated that in addition to the 500 former soldiers already sent home, some 300 more will be sent back to take jobs on work relief projects in the next few days.

Officials said this was in keeping with the WPA policy of breaking up transient relief camps throughout the country. In past years, the Administration has moved similarly to break up marches on the Capitol, signing up veterans in CCC and work camps as fast as they arrive here.

Belief that the bonus will be approved by Congress next session was based partly on assurances by Senate Majority Leader Joseph T. Robinson that the Senate Finance Committee will be called together shortly after Congress meets to consider the bonus.

In addition, the inflationary bonus bill of Representative Wright Patman (Democrat), of Texas, is auto-

Guilty in Bank Plot

BENEDICT M. McNEIL.

Jury Convicts McNeil in Plot To Mulct Bank

Ex-Official, Jailed Pending Sentence, Faces Four Years in Prison.

Benedict M. McNeil, portly former assistant cashier of the ill-fated Park Savings Bank, which went into receivership in 1933 with debts of more than $2,500,000, was found guilty of conspiring to steal $50,000 from the bank and also conspiring to embezzle $50,000 from it, by a jury in the District Supreme Court last night.

Over the strenuous objections of his attorneys, the florid-faced McNeil was ordered sent to the District Jail by Justice F. Dickinson Letts. The committment was ordered while attorneys argued motions for a new trial and prepared an appeal to the United States Court of Appeals. The maximum possible sentence is four years in jail.

McNeil was charged with conspiring with his late father, Alexander McNeil, a real estate operator, and Robert S. Stunz, one-time executive officer and vice president of the bank. McNeil, the elder, died soon after the indictment was returned, and Stunz, to whom bank examiners attributed the theft of more than one-third of the bank's deposits, committed suicide in the basement of his Kalmia street home when permission to reopen the bank was denied in March, 1933.

A story of stock-market speculations and race-horse bets was unfolded by McNeil, who took the stand to deny he was guilty of the charges. He admitted one horse race paid him handsome returns and also that in one sally into the market he netted a return of almost $2,000. Despite his admissions the money for the "plays" came from the bank, he said he kept the profits.

John J. Wilson, assistant United States attorney in charge of the prosecution, demonstrated to the jury the manner in which McNeil and his two alleged co-conspirators juggled accounts in the bank to cover their speculations. Through Eugene Sauer, a special agent of the Department of Justice, he traced nine transactions, some of which were labeled "dummy" accounts and others of which were tagged overdrafts.

McNeil shook hands with several of his character witnesses last night as deputy United States marshals took him by the arm to lead him to the prison van. He had been at

Japan Seizes North China's Rail Centers

3,000 Troops Arrive in Tientsin to Defend New State.

Trains Halted to Block Nanking Military Mobilization.

Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press.

Shanghai, Nov. 27.—Japanese soldiers poured into north China today, apparently prepared to back up demands there for autonomy. Control of key railroad centers was seized in the Peiping area. Troop trains bearing 3,000 Japanese soldiers and war equipment reached Tientsin. At Peiping the garrison has been more than doubled in the last 24 hours.

Col. Tan Takahashi, Japanese military attache in Peiping, said the Fentai railway junction east of there was seized because of rumors that empty trains were being sent south to transport Chinese troops to the north for action against the Japanese.

Traffic Suspended.

Traffic to the south was suspended for several hours and was resumed only when the Chinese agreed to send no trains farther south than Tsinan and Shantung. Public nervousness throughout the northern area was increased.

Gen. Shang Chen, governor of Hopei Province, telegraphed his resignation to Nanking because of of his inability to stop the autonomy movement.

An autonomous regime was established Monday in the demilitarized zone of eastern Hopei Province, but the original program for self-government by the provinces of Hopei, Chahar, Shansi, Shantung and Suiyuan thus far has not been carried through.

In Chinese circles belief was expressed the Japanese troop movements might be aimed at forcing north China officials into acceptance of the autonomy movement and at the same time forestalling any plans Nanking may have to suppress the campaign by force.

Surprise Move.

Chinese reports said Japanese forces appeared suddenly in north China areas where they had never been before and that truckloads of troops were moving toward Paotingfu, headquarters of the army of Gen. Shang, 80 miles south of Peiping.

In a communique issued today, Maj. Gen. Rensuke Isogai, Japanese military attache here, said he had informed Nanking the Japanese army does not approve a Nanking program in the north China crisis.

This plan, Japanese sources said, included the arrest of Yin Ju-Keng,

Robinson Hunted By Indiana Police

Kidnaper Reported in Car; All Roads Guarded.

Fort Wayne, Ind., Nov. 27 (U.P.).—All available Indiana State police were called out tonight to patrol highways in search of Thomas Robinson, jr., wanted for the kidnaping of Mrs. Berry V. Stoll, of Louisville, Ky., after a report he was driving north from Indianapolis.

Lieut. Ray Fisher, of the police barracks at Ligonier, Ind., said Robinson was reported fleeing north on State road 29 in a Chevrolet coach.

State police radio stations broadcast a description of the car, and local police radios advised all officers to be on guard.

New Method Cures Blindness By Transplanting Part of Eye

Science Now Is Able to Repair Damaged Enclosing 'Glass' or Cornea by Moving It From One Person to Another.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Nov. 27.—Brilliant new medical achievements, in which surgeons are glaziers replacing the damaged window panes of the human eye, came to light today in medicine's unending battle against blindness.

The results, as disclosed through the New York Academy of Medicine, are being achieved through the comparatively little-known practice of keratoplasty, the science of transplanting the transparent portion of the eye front to restore vision and perspective.

Recently, it was learned, an experiment of vital biological importance was conducted successfully for the first time.

It was the transplanting of the cornea from the eye of one species of animal to the eye of an animal of another species—as from a kitten to a dog, and vice versa.

The possibilities are regarded of vast significance. In the human field two uncommon successes have also been revealed.

One is the case of Fremont Clark, of Iowa, who some months ago underwent an operation at the hands of Dr. Ramon Castroviejo, an authority on keratoplasty, to restore to one eye vision lost in an industrial accident and threatening him with complete blindness.

Clark, recently discharged from Columbia Medical Center, is able to see large objects a yard away and again go unaided in the world.

The operation—of which there were two—consisted of transplanting in Clark's damaged eye a portion of the cornea of a new-born baby, allowing it to grow in place of the damaged portion cut out.

(The first operation caused a defect in the eye's spherical roundness and a loss of perspective, necessitating a second corrective operation.)

The second successful case reported to the Academy of Medicine was the restoration of vision to a scientist. A laboratory accident destroyed his vision entirely, scarring

By Virginia Lee Warren.
A Staff Correspondent.

Wise, Va., Nov. 27.—Pretty, dark-haired Edith Maxwell is teaching again. But now her pupils are women bootleggers, thieves and hard-faced women sobering up from drunken sprees, all locked in the same big cell with her in the old red-brick jail here.

A year ago 21-year-old Edith was teaching her first term at the one-room Mullins School, on Bold Camp Creek, down the road about 15 miles from Wise. There she had 40 boys and girls, from the first grade to the seventh. She got $85 a month. Most of the money went into fixing up her family's place at Pound. She bought a studio couch, a bookcase, a couple of linoleum rugs and some curtains. Those were happy days.

But that was before Edith and her drunken pappy, 55-year-old Trigg Maxwell, had trouble one Saturday midnight in July; trouble which ended in Trigg Maxwell's

State Federation Plans Trial Study; Chapters Urge Cash Aid.

Virginia's organized women set out yesterday to learn for themselves whether justice had been done in the case of Edith Maxwell, dark-eyed mountain girl cast into a Blue Ridge jail for the midnight murder of her father.

While lawyers prepared arguments for a new trial in an effort to remove the shadow of a 25-year prison sentence from the girl, and while The Washington Post sought to raise money to wage the legal battle, the Virginia Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, 800 women strong, moved to investigate the case.

To the tiny town of Wise, on the western side of the Appalachian barrier, will go a special legislative committee of the federation to study the case on its own ground.

Miss Helen Ramey, dark-haired Washington school principal, who, as a resident of Alexandria, is regent of the federation, revealed the decision last night.

All afternoon she had been in communication with members of the committee—with Mrs. Cornelia

Coal Act Ruled Partly Invalid By Court Here

Price-Fixing Provisions Are Upheld; Wage Section Declared Void.

By the Associated Press.

Justice Jesse C. Adkins, of the District of Columbia Supreme Court, ruled tonight the Guffey act through which Congress seeks to regulate the vast bituminous coal industry is in part constitutional and in part invalid.

Handing down his decision after an extraordinary night session, the judge held that price-fixing as provided in the act is constitutional. He added, however, that the sections regulating wages and hours were void because Congress did not set up definite standards.

The ruling was made in the suit brought by James W. Carter, president of the Carter Coal Co. of West Virginia, who sought permanent injunctions restraining the Government from collecting a 15 per cent "compliance tax" to be levied on the value of coal and to restrain his company from accepting the producers' code provided in the statute. Both these injunctions were denied.

The judge did, however, grant a stay which he said would prevent the Government from collecting more than a 1½ per cent levy from the Carter company.

Justice Adkins opened his opinion by expressing belief the act was "severable" and therefore invalidation of particular provisions would not knock out the entire statute.

The wage and hour section, he said, "is invalid under the Schechter (NRA) case." The justice explained no standard had been fixed for wages and hours whereas the Supreme Court decision which wrecked the NRA "expressly holds" a standard must be set up.

Concerning price-fixing, Adkins said that authority "is within the power delegated to Congress by the commerce clause." (This clause in the Constitution empowers Congress to regulate interstate commerce.)

Rehearsing considerable testimony taken since the trial started October 29 to show the wide extent of the industry, its importance to interstate commerce and evils which Congress seeks to correct, Adkins said these and other factors distinguished the production of coal from other commodities.

Worship, Sport To Feature Day Of Thanks Here

Rainy and Mild Weather Forecast; Holiday Programs Listed.

Washington will keep step with the Nation today in giving thanks.

Families will be brought together, many coming from great distances, for the traditional turkey dinner, symbol of plenty. There will be football games—another Thanksgiving institution—and worshipping in the city's churches.

As Washingtonians made ready to outdo even the Puritans of old with their Thanksgiving Day feast, local produce dealers reported many more turkeys were sold than at any other one time since the depression.

President Roosevelt and four of his cabinet officers were away. The others will spend the day in Washington.

Thanksgiving at Sea.

Vice President and Mrs. Garner and Speaker and Mrs. Byrns, who have been to the Philippines and the Far East, will eat their turkey aboard a Pacific liner.

Secretary and Mrs. Dern are at sea on a battleship; Postmaster General Farley will spend the day with his family in New York; Attorney General Cummings will play golf at Pinehurst, N. C., and Secretary and Mrs. Morgenthau will be at their farm in Dutchess County, N. Y.

Clerks' Holiday.

Government clerks and nearly everyone else will take the day off, missions will dine the hungry and churches will conduct special services.

For those who plan to attend the George Washington-North Dakota game at Central Stadium, or the Catholic University-North Carolina State clash at Griffith Stadium, the Weather Man is discouraging.

The forecast is that today will be rainy, with a mild temperature. Tonight will be colder and tomorrow

President Vargas Directs Loyalists

Air School Insurrection Collapses; Northern Rebels Fleeing.

By the United Press.

Rio de Janeiro, Nov. 27.—The widespread rebellions against the government of President Getulio Vargas appeared tonight to have been crushed following bloody fighting in this city in which from 100 to 250 soldiers were killed.

The government described the insurrections, which started in the northern cities of Pernambuco and Natal, as "an effort to make Brazil into a Communist state."

Its collapse came with bitter fighting on the Praia Vermalha, in the center of Rio de Janeiro this afternoon.

Rebel Toll Heaviest.

Most of those killed, as in the bloody rebellion of the garrison of the Copacabana Fortress, at the entrance of Rio Harbor, in 1922, were youthful members of the regular army.

Government messages said the rebels had fled from Natal, after holding that northern seaport of 100,000 inhabitants for three days. The last fleeing remnants of the insurrectionists were hunted down and arrested or shot in the suburbs of Pernambuco, 150 miles south of Natal.

There was no official estimate of deaths in the north, although advices indicated they were more than 100.

The Urca Valley, immediatly beyond the end of the famed Avenieda Rio Branco, main thoroughfare of the capital, literally was a "valley of death" tonight. A dozen ambulances, filled with dead and wounded, were leaving the battlefield.

A motor truck with sheet-covered corpses rumbled through the tropic darkness.

An unidentified airplane circled the ruins of the smoking Urca barracks, where the rebels had fought for hours, and dropped three bombs.

Commander Carrau, heading a government detachment collecting dead and wounded, was killed. The ambulance beside which he was standing was riddled.

Bayonets in Charge.

Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press.

Rio de Janeiro, Nov. 27.—Brazil's big guns and bayonets wiped out a reckless revolt in the heart of her capital defenses today.

The rebellious Third Infantry, making a desperate stand in its barracks at Praia Vermehla—"Red Beach"—beneath the shadow of famed Sugar Loaf Mountain, surrendered only after loyal artillery had pounded its stronghold to pieces and federal infantrymen had charged the barracks with fixed bayonets.

At least a dozen rebels were slain; two captains and three soldiers of the loyal army were wounded.

Two Revolts Crushed.

Tonight, with two revolts in the federal district smashed in one day and the last of the northern insurgents in flight by land, air and sea, the government apparently had the nation well in hand.

Bombed by planes and shelled by cannon, seditious sergeants and privates were driven this morning from the blazing aviation school in the federal district several miles from Rio.

Five hundred rebels, said reports from the north, fled from Natal aboard the S. S. Santos, of the Lloyd-Brazileiro line, as Federal troops swarmed into that seaport capital of Rio Grande do Norte, held under the red flag since last Saturday.

Others were reported to have commandeered a German airliner. The government telegraphed all northern ports to keep a sharp lookout for the Santos, believing it may try to disembark the rebels at Fortaleza or Parahyba.

In all, 300 participants in the abortive revolt at the aviation school

Gen. Johnson, the Journalist, Barred by Newspaper Guild

Brig. Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, former National Recovery Administrator, sought to become a union member last night and failed.

The membership application of Gen. Johnson, filed with the Washington Newspaper Guild in his present role as a syndicated columnist commenting on political and economic affairs, was twice denied by the guild, meeting in the District Building.

In a report which the guild adopted, Johnson was attacked as "the most notorious strikebreaker in the United States."

The report, written by Miss Marguerite Young, asked whether Johnson could deny that he had attempted to deny the right of collective bargaining to NRA workers, that—as part owner of a New Jersey carpet factory—he had helped smash a union by "intimidation," and that—as Works Progress Administrator for New York City—he had objected to dealing with representatives of organized workers on WPA projects.

Immediately after, Robert M. Buck, former vice president of the American Newspaper Guild, asserted that Johnson had hampered guild representation on the Newspaper Industrial Board, which took up employer-employe relationships under the defunct NRA newspaper code.

The slashing former cavalryman was not present, and his office here had informed the guild that he would not return to Washington until this morning.

Wives Judge 56 Wife-Beaters; All But 3 to Eat Turkey at Home

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Nov. 27.—Today was wife-beaters' judgment day in Judge Robert J. Dunne's court, with the wives judging—but only three husbands got socked.

Fifty-six braved the rulings of their better halves, fully empowered by the court to pass on their pledges of reform, with Thanksgiving dinner at home, or as guests of the county, the alternative sentences.

Only three regretted their trust in the "little woman." While their co-defendants in the family court walked out proudly to strop the butcher knives for the holiday repast, the trio shuffled sullenly to Bridewell cells.

All the cases had been continued by Judge Dunne from September 1 so there'd be plenty of time for the carousers to prove they had quit.

But Mrs. Mary McNulty said her husband, William, not only squandered his last pay check but had beat her. He drew 60 days with Mary's approbation.

A sister, Anna, instead of wife, ruled that Frank Fenlon, 32, had been misbehaving again after recently being placed on probation. He got 100 days.

SEC, Flooded By Suits, Girds For Showdown

Refusals to Register Under Utilities Laws Now Are Wholesale.

Faced with wholesale refusals to register under the Wheeler-Rayburn utilities law, and a fresh onslaught of injunction suits by holding companies seeking court protection, the Securities and Exchange Commission yesterday further expanded its legal staff and entrenched for a showdown court battle.

With two days left to register under the law, four additional holding companies challenged validity of the act by suing to enjoin the Government from enforcement. One of these—the American Waterworks & Electric Co.—brought suit in the District Supreme Court here.

Two others—the Louisville Gas & Electric Co., and Standard Gas & Electric Co.—asked a United States district court in Wilmington for injunctions, while a fourth, the $585,000,000 United Corporation, brought action in New York, according to the Associated Press.

Eight Suits in Fortnight.

These independent moves brought to eight the total number of injunction suits against registration requirements in the last fortnight. The Government indicated it would fight at least two of those previously filed, by the United Gas Improvement Co., in Philadelphia, and the Commonwealth & Southern Corporation in Wilmington.

At the same time, the SEC went ahead with plans to prosecute the Electric Bond & Share Co. and its five holding company susidiaries, despite action taken by the E. B. & S. to dissolve interlocking relationships and delegate servicing operations to a new Ebasco Services, Inc.

James Lawrence Fly temporarily was transferred from his post as general solicitor of the Tennessee Valley Authority to assist Joseph J. Burns, general counsel of the SEC, in defending the utilities act. His transfer came within 48 hours after Robert H. Jackson, internal revenue attorney, was drafted for a similar purpose.

Fly, who entered the Government service through the Department of Justice, prosecuted the sugar institute case for the Government in 1934, and in the same year was active in the defense of the constitutionality of New Deal emergency legislation.

Suit to Be Pressed.

Burns indicated yesterday that Electric Bond & Share's reorganizing move would not sway the Government from pressing the suit it filed in New York Tuesday, charging the company was about to violate the act by not registering. SEC officials said the new Ebasco Services, Inc., in their opinion was not entitled to exemption as a "mutual service" corporation under the act. It was indicated, however, that the Government might amend its brief to conform with the E. B. & S. changes in reorganization set-up.

It was said at the commission that the SEC will not require reports on ownership of securities by utility officials, pending preparation of forms, as such information is received in other reports.

By modifications of its rules, to "assure" protection of legal and constitutional rights of registering utilities, the SEC meantime has hoped to stave off additional injunction suits, and invite further registrations before December 1. Only the New England Power Association, a member of the committee of public utilities executives, and the Utilities Power & Light Co. of Chicago have accepted the invitation.

Farley Is Defendant.

In the injunction suit filed in District Supreme Court here yesterday, the American Waterworks & Electric Co., assailed the utilities act as unconstitutional and asked that it be declared void. The company cited it controlled 38 water companies in Pennsylvania, Ohio, West Virginia and Maryland, which have a valuation of more than $105,000,000.

Postmaster General Farley was named as one of the defendants because of the necessity of using the mails in the furtherance of the company's business. The company pointed out that the SEC might prohibit use of the mails if the company failed to comply fully with its rules and regulations after the act becomes effective.

Most of the companies filing injunction suits yesterday made the same points, contending registration under the act would endanger their legal rights, force heavy expense and might lead toward eventual dismemberment.

Rum Hearing Set.

By the Associated Press.

Peoria, Ill., Nov. 27.—Federal District Judge Charles G. Briggle consented today to hold full hearings on the constitutionality of the new Federal Alcohol Administration act.

He agreed to the hearing, which officials said they believed to be the first since the act was passed, after denying a temporary injunction sought by the Fort Clark Distilleries against alcohol officials who padlocked their property November 22.

The Fort Clark company charged the administration refused to allow the company to operate under an old rectifying permit; that by dilatory tactics it had prevented the company from seeking remedy in court before the date set for suspension of operations, and that the act takes property in violation of constitutional privilege.

Frazier-Lemke Act Held Invalid by Iowa Judge

Sioux City, Iowa, Nov. 27 (U.P.).—Federal Judge George C. Scott today held the Frazier-Lemke mortgage moratorium act unconstitutional as contrary to the fifth and tenth amendments.

His ruling declared the act deprives of property without due process of law and abrogates the amendment delegating all power not granted to the Federal Government to the States and people.

Between You and Me

We Have Our Troubles, But Look at Old World; Supreme Court and Politics.

By Raymond Clapper

A MINISTER in New England refused to read all of President Roosevelt's Thanksgiving proclamation from his pulpit. He said it contained political propaganda.

Possibly the parson had been indulging in the literature of the American Liberty League. It is voluminous, documented and discouraging—"Expanding Bureaucracy," "Dangerous Experimentation," "Economic Planning—Mistaken but Not New," "Straws Which Tell," "The American Bar—Trustee of American Institutions," "Fabian Socialism in the New Deal," "The People's Money," "Legislation—By Coercion or Constitution," "Recovery by Statute," "The Imperilment of Democracy," "The Duty of the Lawyer in the Present Crisis," "Necessity for a Return to the Constitution," "Our Growing National Debt," "Inflation Is Bad Business," "The Most Costly Experiment in All World History."

It makes you feel that the Administration should have been frank about what it was up to and should have stated openly that it was trying to ruin the country. Instead of Roosevelt pretending that we have many things to be thankful for, he should have stood up like a man and abolished Thanksgiving Day entirely.

We have our troubles all right. We can't seem to get our unemployed to work. Dr. Tugwell insists on making speeches while our business men are trying to take their deep-breathing exercises prescribed by Mr. Roosevelt. So far the President has been able to cut only $400,000,000 off of our swollen expenses. Worry about the danger of a speculative boom is harassing some in the business world, who otherwise would be delighted at the new high mark in electric power production, the prospect of the biggest Christmas business since 1930, and the increases in industrial production and earnings.

But look at some of the other countries. In France, Premier Laval is clinging to the franc by his toenails and he'll be lucky if he doesn't lose his grip and cause considerable damage as he falls. Japanese troops are pouring into north China to invite the Chinese there to declare their independence in favor of Japan. Mussolini has had to smack on a tight censorship to keep bad news from going out of Italy. The Brazilian government is fighting rebels. The Germans still have Hitler.

Notwithstanding all of the things that are not right in this country, we have peace, if not quiet, and we have improving conditions. And this is one of the few places in the world where the American Liberty League can still have the fun of denouncing the Government. In most places that is a fatal pastime.

And another thing, which even the Republicans can be thankful for. There is going to be an election in less than a year. Elections now are almost exclusively an American luxury. Popular government hasn't shown up very well since the war. Dictatorships have been more efficient in dealing with chaotic conditions. During the last days of the Hoover Administration that feeling was developing even in the United States. One prominent Republican Senator told the Senate one day that what this country needed was a Mussolini.

But we have muddled through the worst of our trouble without doing serious damage to our institutions. We went out of bounds on some of the plays, according to the Supreme Court, which pulled us back inside constitutional lines. When you look back three years, and place the dark picture of then besides the brighter one now, and realize that throughout the terrific readjustment and the labor of turning the tide, we had no violence other than Hoover's use of the troops against the bonus marchers, and that throughout we have continued our elections and let the people choose, it seems possible to endure the high price of bacon without feeling too badly about the state of the Nation.

As for the New England preacher who is so upset over the way the country is going, a quiet half-hour in meditation over the Sermon on the Mount might put him in a more mellow mood.

The proposal of Gov. Hoffman, of New Jersey, to amend the constitution so that the Supreme Court could pass on the validity of legislation before it becomes operative instead of months or years afterward has attracted wide attention. Aside from the fact that it would reduce the volume of litigation and thus curtail the livelihood of the legal profession, the only serious objection raised thus far is that it would tend to put the court into politics.

But the objectors do not explain why by rendering a decision promptly, the court would be more involved in politics than under the present procedure of waiting until months of litigation have intervened.

Roosevelts Plan Feast.

Warm Springs, Ga., Nov. 27 (AP).—Thanksgiving Eve brought a stir of activity here today as preparations went forward for the annual turkey dinner at which President Roosevelt will preside tomorrow.

Mrs. Roosevelt arrived by train late in the day to share the holiday festivities with the President and the children who are infantile paralysis patients of the Warm Springs Foundation.

Mr. Roosevelt himself concluded the first week of his visit here with another quiet day, driving about the neighborhood during the afternoon inspecting the forestry work in which he has always taken a deep interest.

Tonight he worked on the address he will deliver at the home-coming celebration arranged for him by Georgians at Atlanta Friday.

Mrs. Roosevelt was preceded earlier today by James, eldest son. The family will have their own Thanksgiving dinner at noon at the cottage on Pine Mountain, and Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt will have the evening meal with the children patients at Georgia Hall, with the President carving the turkey.

Which of two turkeys presented to the President will be on the table is unknown. One came from the Northwest Turkey Growers Association at Salt Lake City, the other from the Town of Brady, "the heart of Texas."

J. W. Carpenter, of Dallas, a utilities operator, called up Mr. Roosevelt today. He was chairman of the original Roosevelt birthday Ball committee in Dallas.

Hagerstown Italians Send Money to Il Duce

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., Nov. 27.—Members of the Italian colony here admitted today that thousands of dollars has been raised in recent weeks and sent to Premier Mussolini to help Italy win the war against Ethiopia.

There is a colony of several hundred former Italian emigrants employed at a cement plant near here.

but said he expected to effect some economies here.

Funds for operating the Government's vast social security program and other new agencies caught in the third deficiency bill jam last session will make his budget-balancing objectives more difficult, Buchanan conceded.

The Texan said he may try to rush a deficiency bill through in January to enable such agencies to get through the present fiscal year, then provide for their next year's wants in a second measure.

"The first bill would give us a yardstick," he said.

Getting back on the subject of relief, Buchanan expressed hope that some of the $4,880,000,000 relief funds already provided might be reapportioned for other purposes, but added he "didn't expect to get all he wanted."

The important thing, he said, is to get the country off a direct relief basis.

The sooner the country faces it the better," he said. "Direct relief is wrong in principle. It destroys individuality and respectability, and does it by Government sanction. It is time to stop now."

As business picks up, he said, it would absorb many of the relief workers, and the rest would have "to hunt jobs."

"Relief was provided to help them while they hunted for jobs," he said. "We've gotten into it, and I suppose we have to complete the projects we started or lose money already spent, but we shouldn't undertake any more."

'Business Chiselers' Assailed by Hoover

San Francisco, Nov. 27 (AP).—Herbert Hoover advocated today an "Americanization treatment" for "business chiselers" and governmental bureaucrats—as well as "hosts of natives."

"The spirit of liberty needs to be written in the halls of its business chiselers in as vivid letters as it is written in the halls of government," said the former President in a speech before the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Roper Predicts 10 to 25% Gain In Yule Trade

Work for Thousands of Extra Employes Seen by Secretary.

Christmas trade will be from 10 per cent to 25 per cent above that of last year and the best since 1930, Secretary Roper predicted yesterday.

Adding to the recent list of optimistic New Deal business statements, the Secretary of Commerce said brisk Christmas business will provide work for thousands of extra employes. He referred to the estimate of the National Retail Dry Goods Association that Christmas volume of trade will be $4,500,000,000 and result in employment of 500,000 extra salespeople.

"Not only has holiday buying gained momentum earlier than usual, but it has started in advance of distribution of Christmas club savings," Roper said.

Quality Goods In Demand.

Not only is buying increasing, the Secretary said, but the demand is for a better class of merchandise. Commerce reports show large demands for automobiles, house furnishing, jewelry, silverware, leather goods, mechanical toys, underwear, books and stationery.

"Reports reaching the Department of Commerce from more than 30 cities indicate the continued absorption of thousands of workers in private business and industry," Roper said. "Particularly are current placements heavy in industrial centers where there has been a considerable upswing of activity among the durable goods groups."

Pay Roll Gain Cited.

As examples of improved conditions, the secretary cited Cleveland, where factory payrolls increased $17,600,000 during the first nine months of the year over the same period last year. The relief load in Detroit, it was reported, is 25,000 under last year. The Detroit industrial index was given as 107.5 during the week ended November 20, as compared with 51.9 a year ago. Automobile production for November was estimated at 350,000 units, compared with 83,482 a year ago.

Examples of the Christmas rush: Atlanta added 1,000 postoffice employes; New York retail sales were up 13 per cent; Chicago, 8 per cent; Atlanta, 10 per cent; New Orleans, 19 per cent; Detroit, 18 per cent. The comparisons are with the same period last year.

Gov. Lehman Sifts Slaying of Clerk

By the Associated Press.

New York, Nov. 27.—Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, who recently pledged himself to a vigorous campaign against crime, today began a personal investigation into an ordinarily routine killing that was projected into the spotlight by a political campaign.

Hints of attempted bribery and official laxity, thundered over Brooklyn by a campaigning orator, echoed in the background as the Governor called for all the facts in the slaying of Samuel Druckman, an obscure shipping clerk, "and certain alleged crimes connected with it."

The Governor delivered his request for information personally to District Attorney William F. X. Geoghan, of Kings County (Brooklyn), and Police Commissioner Lewis J. Valentine, both of whom were summoned to his home town.

Geoghan, a Democrat, was reelected early this month despite the contention of his Republican-Fusion opponent, Joseph D. McGoldrick, that he had sought to "whitewash" the prosecution of three men for the killing of Druckman.

Buck Named Counsel Of Federal Liquor Unit

By the Associated Press.

Phillip E. Buck was appointed yesterday general counsel of the Federal Alcohol Administration.

Buck, a Deland, Fla., attorney on the Trade Commission staff, will take office immediately. John F. Moore, of Huron, S. Dak., who resigned to take up private practice, will remain assistant general counsel until January 1.

Buck helped defend NRA as director of litigation. He went to the Federal Trade Commission a few months ago. A native of Prince Frederick, Calvert County, Md., Buck had live in Florida 15 years.

Kidnap Suspect Faces Court in Police Killing

Twin Falls, Idaho, Nov. 27 (AP).—Douglas Van Vlack, insistent that he had not harmed his divorced wife, for whom a search is being pressed, waived preliminary hearing today on a charge of slaying State Patrolman Fontaine Cooper.

Cooper was killed and a fellow-officer wounded Monday as they attempted to halt an automobile in which a man and woman were riding, as search was pressed today for pretty Mildred Hook, 22, who allegedly was abducted by Van Vlack at Tacoma, Wash.

President Seen Still Opposed To Bonus Now

matically scheduled for a House vote on January 13.

Informed members of Congress, and many of the organized veterans, believe the Patman bill undoubtedly would be vetoed by the President again, as it was last session, if it passes.

Because of that certainty, both the legion and the V. F. W. are reported to be looking for a measure that carries no inflationary implications, and it is not unlikely that they will agree on the same bill.

May Outrace Patman.

One possibility is that the House Ways and Means Committee will meet the first week of Congress, draw up a measure more acceptable to the Administration, and beat the Patman bill to a House vote.

With this end in view, Representative Fred Vinson (Democrat), of Kentucky, is now revising the bill legionnaires supported last session, in the hope of framing a measure agreeable both to the veterans and to the Administration. He believes the bonus is assured of passage next session.

Another measure, providing for payment in bonds which could be cashed for approximately face value, will be offered by Senator James Byrnes (Democrat), of South Carolina; Senator Frederic Steiwer (Republican), of Oregon, and Representative John W. McCormack (Democrat), of Massachusetts.

Lorenz Advocates 'Mercy' Killings

By the Associated Press.

New York, Nov. 27.—"Mercy" killings were upheld as justifiable under proper circumstances by Dr. Adolph Lorenz today.

The widely known Austrian surgeon suggested in an interview the creation of official medical committees to determine such circumstances.

"In the medical profession there are more mercy killers than confess to it," said the doctor, who recently arrived from Europe.

"All who believe in the first duty of the physician, to prolong life as much as possible, will say 'no.' Mercy killing means reversal of this duty.

"Yet there are utterly hopeless cases in which mercy killing administers mercy. The patient buys his death with less pain.

Bolton Brands Farley Figures 'Falsification'

G. O. P. Leader Declares U. S. Costs Actually Up $330,000,000.

"Juggler Jim Farley," it was charged last night by Representative C. G. Bolton (Republican), of Ohio, "is throwing figures around with the same abandon that the New Deal squanders the taxpayers' money."

Bolton, chairman of the Republican Congressional committee, was replying to what he called Farley's "amazing revelation" at Denver, Colo., on Monday, that "regular activities of the various departments of the Government have been diminished by something approaching a billion dollars a year."

"Today," the Postmaster General was quoted as saying, "we are paying our bills out of our income."

In his statement Bolton declared that "one only has to take the New Deal's own Treasury daily statement to disprove Mr. Farley's utterly absurd contention. By 'routine' costs of the Government it must be presumed that Mr. Farley means ordinary costs in differentiation of emergency costs.

$330,000,000 Higher.

"Even with the two sets of bookkeeping which New Dealers resort to, a glance into New Deal fiscal affairs discloses that the routine costs of Government on November 23 this year were nearly $330,000,000 more than for the corresponding figure of last year—and there are still eight months of the current fiscal year to go."

He declared that Farley's "latest attempt" with figures "far outdistances for downright, absolute, unqualified falsification anything the befuddled Mr. Farley has said."

Meanwhile, on another political front, a charge by former Senator Smith W. Brookhart that Gov. Alf M. Landon, of Kansas, was the "Standard Oil" candidate for President brought an immediate denial by a long-time associate of the Kansas executive in business matters, the Associated Press reported.

Mitchell Denies Report.

"Ridiculous," was the reply of Mark D. Mitchell, of Independence, Kansas, an official of the Kansas Stripper Oil Association. "'I have been associated with Alf Landon for 20 years in an effort to protect the interests of independent oil producers," he said. "'We have always fought on the same side and I know where he will be in any emergency calling for defense of the independent oil producers."

Landon declined to comment on Brookhart's charge.

Brookhart had demanded a "progressive" Republican nominee, saying that Senator Borah of Idaho and "in a lesser degree" Senator Vandenberg, of Michigan, might "fill that bill."

Pittsburgh Glass Employes Victors

By the Associated Press.

Pittsburgh, Nov. 27.—Settlement today of a wage dispute between the Federation of Flat Glass Workers of America and the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co. will add more than $25,000 a week to the pay checks of the concern's 12,000 employes.

Glen W. McCabe, union president, disclosed this after signing the agreement which makes his organization the collective bargaining agent for its members, grants a 5-cent-an-hour increase to all employes and abolishes geographical and plant differentials.

The agreement came after the union threatened a strike, in six plants, which are now working overtime. The company made the increase for all its employes.

Danzig Amnesty Decree Frees Nazi Prisoners

Free City of Danzig, Nov. 27 (AP).—The Danzig Volkstag in a vote of amnesty today freed many Nazis charged with fighting police.

All political prisoners and those whose cases were pending, as well as criminal and civil prisoners serving sentences up to four months, were freed.

Among those benefiting were 50 Nazis awaiting trial for the alleged beating of Danzig residents who failed to salute the Nazi flag during a recent parade, and another sentenced to six months for striking a leader of the German National Party in a courtroom.

Italians Bomb 25,000 Troops, Destroy Stores

Heavy Casualties Reported; Foes Retreat 60 Miles, Ethiopia Claims.

By the Associated Press.

Rome, Nov. 27.—Italian press dispatches from the northern Ethiopian front reported today a large Ethiopian supply train and a column of 25,000 troops had been bombarded by Italian airplanes.

The dispatches said many Ethiopians were killed and wounded when the airplanes dropped their bombs on the column, near Belago, and used their machine guns. The supply train was reportedly cut to pieces behind Amba Alaji, about 40 miles south of Makale.

A large quantity of military supplies was said to have been destroyed.

By the Associated Press.

Addis Ababa, Nov. 27.—A 60-mile retreat by Italian troops from their front positions in the north was claimed today by the Ethiopian governmnet.

An official communique stated 1,000 of Premier Mussolini's soldiers had dropped back from Makale, where their second major offensive carried, to Adigrat, 60 miles to the rear.

(At the same itme, Rome officials denied the Ethiopian government's claim that Italina troops had evacuated Gorrahei and Gerlogubi, on the southern front.)

Retreat in South.

Official dispatches to Addis Ababa stated the Italians were retreating south of Ualual, which is about 50 miles east of Gerlogubi. (A clash between Ethiopians and Italian natives at Ualual last year was a major factor in bringing the Italo-Ethiopian dispute to a head.)

There was a report Ethiopians had entered Italian Somaliland near Dolo, following out carefully laid plans of Ras Desta Demuta, southern commander and son-in-law of Emperor Haile Selassie.

(A Reuters dispatch from Harar said it was reported Ras Desta Demtu had taken 100,000 men into Italian Somaliland.)

Ten Bombs Dropped.

A government communique announced ten bombs had been dropped by an Italian plane yesterday on Daggah Bur, 150 miles northwest of Gorrahei, but that there were no casualties.

Desertion of Eritreans from the Italian army was also reported by the Ethiopian government.

The high military command, meeting with the Emperor, decided to follow up its claimed military successes in both north and south.

Tecle Hawariate, former Ethiopian delegate to the League of Nations, after attending the conference, announced he might soon join Ras Seyoum, leading the Ethiopian armies in the north. Informed circles expressed the opinion he and Haille Selassie would go to Dessye, 175 miles northeast of Addis Ababa, within the next week.

Mutiny Feared.

Djibouti, French Somaliland, Nov. 27 (HAVAS).—Emperor Haile Selassie has sent a large body of troops headed by Ras Jimmiru to Aussa to watch the movements of the Sultan of Aussa, suspected of planning a mutiny.

Dispatches arriving here tonight said complete calm reigned in the Harar region. The Italians have abruptly halted their advance on Jijiga and Aussa, it was said.

Djibouti-Addis Ababa railway officials tonight denied they had forbidden the Ethiopian government to use the railway for transporting troops or wounded.

Clash With French.

Rome (Thursday), Nov. 28 (U.P.).—Ethiopian regulars clashed with French native troops in the Gobad region when the Ethiopians attempted to cross the French Somaliland frontier, the newspaper Popola di Romo's correspondent at Djibouti reported today.

The Ethiopians reportedly were attempting to confiscate cattle, which Modaito tribesmen had taken inside French territory to escape a raid.

Rancher Leaves Nothing To Chance in Suicide

Sturgis, S. Dak., Nov. 27 (AP).—Frank Volger, Elk Creek rancher, took no chances when he committed suicide.

Volger, State's Attorney John Everette said after an investigation late yesterday, climbed a tree, tied one end of a rope to his neck and the other to a limb, and shot himself with a .22-caliber revolver.

American Reported Shot.

Mexico City, Nov. 27 (AP).—A dispatch from Puerto Mexico today said an American, James E. Brown, of the Aguila Petroleum Co., was shot to death by a discharged worker. Brown's home address was not given.

Bombs Like This Rout Brazil Rebels

Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

Recent picture of Brazilian army maneuvers shows bombing of a bridge. This expert aid of airmen yesterday brought about surrender of rebel regiment in Rio de Janeiro, the capital. Federal forces also regained control of the State of Pernambuco, in the northwest. The government claims the rebellion is now broken.

Dispatches from the north said Gov. Rafael Fernandes of the state of Rio Grande do Norte, who had fled from Natal to a Mexican coast guard vessel anchored in the harbor, had resumed his post.

Two federal cruisers, meanwhile, joined the search for the Santos and its cargo of rebels.

Rebel leaders in the capital were under arrest, held for court martial. But authorities, despite their successes, mobilized loyal forces at general military headquarters as a precautionary measure.

These troops included the first regiment of heavy artillery and several detachments of infantry and marines.

Despite the heavy firing both at the aviation school this morning and at the third infantry barracks this afternoon, it was believed the casualties were limited to the dozen or more rebel dead and the five government wounded.

Barracks Wrecked.

Demolition of the rebels' baracks was accomplished by a series of pounding blows which kept all Rio in a state of nervous excitement as the artillerry thundered and five bombing planes droned over Sugar Loaf Mountain and Praia Vermelha.

This mountain is a strategic spot in the military control of Rio de Janeiro harbor.

Under the personal direction of President Getulio Vargas, who watched the siege from a vantage point behind the barred windows of an adjoining insane asylum, the loyal first infantry and the first batallion of heavy artillery were drawn up before the barracks.

The infantrymen stood their ground with bayonets fixed and ready.

At the advice of Vargas, the loyal commander sent an ultimatum to the rebel leader, Capt. Agildo Barata, urging him to surrender.

Baratra refused, and Minister of War Genjoa Gomez Ribeiro, in personal command of operations, ordered the artillery to fire.

As the shells screamed into the barracks, the central part of the structure began to crumble and fall, piece by piece.

Under cover of the artillery fire, the First Infantry advanced close to the rebel barricades and began throwing tear-gas bombs inside.

Building Set Afire.

Then one of the artillery shells struck the cupola barracks and set the central part of the building afire. It crashed with a great roar.

The federal artillery slackened fire momentarily and the rebels opened up on the infantrymen with machine guns. But the loyalists, with bombing planes circling low, stormed the fortress, led by the minister of war. Bitter hand-to-hand fighting ensued.

Finally the white flag went up in the ruins of the barracks and the rebels attempted to flee. Loyal machine-gun nests barred their way and they surrendered.

The rebellion at the barracks was launched before dawn by Capt. Barata, a prisoner in the building. He gained the support of one battalion of the 1,000 troops quartered there.

Part of the regiment remained loyal and a fight broke out within the barracks, with Barata sending out pleas from the regimental wireless station for other units to revolt.

Col. Alfonso Ferreira, commander of the Third Regiment, led the fight against the rebels inside the structure. But the revolters threw up barricades as loyalist troops began a cautious advance. Citizens fled near-by homes as the artillery swung into action.

After the surrender the insurgent Third infantrymen were taken under guard to general military headquarters. There they were imprisoned with the rebels seized after the aviation school revolt collapsed this morning.

It was disclosed the leaders of the latter uprising were two captains, Socrates Gonzalves Dasilva and Adelberto Torres Derezendo, and a lieutenant, one Carvalho.

With Barata, the rebel leader at Praia Vermelha, and two other lieutenants, they were held incommunicado.

Bombed From Air.

The morning melee at the aviation school was climaxed by artillery fire and air bombing, and the rebels surrendered only after two hangars had gone up in flames.

The government contended the fire was set by the rebels themselves, and not by the bombs and shells. An undisclosed number of planes were destroyed.

In the north, the Graf Zeppelin, which for three days had been floating over the coast, unable to land, was moored at Recife (Pernambuco) and prepared to resume its regular transatlantic mail service.

Radio communication between Rio and Natal was restored and two commercial airplanes, held at Natal since November 23, resumed operations.

Authorities announced military action had been taken at Juiz de Fora, in the State of Minas Geraes, and at several points in the State of Rio de Janeiro as a result of Communist plotting.

Hitchhike Gunman Is Dead of Wounds

Suspected in Slaying Nine Motorists.

By the Associated Press.

Oklahoma City, Nov. 27.—Chester Comer, wounded gunman-hitchhiker, suspected in the disappearances of nine persons, died late tonight in the General Hospital.

Comer died of a bullet fired into his head by a town marshal who captured him Monday.

Officers failed in their efforts to get additional information from him after he had mumbled a partial confession which led them to fear for the lives of five missing Oklahoma persons.

Department of Justice agents regarded him as a "likely suspect" in the case of four Illinois tourists missing since last summer.

As death sealed lips which had muttered about "piles of bodies," officers announced learning that Comer threatened four other persons with death only two days after Ray Evans, Shawnee, Okla., attorney was reported missing.

New General Aims to Speed Italian Armies

Gen. Badoglio to Discard De Bono 'Steam-Roller' Invasion Tactics.

By the Associated Press.

Asmara, Eritrea, Nov. 27.—A campaign of swift, sharp advances to crush quickly Ethiopian resistance was said by Italian officers tonight to be the plan of the new Fascist commander-in-chief, Marshal Pietro Badoglio.

Torrential rains which flooded the port of Massaua kept Badoglio from his command today. He was expected tomorrow.

Dispatches from Massaua said the rains transformed dry creek beds into raging torrents and made fields into lakes in which thousands of empty gasoline cans and thousands of feet of lumber to be used for workmen's shacks were floating.

Elaborate floral arches, erected to welcome the marshal, were soaked.

The officers said they expect the marshal to discard the slow, steam-roller tactics of his predecessor, Gen. Emilio De Bono.

The Ethiopians, they said, have been able to retreat in orderly fashion before De Bono's forces, although the general accomplished his purpose of placing huge numbers of Italians on a stable footing in a great sector of occupied territory.

Badoglio, it was said, would divide the columns of 30,000 men into units of about 10,000 each, thus, making movement over Ethiopia's rugged terrain simpler. Such a method, the officers stated, had been used effectively in "cleaning up" the territory already occupied.

"Flying columns which can move rapidly, although open to more danger, would be used frequently, it was asserted, in an effort to force a decisive conflict.

Italian officers were convinced they could meet the enemy on more equal terms by splitting up their forces. One thorough rout of a big enemy concentration, they predicted, would do much to end the war.

Officers at the field headquarters here said they were convinced a continuation of De Bono's steam-roller methods, with the necessity of bringing up supplies by trucks over the poor new roads constructed by the Italians, would be too expensive. Moreover, they declared, it would drag out the war by permitting the Ethiopians to retreat at their leisure.

About 16,500 camels and mules were reported to be held at Makale, and its was expected they would be used instead of automobiles to carry provisions for the extended operations of the flying columns.

Bandit Sniffs at Loot.

Los Angeles, Nov. 27 (AP).—Redolent with the aroma of limburger cheese, John Pimer, 19, recently of New Haven, Conn., was assisted into a police station today and booked for suspicion of robbery. P. A. Sullentrop, grocer, massaged the youth's face with the cheese, police said, as Pimer fled the store, and the youth surrendered.

Brainy Sweepers Asked.

New York, Nov. 27 (AP).—Mayor LaGuardia wants more career men in the street sweeping department. "What we need in this department is brains," he said today, and presented diplomas to 75 sweepers who became assistant foremen and to 88 assistants who become foremen.

Administration Seeks to Revise Neutrality Act

To Ask Wider Discretion for President; Borah Hits War Profit.

By the Associated Press.

Increasing signs appeared yesterday that the Administration will seek congressional revisions of the new neutrality law, possibly including a rigid quota provision on exports to belligerent countries.

At the same time it was predicted authoritatively that wider discretionary authority will be asked for the President in determining when and to what extent flat embargoes shall be applied against warring nations.

Simultaneously, Senator Borah (Republican), Idaho, hit out at war profits, renewed his opposition to any participation by this country in the League of Nations sanctions program, and called for complete freedom from European controversy.

Should Avoid League.

"I do not understand," Borah said in a statement, "that it is any part of the plan of our Government to join in the League sanctions. Certainly we should abstain from anything of that kind. As I understand our policy it is to act wholly apart from any other government and to seek to bring pressure upon neither of the belligerents.

"The primary purpose of our Government is to stay out of the European controversy, and to join the League sanctions would be to jump into European conflicts. The action of the League with reference to oil shows what a noble struggle is going on in that institution between peace and profits."

The present neutrality act, which expires on March 1, makes mandatory an embargo on shipments of war implements to both belligerents on the outbreak of hostilities.

It makes no provision, however, for similar prohibition of such war material as oil, copper, steel and automobiles, the excessive export of which this Government has been seeking to check by moral and implied financial pressure.

Discuss Two Crises.

During the day matters directly pertaining to both the Italo-Ethiopian conflict and the Sino-Japanese crisis were up for discussion at the State Department.

Sir Ronald Lindsay, the British Ambassador, who conferred with Secretary Hull a week ago on events in the Far East, talked yesterday on the same subject with Stanley Hornbeck, chief of the State Department's division of Far Eastern affairs. Earlier, he saw R. Walton Moore, Assistant Secretary of State, in charge of execution of the Administration's neutrality policies.

The Ambassador told newsmen afterward that he had held only "general discussions" with the American officials, both of whom declined to comment on his visit.

As for alterations in the neutrality act, Secretary Hull already has indicated the Administration's dissatisfaction with the present law on the ground that the Italo-Ethiopian war has demonstrated that it does not permit sufficient latitude in dealing with specific circumstances of a shifting international situation.

More recent intimations have come from State Department spokesmen that the Government is considering possible quota restrictions intended to prevent an excessive flow of materials to warring nations. This met with a mixed reception in Congressional circles yesterday.

It was agreed by those who commented, however, that a need for more definite legislation on the subject had been demonstrated by the present conflict.

Senator Murray (Democrat), of Montana, a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, indorsed the principle of limiting exports of war materials to quantities that would be no more than normal shipments in peace times.

Federal Bar Group Seeks to Lift Ban

The Federal Communications Commission has been asked by the Federal Bar Association to lift a ban which prevents former attorneys of the commission for a two-year period from representing clients in communication cases.

At a meeting in the Department of Justice Building, the executive council of the asssociation, an organization of Government attorneys, adopted a resolution calling upon the commission to revise rules affecting attorneys formerly employed by it to conform with similar regulations in other Federal agencies.

England Forces Laval to Hasten Talk on Oil Ban

Italy Threatens to Meet Sanctions With Arms As Dec. 6 Date Is Set.

By the Associated Press.

Paris, Nov. 27.—Pressed by Great Britain, Premier Laval was said in informed quarters tonight to have agreed to a League of Nations sanctions committee meeting December 6 to consider an oil embargo against Italy.

These sources said M. Laval had agreed to the discussion, after a one-week delay, upon the insistence of Sir George Russell Clerk, the British ambassador, that the United Kingdom would "not welcome" further postponement.

Discussion of the far-reaching ban on shipments of oil and other "key products"—coal, steel and iron—originally was scheduled for Friday of this week by the League's sanctions committee of 18.

But following a conference last week-end between M. Laval and Sir George, the subject was deferred at the request of the French premier, presumably to prevent increased international tension at a time when Laval was facing a grave domestic political crisis.

The British ambassador, at today's conference, was said to have pointed to the fact that Soviet Russia and Rumania, two large oil producers, agreed conditionally to the proposed embargo at the time the project was postponed.

Iraq, too, it was pointed out, has acceded to the ban. Italy gets much of her oil from Iraq's international fields, where a British-owned company operates.

These countries, Sir George was said to have asserted, might be difficult to "hold" unless quick action is taken.

Diplomatic informants said M. Laval at first hesitated, informing Clerk that Premier Mussolini had threatened to denounce his military understanding with France if this country supported the embargo.

But the ambassador, it was stated, contended Great Britain had agreed to the postponement this week only as an "accommodation" to M. Laval in his domestic crisis, and that it felt extended delay was "unnecessary."

Troops Reported Recalled.

Rome, Nov. 27 (AP).—Italian officials consider the threat of a League of Nations oil embargo so serious, it was learned tonight, that "troop movements" have been ordered.

Although the movements went unexplained officially, informed quarters said they believed many of the 100,000 home soldiers now on leave of absence have been recalled.

Three-month furloughs had been ordered for these troops to permit them to give their services to Italian agriculture and industry because of the pressure of sanctions.

Well-informed circles said Italian oil stocks probably were not large, as statistics showed imports this year had been only a little above normal. The United States supplies only 6 per cent of Italy's petroleum imports.

Resentment Foreseen.

Should the League impose an oil embargo, officials said, the situation would become serious. Military action would continue in Ethiopia, they stated, and if the Italian population was deprived of its customary supplies its resentment might create dangerous conditions.

Sources near the government declared the Fascist nation might even resist forcibly an extension of League sanctions. These quarters asserted Italy would be slowly strangled if embargoes on coal and oil were added to the severe sanctions already being applied.

Gasoline prices rose to $1.08 a gallon, and reliable sources estimated half of the city's private automobiles were stored in garages because of the high cost of operating them.

Conservation of coal in office buildings, hotels and apartment houses made their occupants somewhat uncomfortable.

Most of the population accepted the measures for saving Italy's necessities cheerfully, and any persons who grumbled were reminded of the pressure against the country.

London, Nov. 27 (AP).—Authoritative quarters stated tonight sentiment was crystallizing for approval of oil sanctions against Italy at a meeting of the League of Nations committee of 18 expected to be held next week.

The new cabinet, meeting for the first time since the general elections, was believed to have taken up the question. Immediately after the session King George received the British foreign secretary, Sir Samuel Hoare, but the subject of their talk was not disclosed.

Pointing out that Russia and Rumania, two of the most important sources of Italy's oil supply, had already agreed to an oil embargo against Italy, authoritative sources said they believed the situation was being clarified rapidly.

The cabinet was expected to discuss extension of sanctions at a second meeting scheduled for Friday.

Ray Atherton, counselor to the American embassy in London, said he had not discussed oil and other sanctions with the foreign office Monday, despite reports to the contrary.

Geneva, Nov. 27 (AP).—Senator J. Hamilton Lewis (Democrat), of Illinois, stated tonight that an embargo against Italy on oil, steel, coal, cotton and wool would mean a selection of commodities which would cause a great loss to American exporters.

"I wish," said Senator Lewis, "to deny a report published in Europe that the United States has expressed sympathy with sanctions.

"We have expressed sympathy with honorable efforts to bring peace, but we have not approved the method of condemning articles of commerce one by one as they shall be selected by League committees."

Lewis insisted that the United States was not obliged to follow decisions of the League of Nations and that President Roosevelt should not be asked by the League to join in its policies as a matter of comity.

Outer Mongolia Defies Demand By Manchukuo

Border Peace Parley Fails; Japanese Puppet State Hints Showdown.

By the Associated Press.

Tokyo, Nov. 27.—Japanese sources reported today that a Mongolia-Manchukuo conference, in session for months in an effort to settle a border incident, had ended in an atmosphere of hostility.

The outer Mongolians were advised by Soviet Russia and the Manchukuoans by Japanese.

A dispatch to the Rengo News Agency from Hsinking said the conference, in session at Manchuli since June 4, failed because of the Mongols' refusal to accept a Manchukuoan proposal for the exchange of diplomatic agents.

As a result of the conference, the Manchukuoan foreign office was reported as saying Hsinking will regard all outer Mongolia as "a region of danger and mystery abutting on her frontiers and reserves the right to take the full initiative in the settlement of pending or future issues with that nation."

Discussed Clash.

The conferees attempted to settle the "Kharka incident," an armed clash between Mongol and Japanese-Manchukuoan troops on the frontier near Lake Bor Nor last January.

(Since that time there have been frequent border incidents betwen Soviets and Japanese-Manchukuoans. Moscow recently made a vigorous protest, which Japan rejected.)

After the conference, a Manchukuoan statement said: "Manchukuo concludes that outer Mongolia's freedom is restrained by some outside agency (referring to Soviet Russia) and it cannot regard outer Mongolia as an independent nation with which it is possible to deal equally."

Manchukuo Blamed.

Moscow, Nov. 27 (AP).—Negotiations betwen Manchukuo and the Mongolian peoples' republic for the settlement of border disputes have been broken off, a Tass (Soviet) News Agency dispatch from Ulan said today.

The Manchukuoans, the dispatch said, bolted the conference when Mongolia refused to accept demands which it interpreted would mean a forced recognition of Manchukuo.

Garner Party at Kobe.

Kobe, Japan (Thursday), Nov. 28 (AP).—Vice President John Nance Garner, of the United States, arrived with an American Congressional party today aboard the liner President Jefferson, homebound from Manila.

Commenting on the birth of the new Japanese prince, son of Emperor Hirohito and the Empress, Garner said, "It is a most happy event."

Second Son Born To Japan's Rulers

Radio, Sirens Carry News; Mother, Child Well.

By the Associated Press.

Tokyo (Thursday), Nov. 28.—A son was born today to the Empress Nagako of Japan, becoming the second in line of succession to the throne.

Physicians announced the condition of the mother and child as satisfactory.

The new baby follows Crown Prince Akihito, born December 23, 1933, in the line of succession.

The birth occurred at 7:57 a. m., and shortly thereafter sirens carried the tidings over the city and the news was broadcast to the empire by a national radio network.

Within half an hour virtually every building in Tokyo was draped with flags. The prince, it was announced, will be named December 4, seventh day after his birth, in accordance with ancient rites.

The new prince in Japan's royal house is the sixth child born to Emperor Hirohito and Empress Nagako.

Theft of Secret Papers At Ministry Reported

Praha, Czechoslovakia, Nov. 27 (AP).—Soviet Minister Alexandrowsky reported to police today the theft of many secret documents and 1,000,000 kroner (approximately $41,000) from the ministry last night.

Police said a Russian employe of the ministry who had disappeared was suspected but details of the robbery were not divulged. Whether espionage or political matters are involved was not disclosed.

Laval Victory On Franc Issue Forecast Today

Confidence Vote Expected by Narrow Margin in Parliament.

Paris, Nov. 27 (AP).—Premier Pierre Laval, staking the life of his cabinet on firm opposition to devaluation of the franc when Parliament opens tomorrow, tonight expected a slim but safe majority when he asks for a vote of confidence on financial measures.

He based his hope of success on the issue of the "golden franc" on the refusal of a majority of the powerful radical Socialist Party to join the extreme left in a Chamber of Deputies campaign to overthrow him.

The premier's broadcast to the people of his nation last night, warning them his fall would bring about depreciation of the franc, gained him a promise of votes when he demands a ballot of confidence.

Furthermore, the unwillingness of any other leader to take his place in the present monetary crisis was counted upon to carry him safely past the bitter opposition of Socialists and Communists.

A controversial bill calling for the dissolution of the so-called Fascist leagues, such as the nationalistic veterans' organization, Croix de Feu (Cross of Fire), was shoved for the time being into second place by M. Laval's insistence that the certain fight on that issue follow debate on his economy laws.

Stress Fascism Issue.

Leftists had demanded that the Fascist issue precede the financial discussion, with the first test of strength coming on the former score.

But yesterday the Radical-Socialist bloc voted to give precedence to budget questions.

Laval, foreign minister as well as premier, seeks the chamber's approval of his foreign policy in the Italo-Ethiopian war; of hundreds of internal decree laws designed to cut government expenses and bring down prices; of a budget to defend the franc; of the Franco-Soviet pact.

On any one of these or on minor questions his government may conceivably fall with an adverse vote. The rank and file of the chamber, predominantly leftist, are more or less hostile to the swarthy premier's cabinet.

It is composed largely of leaders drawn from the right and center, along with the Liberal Radical-Socialists.

Hence whether M. Laval falls or not depends largely on the decisions of Left Party leaders. Almost all of them are against the premier's decree laws, but few are willing to accept the responsibility of upsetting his government and trying to form another acceptable to the chamber.

Herriot Party Split.

The heavy figure of Marie-Edouard Herriot, long the leader of the Radical Socialists and himself thrice premier, stood behind the Laval government when it was formed last June.

But Herriot's own party has split, many of its members following Edouard Daladier into the camp of the Communist-Socialist "popular front."

In French politics party lines shift like desert sands. French politicians are independent, and even in a party fight many deputies long allied with one group may switch to another.

How well Herriot can keep his followers in line where he chooses to lead them is another enigma in the new Parliament.

Hitler Declares He Fights Jews To Curb 'Reds'

Copyright, 1935, by the United Press.

Berlin, Nov. 27.—"Germany is the bulwark of the West against bolshevism, and, in combating it, will meet propaganda with propaganda, terror with terror and violence with violence," Fuehrer Hitler declared today.

Replying to a question as to the grounds for the Jewish legislation passed by the Reichstag in session at Nuremberg, the chancellor said:

"The necessity of combating bolshevism is one of the fundamental reasons for Jewish legislation in Germany.

"This legislation is not anti-Jewish, but is pro-German.

Calls Jews "Red" Agents.

Hitler asserted that practically all bolshevist agitators in Germany had been Jews, and also that Germany, being separated from Soviet Russia by only a few miles, required permanent and practical protective measures to defend the Reich "against the activities of these chiefly Jewish agents of bolshevism."

The Fuehrer said that from tens of thousands of demobilized officers after the war a sort of "intellectual proletariat" had arisen, and that many of these, although university-educated men, had had to take jobs as street cleaners, chauffeurs and other such means of livelihood in order to exist.

On the other hand, Hitler declared, the Jews, representing less than 1 per cent of the population, had sought to usurp cultural leadership and had overcrowded intellectual professions, such as the law and medicine.

He "Protects" Them.

The destructive influence of this intellectual Jewry in Germany, he said, has made itself felt everywhere.

"For this reason," the chancellor stated, "it was necessary to take steps in order to put a stop to this destructiveness and to establish a clear and clean division between the two races."

The fundamental principle by which this question is being handled in Germany, he said, is that Germans should receive what is naturally due to them, and the Jews what is naturally due to them.

He said such a policy furnishes a protection to the Jews themselves, a proof of which was the fact that since the restrictive measures, anti-Jewish feeling has modified.

To a question as to whether further legislative steps were to be expected, the fuehrer replied that the German government was being guided by a desire to avert by means of law those measures of self-help on the part of the people which might possibly be expressed in dangerous explosions, and thereby to maintain the hitherto prevailing peace and order in Germany.

New Laws Possible.

He expressed belief that through the Nuremberg laws, new tension would perhaps be avoided. Should tension arise, however, then further legal measures might become necessary, he said.

Regarding the question of Bolshevism, Hitler stated that Germany was the bulwark which protected the west from the spread of bolshevism from Soviet Russia.

"In the United States, which geographically is far removed from Soviet Russia," he observed, "this may not be clearly understood everywhere."

However, he continued, it would be clear to everyone who considered Germany's situation—a country separated from Russia by only a short plane flight or a short train ride.

"Germany," he emphatically declared, "will continue to fight communism with whatever weapons communism itself selects.

Questioned on the reconstruction of the German army, Hitler declared:

"The purpose of the re-establishment of the German military forces is to protect Germany against attacks of foreign powers. Germany is a major power of the first rank and has the right to possess an army of the first rank."

Hitler was asked if Germany intended to continue seeking recovery of her colonies. He replied that Germany would never give up her colonial claims.

Missing Couple Hunted On Hawaiian Volcano

Hilo, Hawaii, Nov. 27 (AP).—Mr. and Mrs. Harold Lucas apparently became lost on the burning slopes of Mauna Loa volcano today while viewing the current eruption, and searchers went after them today.

Lucas, Y. M. C. A. secretary for this (Hawaii) island, went up the lava-scarred mountainside yesterday with Mrs. Lucas. They left their automobile at the 8,000-foot level to hike across the lava beds.

They spent the night on the seething volcano, apparently not far from the great slit in the mountain that has been spitting molten lava.

Failure of the couple to reappear today prompted the search.

Japanese Seize Key Rail Cities In North China

head of the newly formed east Hopei independent state, and certain changes in administration of north China.

Isogai said he had urged the Nanking government to adopt the following three-point program:

1. Cancellation of the new monetary program in so far as it affects north China.
2. A definite statement of China's attitude toward co-operation with Japan to stamp out communism in the north.
3. Dismissal of "powerful figures" responsible for discontent in the north.

Troop Trains Ready.

Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press.

Peiping, China, Nov. 25.—The Japanese army seized control of all railway arteries in Hopei Province and tonight held three trains in readiness.

Ostensibly, the trains were to rush troops to southern Hopei if needed to forestall any possible movement against this province by troops of the national Chinese government. An "independent" state was proclaimed in East Hopei Province Monday.

Nanking soldiers allegedly were concentrating in Honan Province. Chinese reports said a squadron of Japanese fighting planes is momentarily expected at Tientsin, where the Japanese are rushing a North China air base to completion.

The Japanese forces today occupied Changyimen, the junction of the Peiping-Suiyuan and the Peiping-Hankow railways, without resistance.

Troops of the emperor also seized the depot at Fengtai, a few miles east of here, throwing the Chinese populace into confusion. Officers explained later the troops were merely "holding exercises" and that the capture of Fengtai was part of a mock battle.

Traffic at the important junction point was held up for several hours.

Yin Ju-Keng, self-appointed chairman of a newly-formed independent state in East Hopei Province, hurled defiance at the Nanking Government, asserting no one dared to trespass the demilitarized zone and arrest him.

Dispatches had said the arrest of Yin Ju-Keng was one of the points in a Nanking program to halt the North China autonomy movement.

THANK YOU, AMERICA, for more than a Million cars in 1935

Once more, on this Thanksgiving Day, Chevrolet wishes to express its hearty appreciation of the friendship which America has given to this company and its products in 1935 and throughout the past quarter-century.

This year Chevrolet has two very good reasons for saying, "Thank you, America."

One reason is that people have bought so many Chevrolet cars that production for the year will reach 1,040,000.

And the other reason is that they have placed a record number of orders for new 1936 Chevrolets during the first few weeks these beautiful new cars have been on display.

This is a double gift of friendship, representing, as it does, one of the biggest years in all Chevrolet history, and one of the most enthusiastic welcomes that any new automobile has ever received.

Chevrolet is indeed happy to say, "Thank you, America," and to pledge continued adherence to the manufacturing and service policies which have won and held this friendship.

Loring Family Ready to Face 'Lie Detector'

Witness Describes Man and Woman in Quarrel Near Saddleback Ridge.

All of the immediate family of Corinna Loring, the Mount Rainier public stenographer who was murdered two days before the date set for her wedding, have expressed their willingness to submit to lie detector tests.

Their willingness to undergo the examination was evinced as detectives delved into stories from two witnesses indicating a man and a woman were quarreling in the vicinity of Saddleback Ridge on the night of November 4. This is the night that the girl's murder is believed to have occurred.

The stories of these two witnesses have been in possession of Lieut. Joseph Itzel, Baltimore homicide detectives, for more than two weeks.

Soon after the offer of Richard Tear, the 29-year-old hospital attendant, who was to have married Corinna, to submit to lie detector tests, the members of the dead girl's family also indicated their willingness.

Father, Mother Agree.

Those who have agreed to undergo the tests are: Mr. and Mrs. George A. Loring, the girl's parents; her brother, Frank; her sister, Mrs. Florence Lo Jacono, and her brother-in-law, Leo Lo Jacono.

All of them have expressed absolute confidence in the investigative ability of Lieut. Itzel and are willing to let the investigation go along according to his plans until it appears that no solution is probable.

The names of the witnesses who saw the couple quarreling on Twenty-eighth street near Cedar street on November 4 have not been disclosed by police.

The story of one witness, a man, is that he turned his auto into Twenty-eighth street from Cedar street and saw a man and woman on the easterly sidewalk. The couple appeared to be quarrelling, he said.

He said he mistook them for two persons in the neighborhood whom he knows. The woman he thought he recognized resembles Corinna Loring in physique, while the man was described as 'tall and dressed in dark clothes."

The autoist was about to talk with them when he realized his mistake and continued along Twenty-eighth street. The couple appeared to be heading south on Twenty-eighth street.

After the discovery of Corinna's body on Saddleback Ridge on November 9, the man witness discussed what he saw with a woman who was in the same block on that night.

This woman, according to the report, was sitting on a garden wall in front of a house at Twenty-eighth and Beech streets. The woman did not see a couple pass her on that night; the direction in which the couple was head, according to the man's story, was toward the Loring home.

Man Was Pleading.

The man witness has said that the man he saw appeared to be pleading with the woman to return with him to Saddleback Ridge. The fact that they did not pass the woman witness, who was between the Loring home and Saddleback Ridge, led to the belief that the couple had returned to the ridge.

The theory was constructed that Corinna had left her home with someone she knew; that she went to Saddleback Ridge in an auto with someone whom she trusted; that a quarrel occurred causing her to leave the car and start to her home on foot; that her companion persuaded her to return to the car with him, and that the assault and murder followed.

The stories of these witnesses, which place the incident between 9:20 and 9:30 p. m. on November 4, tie in with earlier accounts. Mrs. Mae Miles and Mrs. Harriet Whitehead, both of Mount Rainier, have said that they saw a sedan climb Saddleback Ridge between 9:05 and 9:15 p. m. on that night.

The car climbed the ridge from Cedar street, as if coming from the Loring home at 3110 Beech street.

The new account of witnesses is also substantiated by that of Berkeley Peters, who found the girl's wrist watch. When he discovered the watch the hands read 9:20 o'clock.

Detectives are still searching for a man who is accused of having made assaults on women and young girls in the vicinity of the Loring home, both before and after Corinna's disappearance.

He is now able to see sufficiently well to go unaided once more.

The operative process of keratoplasty, as performed by Dr. Castroviejo, consists of loosening and lifting the sclera (the white portion of the eyeball covering) and inserting in the damaged cornea a section of cornea from another eye, usually of the fetus.

First, however, the opaque and damaged section of the eye is cut out with a double-bladed knife, and a similarly cut new cornea inserted exactly. The loosened flaps of the sclera are then sewn over the "grafting" as a form of natural bandage.

Although keratoplasty was started in 1888, there has been discouragingly little success heretofore. The first case reported in medical literature was in 1913. In recent years, however, great strides have been taken, and in the current report of the dean of the Columbia School of Medicine, Dr. Castroviejo's activities are termed most "encouraging."

Wife-Beaters Forgiven for Thanksgiving

Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

Nearly 80 alleged wife-beaters were called before Judge Robert J. Dunne (right), in Chicago yesterday, and when their cases were heard most of them were forgiven by their wives and sent home to carve the family turkeys today. Here's a camera study of some of the accused husbands.

"much colder" and fair, the prediction states.

Those who like to watch the ponies thunder down the track will spend the afternoon at the Bowie races.

Outstanding among the religious observances will be the annual Pan-American mass in St. Patrick's Church, the union services of Baptist churches in National Baptist Memorial and the services in Washington Cathedral.

Roast beef and pork plus tasty side dishes will be the chief items on the menus as the city's private charitable organizations feed the poor.

The Volunteers of America, headed by Maj. H. M. Eroh, will serve dinner to between 1,200 and 1,500 unemployed at 11 a. m. at 471 Pennsylvania avenue.

More than 50 baskets will be sent to those described as "extreme" cases. Dinners will be delivered to the sick at their homes. The Volunteers also will feed colored needy in Shiloh Church, Ninth and and P streets.

Eight hundred or more persons will be guests at a Central Union Mission dinner at 11 a. m. Homer Rodeheaver, former associate of the late Billy Sunday, evangelist, will sing. The program will be broadcast.

John S. Bennett, mission superintendent, said the overflow would be served a dinner tomorrow in Jenner's Restaurant, Investment Building.

The mission yesterday distributed 350 baskets of food. The supply was exhausted, however, before all requests could be filled.

Fifty baskets of food were distributed to needy families last night at the annual charity ball and entertainment of the Women's Auxiliary, National Board of Trade, held in the Pythian Temple. About 500 men, women and children will take their Thanksgiving dinner today at the American Rescue Workers home at 413 Fourth street northwest.

Thanksgiving Day offerings at Washington Cathedral will be distributed to the poor by the Rev. George W. Dow, of the Episcopal Church Missions.

Extra sums were added to the checks sent by the Salvation Army to the 110 families for whom it provides.

Gospel Mission Plans.

About 600 persons will eat at the Gospel Mission, 214 John Marshall place, at 12 p. m. A special breakfast also will be served to men who spend the night in the mission.

Visiting will be permitted morning and afternoon at the District Jail. The 494 prisoners will sit down to a Thanksgiving dinner, including roast pork, sweet potatoes, cranberries, celery, apples, coffee and bread.

Justice Department employes had a half holiday yesterday because officials there did not know President Roosevelt, at Warm Springs, Ga., declined to grant the extra holiday in all departments because Thanksgiving always has been strictly a one-day holiday in the past. Other Government employes worked all day.

A Dutch-treat Thanksgiving dinner for strangers who dislike being alone on such an occasion will be held at 7 p. m. in the Shoreham Hotel.

Dr. Grace A. Thompson originated the plan last year for the benefit of both single persons and married couples from out of town. The guests will assemble in the Garbo room to be introduced to each other by Mrs. Caroline Daue, the toastmistress. Reservations may be made through "Robert" at the Shoreham.

ever, proudly said her Joe now had a job and wasn't kicking her in the ear any more. He was discharged.

Mrs. Gussie Shue wasn't even in court but—paragon of trust—allowed her William to tell it himself that she was satisfied with his behavior.

"'Is your wife a fast runner?" asked the court recalling Shue had chased her with a butcher knife.

"You bet" said the chastened spouse, "even if she does weigh 250 pounds."

Soldier to Die As Auto Slayer Of Girl Cyclist

British 'Terror Man' Accused of Trying to Run Over 3 Other Women.

By the Associated Press.

Winchester, England, Nov. 27.—A British soldier was sentenced to death upon his conviction today on one of the strangest murder charges on record in England, that of running down a girl cyclist while driving a stolen automobile.

Arthur Charles Mortimer, called the "Terror Man," with trembling lips heard the foreman of the jury declare him guilty of the murder of Mrs. Phyllis Mary Oakes, beautiful private secretary of a well-known novelist. Authorities said he attempted to kill three other girls in the same manner.

The 6-foot Mortimer is a lance corporal, stationed at Aldershot Barracks.

He was convicted of killing Mrs. Oakes by deliberately running her down August 8 in a stolen car. Mrs. Oakes was dragged 40 yards, entangled in her bicycle. She died three days later, on the eve of her twenty-first birthday.

Shortly afterward Mortimer was arrested.

The defense contended that even if the jury was satisfied the soldier drove the car which killed Mrs. Oakes, they should regard him as an epileptic.

His father, George Mortimer, testified his son had been subject to fits ever since he fell in a quarry and injured his head when he was 12. Later he was adjudged insane and spent six months in an asylum.

The death of Mrs. Oakes shocked all of England. She was an accomplished linguist and shortly before the accident had written a poem dealing with "the last farewell." The day before she died she named it—"Smile."

Chief to Dine at Camp.

Robert Fechner, emergency conservation director, said yesterday he will have Thangsgiving dinner at the CCC camp at Sperryville, Va., according to the Associated Press. The invitation was extended by Capt. T. F. Watts, commander of the camp.

Husband Slays Alleged Rival, Ill in Hospital

Unemployed Father Declares Electrician, 39, 'Broke Up Home.'

By the Associated Press.

New Orleans, Nov. 27.—A man who charged "he broke up my home" entered a hospital room here today and shot to death the 39-year-old father of two daughters who was recovering from an operation.

The victim was Harold Bourg, an electrician employed at the Illinois Central Hospital, where the shooting occurred.

A man booked as Louis Sapp, 42, also married and the father of one child, surrendered to hospital authorities and was ordered held by District Attorney Charles A. Byrne on a charge of murder.

"He went to my home and was with my wife and child while I was out looking for work," the district attorney quoted the man as saying. "I am the man who did the shooting and I'm glad I did it."

Although witnesses said the man shouted his accusation at Bourg as he entered the room, the prisoner said he did not speak to Bourg, who was operated on November 6 for appendicitis.

Sapp was taken into custody by a special officer, who turned him over to city police. District Attorney Byrne said the prisoner told him he met Bourg in 1931 while he was working on the new $5,000,000 Statehouse at Baton Rouge.

Letters recovered by officers from the hospital cot hinted at a love entanglement.

One of them, dated November 23, began "Dear Harold" and expressed regret that the writer could not see him, since she had "some very good news that you would have been glad to hear."

"Louis has agreed to give me a divorce so we can be married," the letter read, "for he has been convinced that I no longer love him, but love you * * *.

"I am sure he means what he says and bears no grudge against you. It will be all right for you to come, as I can assure you that you are in no danger of bodily harm from him."

In another letter, the writer of which the police said evidently was a man, the author promised to "take my family with me and move away from New Orleans" and "make sure I never run across her again."

A third letter addressed to "Dear Harold" read:

"After thinking it over I realize our affair was a mistake and I love Louis best. I have confessed to him and the best you can do is to make an appointment with him."

This letter was signed "Agnes."

Yale Professor Dies.

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 27 (AP). A stroke of apoplexy caused the death today of Edwin Cassius Taylor, 61, Street professor of painting and design in the Yale School of Fine Arts.

He had been a member of the art school faculty since 1908.

10 More Shares Of Gas Trust Placed on Sale

Washington & Suburban Cos. Give Written Notice to P. U. C.

Notice of sale of another ten shares of beneficial interest in the common law trust which owns the Washington & Suburban Companies, which, in turn control the Washington Gas Light Co. and its subsidiaries, was given the Public Utilities Commission yesterday by Arthur H. Dean, of Sullivan & Cromwell, New York law firm, representing the trust.

The additional shares are to be sold at auction by Public Utilities Associates, Inc., which holds 600 shares.

All his law firm knows about the recent sale of 1,800 shares of beneficial interest by the General Investment Corporation and the United Founders Corporation was what was published in the newspapers, Mr. Dean said in another letter to the commission. The letter was in reply to one from the commission asking for the true identity of the purchasers of the 1,800 shares, which were bought by Outwater & Wells, of Jersey City, for an unnamed client.

Information concerning details of the formation of the American General Corporation, newly formed to bring into one organization eight investment companies, may throw light on the shifting of interest in the local utility, commission officials said. L. H. Seagrave, who has been president of the United Founders Corporation and of the American Founders Corporation, is chairman of the board of directors of the new corporation, which is said to have assets of $50,000,000 at market prices.

Local commission officials are anxious to determine whether there is viglation of the La Follette anti-merger law.

Grayson Awaits Trial.

Scheduled for trial soon is John Cooke Grayson, who at one time held a high position in the office of the national bank examiner, and who is charged with tipping off Stunz when the bank examiners were to visit the bank.

Grayson, now ill at his Charlottesville, Va., home, has had his trial postponed six times because of ill health. Justice Daniel W. O'Donoghue, however, ruled he must stand trial, although his physician said he would endanger his life by facing charges now. He is due to come up early next month.

Man Aids Son Charged With Slaying Mother

Milwaukee, Nov. 27 (AP).—The father of Alvin Wollenzein, who is charged with beating his mother to death, today testified the young man was abused by his mother and treated as an unwanted child.

The State charges Wollenzein struck his mother on three successive nights because she failed to prepare his supper. Prosecutors contend her death on October 31 resulted from the blows.

Fred Wollenzein testified that his wife, from whom he was divorced four years ago, experienced great difficulties at Alvin's birth, 29 years ago, was made ill as a result, and came to blame her son for her troubles.

Coast Guards Holiday Ruined by Rum Runners

Boston, Nov. 27 (AP).—Presence of a large force of alcohol smugglers off the coast tonight ended hopes of the Coast Guard and customs services for a Thanksgiving Day holiday.

About half a dozen freighters and numerous smaller contact craft were reported hove to 75 to 100 miles off the New England coast waiting an opportunity to land illicit cargoes.

Shore leaves will be denied members of the Coast Guard and all hands will remain on duty in both sea and air service.

Grief for Wife Causes Suicide Of Radio Man

WMAL Official Shoots Self 5 Weeks After Death of Spouse.

Five weeks of grief and constant brooding over the death of his wife ended yesterday for Walter A. Parks, 38, program engineer at Radio Station WMAL.

He lay on a divan in the living room of his home, 4008 Twentieth street northeast, and shot himself through the heart with a .45-caliber revolver. He died before the arrival of a Casualty Hospital physician.

Several hours before the tragedy, neighbors saw Parks walking near his home. He appeared distraught and kept his eyes lowered as he strolled along, they reported.

Talks with Mother.

He returned home and talked for some time with his mother, Mrs. Natalie Parks, and an aunt, Miss Frances Pollock. The mother and aunt were in the kitchen. Parks left them and went into the living room.

A few moments later, a shot echoed through the house. Mrs. Parks and Miss Pollock ran into the room and found him lying on the divan, a revolver on the floor. He was unconscious and died before neighbors and police could be summoned.

Mrs. Parks and Miss Pollock were prostrated. Capt. Sidney J. Marks, of the Eleventh Precinct, took charge of the investigation. He said Parks killed himself with a revolver used during his service in the Navy during the World War.

At Station Four Years.

Parks has been associated with WMAL for four years. Although shocked at news of Parks' death, other radio workers declared "they had been expecting something to happen." The engineer, they said, had been so despondent during the past week that on several occasions he was unable to work.

Since the death of his wife, Mrs. Helen Parks, five weeks ago, Parks "just didn't seem to care what happened," a fellow worker said.

In addition to other worries, he was faced with the illness of his aged father, who recently fell and suffered a fractured hip.

During the war Parks served with the Navy Aviation Corps. He had been interested in radio and its development since his youth.

Iowan, 78, Collapses On Receiving Pension

Des Moines, Iowa, Nov. 27 (AP). Since September Lewis B. Canfield 78, and his wife, 72, had been patiently awaiting their State old-age pension checks, existing, she said, on potatoes and cornmeal. Yesterday, however, was their day of days. The postman handed Canfield four of the long anticipated checks. The excitement was too much. Canfield collapsed.

Physicians said today there was little chance he ever would walk or talk again.

London Parley Facing Threat Of Naval Race

Four Powers Demand More Tonnage; U. S. Delegates Leave Tomorrow.

By the Associated Press.

A conviction that intense rivalry among sea powers has doomed the London naval conference to a rough and possibly dangerous voyage is growing among naval authorities.

As the American delegation made last minute preparations to sail tomorrow, naval experts summarized these demands as threatening to wreck the conference and launch a naval construction race:

1. Japan, now limited to the short end of the existing 5-5-3 ratio demands a navy equal to those of Great Britain and the United States.
2. France insists upon a navy equal to the combined naval strength of Germany and Italy.
3. Italy demands the right to build a navy equal to France.
4. Great Britain desires 20 more cruisers than now authorized by the treaties, and would like to build 50,000 tons of destroyers over pact limits.

U. S. Standing Alone.

Against these projected programs, naval authorities say, only the United States had announced a policy opposed to increasing naval tonnages.

Dislocation of existing ratios and changes in comparative strength, in the opinion of experts here, would serve only to accelerate a vicious circle of competitive building and pyramid naval tonnage and rivalries.

As diagrammed by naval authorities freedom to construct ships of any size and the greater power demanded by the other signatories of the limitations pacts—unless some continuing agreement is reached—might generate an armament race along these lines:

1. Japan, with its eye on the American fleet, would begin building sufficient new ships to equal the United States.
2. The United States, which through Secretary Swanson has declared a policy of a "navy second to none," would be forced to build more and more new warships to maintain superiority over Japan.

British Would Join Race.

3. The British, whose policy has called for a navy equal to that of any other power, would join in the race to retain parity with the United States and Japan.
4. Italy would construct new ships of sufficient tonnage to overtake the now superior French navy.
5. The French, insisting upon a Navy equal to Italy's plus Germany's, would be forced to speed its construction program, which, in turn, would inspire the Italians to more and better warships.
6. Since, by the Anglo-German naval agreement, Germany is permitted to maintain a fleet 35 per cent the strength of the British, any increase in British tonnage would allow the Germans to increase their sea power and supply a new spur to France.
7. Soviet Russia, now engaged in building up a navy, would be inspired to increased construction, especially of submarines, if the Japanese and German navies continued to expand and increase in power.

While pessimistic, some naval authorities believe the utter impossibility of the situation created by overlapping rivalries—if no agreement is reached—may provide the key to a successful solution.

80 Teachers Besiege St. Paul WPA Office

St. Paul, Nov. 27 (AP).—Eighty teachers invaded the office of Victor Christgau, State works progress administrator, today, announcing their intention of remaining until they received a definite answer on starting a State-wide WPA educational project.

The program awaits Washington approval. The teachers, members of Twin Cities branches of the Minnesota Emergency Teachers Association, formerly taught under the Emergency Relief Administration. Many attended a special institute to prepare themselves for the WPA educational program. Christgau promised efforts to expedite approval of the program.

At lunch time, the teachers took up a collection of $22.40 for lunch money, from among workers in the WPA office.

For What We Have Received.

There are those who ask what, today, the United States, as a Nation, has to be thankful for. The cynics have their case. The times are hard. Though conditions are improving, they are improving slowly. Nor is the future rosy with promise of great betterment "just around the corner."

But 314 years ago, when the first Thanksgiving Day dawned on America, there were those who asked what their fellow-Pilgrims had received, as a colony, to justify thanks—and these cynics had their case also. Nearly a year had passed since the landing on the Rock. From a stingy soil, the pious settlers had wrested just enough produce to prolong their bitter struggle through another winter. And the answer was, in effect: "We are thankful because we have garnered enough to keep on trying."

It is said the first American day of thanksgiving was observed in a spirit of contrition rather than exuberance: Certainly Thanksgiving Day has gradually become a festival of restrained rejoicing. The change was born of the spirit of those New England forefathers, the spirit of all our pioneers, who properly appreciated the opportunity, limited only by conditions of their own creation, to continue their fight for their ideals.

That spirit and that appreciation have not disappeared from among the pioneers' descendants and their fellow-countrymen. And no shortcoming in material reasons for thanksgiving would justify a spirit of cynicism so long as the will to overcome obstacles is still abroad upon this peculiarly American holiday.

France At The Crossroads.

France is in the midst of one of those frequently recurring crises which present a major challenge to the government in power. The imperfections of her political system are largely responsible for the inability of successive ministries to secure support for sound financial policies, thereby assuring the stability of the franc and an end to the flight of capital from the country.

Abortive efforts to achieve a balanced budget testify to the ineffectiveness of a parliamentary system based upon a constantly shifting alignment of numerous partisan groups. Last June, therefore, the French Chamber and the Senate acknowledged their impotence by empowering Premier Laval to issue decrees of most drastic character, with a view of balancing the budget and saving the franc. His temporary reign as financial dictator expired at the end of October, and Parliament assembles today in an atmosphere charged with political anxiety and financial uncertainty.

A firm hand is needed to carry out a program of retrenchment entailing cuts in the salaries of government employes, and reductions in domestic prices which have a depressing effect upon business activity. Premier Laval has exercised vigorously the extraordinary powers conferred upon him and has succeeded in postponing the crisis that threatened to bring about the downfall of the franc last summer. But a new budget deadlock has now developed and political disturbances have added to the uncertainties of the financial outlook.

It is, of course, possible that the agitation carried on by Fascist and other anti-parliamentary groups, menacing not merely the government in power but also republican institutions, will win effective support for Premier Laval in his battle to save the franc. His defeat on this issue would precipitate a financial crisis that might well dismay a successor called upon to deal at the same time with disaffected political elements and to handle the troubled international situation created by Italian aggression.

With exports falling under the pressure of competition from countries with devalued currencies, with unemployment above the level of a year ago, with industry marking time, and public revenues shrinking, the French are under a great temptation to follow the example of other countries and again devalue their currency. Even if such devaluation were undertaken deliberately, however, it is doubtful whether it would benefit the country, although it might bring about a temporary speculative upturn in prices and in business.

Devaluation—precipitated by a political overthrow of the Laval government, under conditions creating panic fears for the future of the franc—would certainly be most unfortunate both for France and the rest of the world. Unless British and American prices rise very rapidly, it seems more than probable that eventually the franc will have to be devalued. But devaluation in advance of an international agreement fixing the relative values of the dollar and the pound would aggravate existing currency disorders without encouraging conclusion of the much-needed general stabilization accord.

Feeling Our Way.

The great majority of Americans recognize and appreciate the skill with which the Department of State is feeling its way amid the pitfalls of the European crisis. Inevitably there are criticisms, though to a large extent these are so mutually contradictory as to cancel out in net effect. But when the enormous difficulties which confront the Administration in this problem are understood it is the careful development of the program that stands out, now that the second month of the war in Ethiopia is drawing to its close.

Part of this success is undoubtedly due to the frankness with which Secretary Hull has explained his steps while taking them. This candor is not merely in line with the ideal conduct of diplomacy in a democracy. It should also reassure any who still believe that Congress should attempt to give detailed advance instructions for the conduct of our foreign policy, regardless of the undisclosed reefs and unpredictable storms which may at any time make a change of course imperative if the safety of the ship of state is to be preserved. If there was ever any case for rigid mandatory legislation on neutrality, it has been greatly weakened by Mr. Hull's obvious desire to explain at every step just why he is doing what he is doing.

Everyone agrees that the primary purpose of our foreign policy now is to keep the United States out of war. It is only after acceptance of that basic thesis that divergent opinions arise. In the opinion of the Department of State, clearly expressed on numerous occasions in the past two months, the objective can best be obtained by discouraging assistance to either of the present belligerents. This would be the common-sense attitude even if it were not defined for the Administration by existing neutrality legislation.

On the way in which assistance to belligerents should be discouraged opinions differ, and it is evidently in this field that the hardest and most objective thinking is now necessary. The problem is not the easier because in this vital matter neither clear-cut precedent nor adequate legislative authorization exists. There is as a guide, however, the general foreign policy of the Nation since the World War. This obviously precludes any national action which would interfere with the collective efforts of other nations to persuade an aggressor state to conclude a negotiated peace. The Kellogg Pact alone, in the words of Secretary Hull on October 26, makes the United States sympathetic to "the individual or concerted efforts of other nations to preserve peace or to localize and shorten the duration of war."

The Department of State, dissatisfied with the efficacy and fairness of moral suasion to stop shipments of basic munitions to belligerents, is clearly endeavoring to find a more desirable basis of action in this field. It is suggested that this may be found in establishing export quotas which would effectively curtail that proportion of shipments called for by war demands. Such a step would not be as simple as it looks—nothing is, in the development of a neutrality policy—but it is the type of discretionary power which Congress must show itself willing to grant the Administration if it really wants neutrality to be preserved.

In the main, experience is rapidly clarifying the proper function of Congress in the establishment of a workable neutrality policy. The Legislature must state that objective clearly; specify the fields in which it is willing to permit governmental intervention to attain the end sought, and then leave the application of this well-defined policy in the hands of the Department of State. If such flexibility is denied, hopes of successful neutrality in any but a minor foreign war will be exceedingly faint.

Georgetown's Step Forward.

Standards of legal training in the United States are steadily advancing. With more and more students aspiring to become attorneys, the foremost law schools have raised their entrance requirements as a means of selecting only those who are best qualified to succeed in that exacting profession. The result is a notable improvement in the character of lawyers these schools are turning out.

The decision of Georgetown University to admit to its law school only students holding a college degree will be noted, therefore, with a great deal of satisfaction. That institution has not suddenly revolutionized its standards. Two-thirds of its students are already graduates of recognized colleges and universities. The new policy is largely a ratification of measures previously taken to place the Georgetown Law School on a par with America's foremost institutions of legal training.

From many angles this action is highly desirable. It will tend to restrict the number of students entering an overcrowded profession, by eliminating those who would do better in some other calling. Law will be taught to more mature groups, already prepared to understand the basic problems of jurisprudence. And legal training will be superimposed on a broader cultural background, which is of particular importance for the legal profession.

Since our legislative bodies are heavily weighted with lawyers, and the courts are, of course, entirely controlled by them, this profession wields a tremendous influence over the law, whether State or national. In this age, when the adjustment of legal concepts to changing social and economic conditions has become so vitally important, the proper training of prospective lawyers becomes a matter of great public concern. Far more than mere competence in handling cases in court is involved in the requirements that students seeking admittance to the legal fraternity must begin by broadening their intellectual and cultural background.

The extent to which this higher standard will actually influence the legal profession depends upon the generality of its adoption. When one university takes such a step, however, its example usually serves as a cogent stimulus to other high-grade institutions whose chief interest is enlightened public service. In consequence, Georgetown Law School is entitled to public commendation for its leadership, as well as to warm congratulations from the legal profession.

To Save The Olympic Idea.

Ernest Lee Jahncke has placed the discussion of American participation in the 1936 Olympic games at Berlin on the plane where it belongs. He asks American athletes to withdraw from the contest so that "the Olympic idea can be saved." To permit this classic tournament to be exploited by the Nazis for their own glorification, he rightly believes, would be a far greater blow to international athletics than the elimination of the eleventh Olympiad next year.

As a member of the international Olympic committee, Mr. Jahncke is thoroughly familiar with the traditional atmosphere in which these athletic events have always been conducted. His protest against the Nazi departure from that spirit of fair play is the more emphatic because it comes from one who is enthusiastically devoted to the "Olympic idea." But the impressiveness of his stand is magnified even more by the fact that Mr. Jahncke is of German descent. His present attitude grows out of his love for "the Germany that was and which, I pray, will some day be again."

The issue is far greater than Nazi discrimination against Jewish athletes, even though that is a gross distortion of the principles on which these contests are based. Beyond that, as Mr. Jahncke says, "the German sports authorities have violated and are continuing to violate every requirement of fair play in the conduct of sports in Germany * * * and are exploiting the games for the political and financial profit of the Nazi regime." It is the nature of the present German government that this should be so.

Our co-operation in making the games a success under these conditions would not only place American participants in a false position. It would also tend to undermine the wholly admirable institution which has been developed for the promotion of athletics and sportsmanship on an international scale. For, if Germany is permitted to pervert the Olympics into a Nazi festival, the games will never recover from the precedent thus established.

Herein lies the basic weakness of the argument for participation. Assuming that perpetuation of the Olympic idea is the chief objective, it is idle to suppose that it can be achieved by compromises which would destroy the very principles out of which that idea grew. Mr. Jahncke has done well to sweep away the lesser issues and the narrow appeals to prejudice. He has posed the problem in the light of fundamentals which cannot be glossed over.

Pilgrim's Progress.

Authors and publishers have taken up racketeering often enough before this, but to find a racketeer seriously interested in the less profitable business of literature is something of a sensation. It is no wonder, therefore, that a national weekly magazine, having learned of Al Capone's efforts at authorship in Alcatraz, asked immediately for the privilege of reading his work.

Capone has plenty of predecessors in the business of writing in prison. He might imitate or improve on John Bunyan, who, while in jail, compiled a work that turned out to be a surprising best seller. The personal sins which Bunyan wrote about would not satisfy the exacting demands of readers of the modern confession magazines. It is generally assumed that Capone has some advantage over Bunyan in this respect. If Capone's tastes are lyrical rather than allegorical, Oscar Wilde might serve as a model, though the beer baron might consider the author of "Reading Gaol" intolerably dilettante in his treatment of prison life.

There were stories about India before Kipling, and about the frontier before Mark Twain and Bret Harte. Capone should not be discouraged by the cinema's prior exposition of life in gangland. Even under the WPA, few authors have his opportunity of living in seclusion, at the Government's expense, while waiting for inspiration.

Liquor Not the Main Attraction.

From the Louisville Courier-Journal.

Americans as a whole, and American tourists in particular, are not mere booze guzzlers. Department of Commerce figures prove that. Their trips to Canada and Mexico during prohibition were not solely, or principally, for the purpose of "tanking up." During 1934, the first full year of repeal in the United States, tourists from the United States spent $19,000,000 more in Canada than they did in 1933, the last year of prohibition, and $13,000,000 more in Mexico than during the year before. Apparently both Canada and Mexico have something to offer besides liquor.

This much certainly is true: American tourists may be absolved from the thoughtless charge made by many that their principal object in going to Canada was to buy alcoholic beverages. Indeed, it was far harder to obtain them under the Canadian system of regulation last year than in most parts of the United States.

The Indians are always complaining about conditions under which they live. It seems that these queer people can never learn to adapt themselves to this country.

The Post welcomes letters from its readers. All communications must be signed with the writer's name and address. Upon publication initials or pen names will be used if requested. Letters are subject to condensation, and in no case should they exceed 250 words.

Townsend Fallacy.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The fallacy in the Townsend plan is that there just isn't enough productive capacity and technological knowledge in this Nation to allow everyone over 60 to enjoy the luxuries and comforts which would be made possible through a pension of $200 per month, and at the same time provide a reasonably good standard of living for the remainder of the population.

Wealth production at the highest maximum now possible could be only slightly above that of the '20s, when there was not nearly enough produced to support the elderly in luxury and at the same time provide a good living standard for the remainder of the people.

An Indictment.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Now comes the statement on behalf of the Community Chest that there will be starving in the District this winter unless last year's quota is exceeded by 20 per cent.

Starving in the District—or anywhere—after 33 months of great power, unlimited funds and no obstacles in the way is a very grave indictment of this Administration—the blackest kind of a mark—indicating incompetence, untrustworthiness, and politics of the worst kind. But perhaps "we planned it that way." Anyone can spend money but to spend it wisely and well requires something that is not to be found in this Administration.

Expurgation Will Be Needed.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Teachers must be very careful and black spot any reference, should it ever occur, to Plato, More, Robert Owen and their writings, as well as Karl Marx and his associates. All references to the economic teachings of Christ, His economic mode of living, and that of the early Christians, must be carefully avoided, and no questions answered.

The Encyclopedia Britannica in its edition of 1911 will have to be mutilated where its article under communism appears, as it is largely devoted to the history and forms of early communistic societies in the United States. It defines communism as "the name loosely given to schemes of social organizations depending on the abolition of private property and its absorption into the property of a community as such . . . communistic schemes have been advocated in almost every age and country, and have to be distinguished from mere anarchism or from the selfish desire to transfer other people's property into one's own pocket . . . As a theory it has inspired not only some of the finest characters in history, but also much of the gradual evolution of economic organization." Any newspaper which reprints the above will need to be clipped before it is permitted in the public school.

There is no law as yet to forbid teachers explaining the nature and workings of Fascism, or the advocacy of the Bill of Rights.

"Why Not Hoover?"

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Under date of November 20, Raymond Clapper, in his column, "Between You and Me," concludes that former President Hoover, by his address delivered in New York City, has made himself a candidate for the Republican nomination for the Presidency next year. Why shouldn't Mr. Hoover be a candidate?

Of those mentioned for the nomination, Mr. Hoover alone stands out as a real national figure. His term as President fits him for the job, and he will profit by that experience.

His defeat in 1932 was not astounding when the circumstances and conditions that then existed are properly considered. An analysis of the vote in 1932 will disclose that his defeat was not so great after all. With the tremendous independent vote that now exists in this country, and with the "New Deal" strictly on the spot, it would seem possible and even quite probable for several million voters to change their minds in 1936; and if Mr. Hoover is sincerely desirous of the nomination he can secure it if he presses the advantage that he now possesses. Rogers Fund Suggestion.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: No doubt you have received numerous suggestions concerning the form the proposed memorial to Will Rogers will take. It seems to be the universal opinion that the memorial fund will be dedicated to work for humanity. It therefore seems appropriate for our organization to suggest that a portion of the proceeds be used in bettering the conditions of millions of hard-of-hearing children.

The Edith Maxwell Case.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Anent the Edith Maxwell decision, I wish to approve and add my own word to those letters already published. While not so old as one of today's correspondents, nevertheless, I am no youngster with any radical modern ideas.

I am, however, a firm believer in justice, and anyone not completely blinded by some peculiar idea of parental domination can readily see at a glance that the girl did not get justice. It seems to me that the strongest possible verdict, if tempered with even a little justice, would have been involuntary manslaughter. Anyone with a little spirit of understanding can see that she had no intention of doing anything more than stopping a drunken brute for a moment to enable her to escape and save her own life. In fact, had I been on the jury, I feel confident that I should have held out for an accidental death verdict.

Surely there must be some attorney in this fair city who has a sense of justice sufficient that he will donate his services if we, who agree with him, will donate sufficient to cover his actual expenses to defend this girl, who, no doubt, must be stunned and completely dumbfounded at such an unjust verdict and equally severe sentence.

I shall be delighted to contribute $1 toward the expense of securing a new trial and a change of venue for Edith Maxwell. Surely there are several hundred others who would do the same, thus covering the actual expenses for some attorney to take the case.

I am almost ashamed to admit being a resident of the great State of Virginia, if such injustice is to be permitted within her courts; especially if I thought for an instant that it represented the State's attitude as a whole. I feel sure, though, that it does not. L. TURNER.
Clarendon, Nov. 25.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: With reference to "The Verdict On Edith Maxwell," I would like to offer my observations, which will not altogether be in agreement with either Evelyn D. Ward, "A Subscriber" or "Justice." Their sympathies seem to be altogether with the girl who has just been sentenced to 25 years for the murder of her father, and think outsiders should interest themselves to the extent of their support and help to get her out of trouble. I cannot see it that way.

If I cannot hear the testimony and see the witnesses and get a close-up view of the details of a trial, I am in no position to pass judgment on a verdict. According to newspaper report—all the information I have of the case—and I dare say that's the same information your other three writers had—there were two principal witnesses who testified that Trigg Maxwell had threatened his daughter with punishment for her disregard of his authority in his own house and was approaching her threateningly when the fight occurred that resulted in his death. Those two witnesses were the defendant herself, and her mother. Now two other witnesses, her girl friends and school mates, testified that they had often heard her say that "she could kill her father and could laugh over his dead body" and such other remarks.

Now, here's a point that I consider: Edith Maxwell was represented as being a "school teacher" having gone outside her lifetime environments to obtain an education, and learn the "ways of life" outside her reputed "mountain civilization" and had become disgusted with the ignorant and backward lives of the mountaineers. She knew the habits of her people; she knew their narrow peculiarities, their "laws" and their "codes" and the traditions of mountaineers that they would kill or be killed in defense of them. She was 21. She had "tasted civilization" outside the Trail of the Lonsome Pine. If she liked that better why didn't she leave the replusive mountain retreats.

The jury who tried her heard the evidence and knew the circumstances, so I shall not tell them that they were wrong in convicting her. By the same token, had they acquitted her I would not have criticized them. All jurors are sworn to render their verdicts according to the law and evidence, and having sat on many juries myself and rendered some unpopular verdicts, I know it is no easy job to arrive at a verdict. Verily, the job of a juror is no easy one, and I think people should be very careful in criticizing a verdict that is reached after 12 minds have deliberated on the evidence. For me to say that a jury in some distant State or county that I have never been to should be disgraced for rendering a certain verdict is enough to cause people to wonder if I would not disregard my oath in case I should be called to serve. So, I shall not contribute one penny to her defense fund nor ask anyone else to. That's a matter for the community involved to settle.

The Post Impressionist

Hungary And The Sanctions

Post Office, Thanksgiving Day.

THE excessively annoying Mr. Clarke M. Johnson is after us again.

Lately, he asked us a question egging this Column to a disputatious pronouncement upon the established Church of Abyssinia, the Copts of Egypt and the Monophysite heresy. Now he dares us to commit ourselves to the tempestuous sea of international politics. He asks why Hungary refused to join 52 member states of the League of Nations in their sanctions against Italy.

We're going to tell him what our friend Mr. Ferenc Herczeg says was the reason, anyhow.

But first let us expose the malice of correspondent Johnson.

One day last week, the Post-Impressionist modestly admitted that he spoke enough Hungarian to make himself understood in the newer portions of Rumania and now and then read a Hungarian newspaper. So the doubting Mr. Johnson writes us:

"If you are really at ease in the press of that country, why don't you translate from it some clear statement of the Hungarian government's recent action at Geneva? Americans, loving Hungary, have been amazed by that action . . . Do dig up and translate some such elucidation for your puzzled public—or else, admitting that you can't read the language after all, give us your own ideas on the subject."

Just to show Mr. Johnson that we do indeed read the Hungarian press, we have selected a recent issue of Pesti Hirlap, of (as you suspect) Budapest, and shall read him a few extracts from its front-page article by the distinguished Herczeg.

Herczeg says:

"The political outlook of the Hungarian nation has for many years been directed by a desire for the alteration of the peace treaty of the Trianon . . . the most merciless of all the treaties which concluded the World War. It has . . . forced about 4,000,000 pure Hungarians to live under alien rule. Out of these, approximately 1,500,000 are in immediate territorial contact with post-war Hungary." Germany lost 1 German-speaking citizen in 20; Hungary lost 7 in 20 Hungarian-speaking citizens."

Herczeg underlines the fact that, while Hungary was compelled to disarm, the surrounding Succession States increased their armaments. "The treaty then forced such untenable frontiers upon Hungary that the Hungarians are in a constant state of insecurity." Finally, these new neighbors have made anti-Hungarian economic warfare "a constant feature of their policy; this is a source of unspeakable misery." In the outside world, Italy alone has supported Hungary's demand for peaceful "reparations of these injustices . . .

"It is true that the Hungarians are oppressed by the knowledge that they have come into conflict with the spirit for which the League of Nations stands. The Hungarians recognize and support the ideal aims of the League—know that the peace of the Danubian states can stand firm only when those ideals are victorious." Hungary "stands in need of the League's protection"—but to join in "unfriendly steps toward Italy, even if self-interest demand the contrary;" that is forbidden "by moral considerations of which there can be no discussion."

There is a part of what Mr. Herczeg says. And if you doubt us, Mr. Johnson, we'll admit that the Pesti Hirlap printed the article in English.

So Hungary's case rests largely on the following points:

Hungary has been deprived of three-quarters of her territory, two-thirds of her population.

She is disarmed.

She is encircled by nations that are both inimical to her and stronger than she is—because they have secured what was taken from Hungary.

Hungary asks, and for 15 years has been asking, a revision of that treaty which created these conditions—a revision by peaceful means, through the League and the application of the Nineteenth Article of the League's Covenant;

(a) That, with their lands, pure-blooded Hungarians living in blocks adjacent to post-war Hungary should be returned to Hungary through League action.

(b) That the citizens of all other territory once belonging to Hungary be allowed to decide their nationality, and that of the territory they inhabit, by plebiscite.

However, in the League and out of it, only one great power has espoused these demands: Italy.

Therefore, it is not alone politically impossible—it is even more morally impossible—for Hungary to play the ingrate by joining in sanctions against Italy.

That, we repeat, is the Hungarian case as Mr. Herczeg presents it. And, dear Mr. Johnson, it strikes the Post Impressionist as a case well presented.

Fair Enough

Warships Through A Window.

Gibraltar, Nov. 27.

GREAT BRITAIN'S mighty determination to fight for the peace of the world which is seriously threatened by the great humanitarian mission of "Abraham Lincoln" Mussolini to free the Ethiopian slaves, has been rattling the windows of the Rock Hotel all morning.

Tied up inside the breakwater, about half a mile from the window at which your correspondent sits, is the pride of the British navy, the Hood, the biggest warship in the world. There's a small force of men over the side standing on a float painting and lengthening the streak of red lead just above her water line.

Three cruisers went out to sea yesterday and were later observed from a position about half way up the Rock running off a play like a varsity backfield at practice on the night before the big game. Faintly visible in the distance, they would huddle, then separate—off on individual assignments laid down in the problem as their coach looked on.

• • • •

FORWARD of the Hood is the gray mother ship with two submarines nestling at her side like pups and about 10,000 feet up against a cotton sky is a seaplane with long targets, taking a turn. There is a quick spit of fire from the Hood's peace gun, followed by a great loving boom. A dozen times in quick succession the peace gun flames and roars and now from the sky where missives are bursting into fluffy bolls there is heard the distant thump of a shell.

The Christmas stocking rides along unscathed. If the target had been an Italian bomber, it would have got through Gibraltar so far as the Hood and Renown were concerned. Just now another peace ship is coming in from outside. She has two turrets just forward of the bridge and two in the stern.

Yesterday about noon the management of the Rock Hotel passed the word along to guests to leave open the full-length glass doors leading onto the balconies, which afford a fine view of the great pageant of peace, because the soldiers were going to try out a new gun.

About 3 o'clock there was a mighty thump which popped eardrums and rattled glasses on the bathroom shelf but no noise followed. But then this gun is over on the Mediterranean side and up near the top of the Rock in the private and confidential zone of the fortress where no strangers, except probably Italian, German, Japanese and American intelligence operatives ever penetrate. So the sound probably bounced off the mountain and out to sea.

• • • •

THERE'S an English bank and insurance agency in the narrow main street of the town down at the sea level. A sign in the window offers war and bombardment insurance, yet the man behind the counter says they aren't writing much insurance nowadays. Not that peace threatens. But everybody who needs insurance has bought it by now at the rate of two shillings for a hundred pounds, which is in the ratio of one to a thousand. All the little shops are insured.

The insurance agency stands face to face across the street from the office of the Italian Line, whose big ship Rex, the pride of the Italian nation and their most expensive headache next to the great emancipation project of "Abraham Lincoln" Mussolini, is coming through tomorrow on her way home from New York.

You may be sure that the Italian clerks are all members in good standing of the Fascist Party. Thus you may be sure that when the Rex arrives in Naples they will convey word that the Hood and Renown couldn't hit the aerial target with about 100 rounds and further word about the big new gun up on the far side of the rock. Conditions being as they are and British espionage what it is, the Italian clerks in the steamship office doubtless have flycops on them twenty-four hours a day. But they doubtless know this and walk warily.

THE British sailors and marines, who also walk the streets in liberty parties and patrols, are either enormous men whose uniforms fit them as tight as the skin on a fat apple, or cockney men not much under 6 feet, who would be very hard in a rough and tumble fight. But it is just as well not to be too much impressed by that. In a few weeks the war varsity is to be winded up and the nation is to be reduced to its scrubs.

There was a big Bulgarian wrestler in the United States a few years ago who was arching his neck at the wife of a huge and mighty American prizefighter. Warned that the pugilist would assault him with furious lefts and rights to the face and body, the Bulgarian wrestler wiggled his little doornob ear, twitched his neck bristles vivaciously and said, "Great big man me not afraid. But little beeta bullet from little beeta pistol me very afraid."

Brazil's Sore Spot

Accessible Only By Water Or Air, One Set Of Six States Has Launched A Revolt Revealing Lack Of National Cohesion.

By W. L. Schurz.

Special Correspondence of The Post.

MOST Latin-American countries contain some sore spot where political troubles generally originate. They are usually distant from the capital, so that the fomenters of discord can get their deviltry well under way before the central government moves against them. Of such are Sonora in Mexico, Oriente in Cuba, and Arequipa in Peru. There used to be more of them, before trunk highways and railroads and airplanes broke down the isolation of these potential nuclei of revolution.

Another that still remains is a group of small states in northern Brazil. Though they comprise six of the nation's twenty states, they only make up 5 per cent of the national territory. Sergipe, the smallest of them, the size of New York. But Brazil has one state three times the bulk of Texas, and three more that dwarf the Lone Star State. The cluster of six states holds one-fifth of the country's population.

Neither of these facts would have any special significance if it were not that the six states are, for all practical purposes, an island. They can only be reached from the outside world by water or air. A local railway system links them with one another and with the important state of Bahia to the south. But they are separated from the political and economic center of the country by a wilderness which is traversed neither by road nor rail.

The Nucleus Of The Revolution.

To the west lies the dry sertao country, where men are as hard as the parched earth of the long droughts. Pan-American planes cross the region from north to south on their way from Miami to Rio and the River Plate. The Graf Zeppelin and the transatlantic mail planes between Africa and South America come down at Natal, port of the skies. To Rio or Santos is a voyage of several days by the slow coastwise boats that put in at every port on the long coast.

• • • •

THIS is the oldest part of Brazil. For four centuries the Portuguese and their Brazilian descendants have grown sugar cane in the costal lands from Pernambuco down to Bahia. To tend the cane fields they brought droves of Negro slaves across from Angola and the blood of the blacks runs heavy in the veins of these northerners. The Dutch occupied this part of Brazil for a brief spell in the seventeenth century, and Low Country names still persist throughout the north. The land now lives more by cotton than by sugar.

The present flurry in this quarter of Brazil is only one more outbreak of the political localisms which have dogged the history of the young republic. Brazil, with some 40,000,000 people in an area larger than that of the United States, is still one vast frontier. Most of the millions live on a narrow shelf along the coast that only reaches inland for a few hundred miles in the south. There has never been a Union Pacific Railroad to bind together the parts of this colossus that sprawls over half the continent. States have continued to look outwards to the sea, as in the days of the Portuguese viceroys. Centrifugal forces have developed in national politics, which at times have threatened the very integrity of the republic. Nearly every state of the 20 has at some time or other been in armed rebellion against the government at Rio.

Pernambuco and her fiery neighbors are only doing what they have done before and what is still the self-assumed privilege of any Brazilian state. In the north it is easy for any disgruntled politico to assemble a force of supporters. The cangaceiros from the back country welcome the chance for some shooting and looting in the cities. The issue doesn't matter greatly if it is made high-sounding enough. Anyway, they are liable to have a grudge against the more opulent and civilized south and it requires little to set them off against the agents of Rio.

• • • •

FOR a long time the republic was governed by a form of dualism. The two great key states of Minas Geraes and Sao Paulo alternated presidents and generally ran the country to their own satisfaction. But that system broke down a few years ago and President Vargas is a native of Rio Grande do Sul. Whatever stability the old partnership between Paulistas and Mineiros may have given to national politics is gone and a new basis for internal peace will have to be built up.

In this effort the task of the central government is not a hopeless one. It has the advantage of having put down every revolt so far. Its military power is greater and more efficient than ever before. The mass of the Brazilian people are peace-loving and resentful of the disorders attendant on civil war. The government is honestly trying to reconcile the political and economic antagonisms within the nation and to strengthen loyalty to the union. Improved communications will do much to promote cohesion among the isolated sections of the country. So will greater prosperity for the more backward states, which have looked with envy on the more fortunate members of the federation.

If radicalism plays any part in the present movement it is only the kind that would make the people of Mississippi or Arkansas envy those of Ohio or Michigan. Communism could not get very far in a country without unemployment and with millions of acres of land to be had for the settling of it.

Cuba Defers Election, Gets Political Expert

Havana, Nov. 27 (AP).—Apparently convinced that it had reached a stalemate in its efforts to untangle the island's political problems, the Cuban government today postponed national elections and called in an American expert to lend a hand.

The cabinet, in extraordinary session, ordered "indefinite postponement" of elections which had been set for December 15, and authorized the employment of Howard L. McBain, New York political scientist, as an adviser.

Advanced First Aid Course Is Announced

An advanced course in first aid was offered yesterday by the District Chapter of the American Red Cross to those who have completed the standard course.

Beginning December 3 the class will meet each Tuesday for five weeks, the holiday season excluded, at the chapter house, 1730 E street. Applicants were requested to call National 5400, branch 245.

Baseball Steps Out

By Karl Schriftgiesser.

Into The Show Business.

IN the engaging language of that amazing compendium of useful knowledge, Variety, one reads that "prima donnas of the diamond, it is felt, need more theatrical presentation to reach first base at box-office," which strengthens the growing belief that professional baseball is on the skids. There has not been much indication of this in the sporting prints, baseball writers being loyal folk and also not much inclined to do anything to jeopardize the free board and room annually offered them at the training camps. But it has been apparent to less biased observers that a certain lassitude has descended over the one-time national pastime, not wholly blamable upon the many incredibly bad ball teams that have been annoying the paying customers within the recent past.

Having counted the gross for the recent season the magnates who control the racket are not at all satisfied with the take and are on the verge of certain drastic steps which will assure them of juicier steaks and larger yachts than they have been able to afford of late. The pitable condition of the tycoons who put their all into this manly sport, which many citizens hold in a reverence just slightly below that which they show for church and State, is such as to cause great emotion wherever ruggedness and individual ambition is held in esteem. Such men, no less than those who built the railroads and opened the West or started steel factories, are gentlemen of a high order, with patriotic intentions, and thus deserving of the fat of the land.

BUT, alas, these sterling leaders of American youth, who obviously ask no more of their enterprise than a reasonable profit, have not seen the future as clearly as others among our industrial aristocracy, and are in desperate need of a new coach at third base. While purveyors of nail polish, tinned beer, dated coffee and other prosaic necessities of life have seen the light, these contributors to American culture and the manly life, have, as Variety so succinctly puts it, adhered to the methods of the horse and buggy days.

They have been under the mistaken impression that people went to the ball park to see baseball played. But a new light is dawning, new ways are coming and, if we are to believe the evidence, the baseball industry is about to be revolutionized in time for the April openings. The grizzled manager who at the end of a dismal season went to his Big Boss and suggested that perhaps if he hired a few ball players there might be less empty seats in the park next summer will find an even colder reception than before. The Big Boss will not balk at any sums he might suggest but, instead of acquiescing to the idea that the ball team might stand another pitcher he will say to the manager that he has heard Bing Crosby is available.

For baseball is going show business, definitely. It is despairing of bringing in the crowds by any legitimate means and rather than admit the remote possibility that the American public is coming of age and therefore ready to put away childish things, baseball is getting ready to use the same tactics employed by other vendors of unwanted products. "Within baseball circles," says Variety, "it is now predicted that that inside of another two seasons everybody connected with the sport will have to keep on his toes in a showmanship way in order to survive."

• • • •

RADIO will be widely used to lure men and women to the ball parks, and in the use of this medium the most stress will be laid on the ladies' angle. In fact, as nearly as I can make out, baseball's swivel chair brigade is going to concentrate upon making the ladies baseball conscious. Just how this will be done has not been made clear, but the vision of some handsome shortstop removing his tobacco cud long enough to croon "Feelin' You're Foolin'" over a national network is not without the range of possibility.

Then there is the matter of night baseball, which will lure the men from the radio or the movies of an evening for a pleasant outing at the ball park. This gag of after-dark showmanship has proved efficacious in more than one racket, such as hockey, professional football and contract bridge. It will be plugged for all it's worth just as soon as the temperamental outfielders learn that a poorly placed arc light is just as good an excuse for missing a fly ball as is the sun.

It is too early to predict what teams will benefit most from this new regime, but they say that Powell Crosley, of the Cinci Reds, is a great one for showmanship. Variety reveals with telling brevity that Ford Frick, president of the National League, is "a former broadcaster." And Paul Yawkey, who has the Boston Red Sox on his hands, is reputedly show-minded. So it seems there might be a race in the two leagues not so much for the pennant as for the best-diction prize or the N. W. Ayer award. But on second thought, that latter is out. For Variety ends up its telling account of the dilemma of baseball with these sad and cynical words:

"A few more courageous voices have lately even mentioned spending some money for advertising, although such a possibility is a long way off, because baseball has always been and remains the most prolific free-space grabber of any commercial enterprise in the world."

Reserve Board Settles Credit Control Rules

Uniform Interest Rates Are Fixed for 6,000 Member Banks.

By the Associated Press.

Initial rules for applying 1935 banking act controls to the flow of bank credit were issued last night by the Federal Reserve Board.

Simultaneously, it set uniform maximum interest rates for approximately $10,000,000,000 in time deposits, in the more than 6,000 member banks of the system. Both the credit rules and interest charges would become effective January 1.

The credit regulations provided machinery to govern changes in reserve requirements in accordance with the law's grant of power to double legal reserves without declaring an emergency, should the board find it necessary to prevent injurious expansion or contraction of credit.

Inflation Feared.

Latest figures on member bank reserves have shown a surplus of idle funds exceeding $3,000,000,000. Some experts have seen in this sum the source of a potentially dangerous inflation.

Semi-official observers read in yesterday's step—making credit regulations the first to be issued under the 1935 law—an indication that early moves might be made to check further expansion of excess reserves or to bring them down to more manageable proportions.

The board, holding that "under present conditions banks can not afford to pay higher interest rates" maintained the old 2½ per cent rate on savings deposits, but added a graduated scale of maximums on all time deposits.

14,000 Banks Involved.

Some observers believed the board's action in setting a graduated interest scale might be followed by the Deposit Insurance Corporation. This would extend the maximum charges to a total of more than 14,000 banks.

While it had the authority to say different interest rates for each of the 12 Federal Reserve districts, the board made its figures applicable to the country as a whole.

The credit regulations provided the technical procedure for the board to apply gradually, by small percentages, its power to increase legal reserve requirements as much as 100 per cent. Existing reserve requirements are 13 per cent of net demand deposits in the central reserve cities of New York and Chicago; 10 per cent for banks in reserve cities and 7 per cent for other banks.

Morgenthau Silent On Franc's Position

By the Associated Press.

Secretary Morgenthau declined to discuss the position of the franc at his press conference yesterday.

Reminded that the French currency was at about the same level as last May, when the Treasury went to its aid with the exchange stabilization fund, he said, "I cannot discuss the question."

Morgenthau would not say whether the Treasury's aid had been asked again.

Sing Sing Turkeyless.

Ossining, N. Y., Nov. 27 (U.P.).—Inmates of Sing Sing Prison will feel the effects of the depression this Thanksgiving. Prison officials decided to serve chicken instead of turkey for tomorrow's holiday dinner "because so many people outside can't afford turkey."

NRA Will Pass Into History In Few Weeks; Martin to Quit

To Take Job With Industrial Concern; Work of 'Skeleton' Staff Is Almost Finished and 2,500 Will Lose Positions.

By Felix Bruner.

The New Deal's foremost industrial experiment, the NRA, will pass into history within the next few weeks, it was indicated yesterday. The work of the "skeleton" organization, kept intact after the Supreme Court decision holding codes unconstitutional, is virtually finished, and there is every indication that no further work will be assigned.

Laurence J. Martin, who has been acting administrator of NRA, will resign soon to take a position with a manufacturing concern. He confirmed reports of his intended resignation, but denied that he had any thought of joining an anti-New Deal utility organization, as had been reported.

Winding up his duties, which have consisted largely of reducing the NRA staff from its original 6,000 employes to the present personnel of 2,500, Martin said that surveys and other work assigned by President Roosevelt were almost finished.

Field Staff of 550.

"I see no need for keeping these people here after this work is done," he said.

A field staff of 550 persons has been at work checking the effect of code abandonment on wages, hours and competitive conditions in industry. This check has been completed and the results are being assembled. Only a few odds and ends of work remain for the field staff. Other survey jobs being done in Washington also are near their conclusion.

Even the most ardent friends of NRA are admitting that legislation to revive the organization, or anything remotely resembling it, is extremely improbable. While President Roosevelt, at the conclusion of the last session of Congress, asked the Senate Finance Committee and the House Ways and Means Committee to study the subject of future NRA legislation, neither committee has made much progress.

Berry Carries On.

The House committee has designated L. H. Parker, its revenue expert, to collect available data on the NRA, but this material has not been submitted to the committee. A sub-committee headed by Representative Samuel B. Hill, of Washington, has been appointed to hold NRA hearings, but it has held no meetings. The Senate Finance Committee has not yet acted to carry out the President's request.

President Roosevelt himself is believed to have lost interest in attempts to revive the organization which once ruled the business life of the country, and it is doubtful whether he will ask Congress for any further legislation. It is also doubtful whether any financial provision will be made to carry on even a skeleton organization.

The only spark of enthusiasm left is being fanned by George L. Berry, co-ordinator for industrial co-operation. Berry and his staff, who were assigned by the President to learn what, if anything, business wanted the Government to do in the way of regulation, still are working feverishly on plans for the business conference called by Berry for December 9. However, Berry insists that he does not have a revival of NRA in mind—unless business wants it—and adds that he has become convinced that business does not want any more "emergency" legislation.

Berry is working against discouraging odds. Names of trade associations and business concerns accepting invitations to his conference are being withheld except in a few instances in which short lists have been put out by his publicity staff. Neither has a full list of rejections been made public. Among the latter, however, are trade associations representing such powerful industries as automobiles, lumber and steel.

Many of the persons expecting to attend the meeting will be present as "observers," with instructions to take no part unless there are indications that a plan for future Government legislation actually may be formulated. Then they will move in and if possible block the play.

Labor representatives, with their plans for the 30-hour week, licensed interstate business, and codes for Government contractors are expected to be the most active group in presenting concrete plans. These three proposals, however, have the united opposition of business.

The attitude of business was plainly set out in the answers to the Chamber of Commerce poll asking whether further Government activity is desired. Ninety-eight per cent of the trade organizations answered "No."

Much more vocal opposition to any move to revive the NRA or anything even remotely resembling it, will come from the Congress of American Industry in New York next week. Meeting at the invitation of the National Association of Manufacturers, the country's foremost industrial leaders will express their opinions of Government in business.

On the program is consideration of a set of resolutions that will cause the Blue Eagle to turn over in its grave.

Dry Case Stronger, Methodists Hold

Temperance Board Finds 'Improved Support.'

By the Associated Press.

The Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals, arch foe of repeal, reported yesterday an "improved moral and material support" for its campaigns.

The board found a "strengthening" financial condition, and ordered resumption of some efforts discontinued for lack of funds.

"The secretaries of the board reported profound dissatisfaction with present Federal and State liquor policies," its statement said, "and estimate an increase of approximately 50 per cent in dry voting strength."

A broadcaster's effort to "sound out" sentiment in regard to radio advertising of spirituous liquors was attacked "as a direct assault upon he overwhelming moral conviction of the Christian community and the rights of the American home."

The board resolved to support legislation prohibiting block booking of motion pictures, and to oppose a Federal lottery.

Canada Trade Pact Assailed by McNary

By the Associated Press.

Senator McNary, of Oregon, the Republican leader, yesterday carried forward his campaign for revision of the Canadian-American trade agreement with a call on Secretary Wallace.

He already has protested to the State Department against reduction in American lumber tariffs. Yesterday he complained to Wallace about concessions granted to Canada on agricultural products and fruits.

The Agriculture Secretary informed the Oregon Senator that the United States as a whole would benefit under the reciprocal trade agreement.

Norris Remains Silent On Candidacy in 1936

By the Associated Press.

Senator Norris, of Nebraska, returned to the Capital yesterday, enthuiastic over progress of the Tennessee Valley Authority, but reticent as ever about his plans for the 1936 Nebraska senatorial campaign.

"You'll just have to say I declined to comment," he replied to inquiries as to whether he planned to retire.

He was interested in news of fees asked by Arthur F. Mullen, former Nebraska Democratic national committeeman, for legal services to two big Nebraska PWA power projects, but withheld comment.

Safety Parley Called; Roper Asks Suggestions

Secretary Roper announced yesterday that his national conference of safety, on land and sea and in the air, will be held in Washington, December 18. Plans for the conference, suggested by President Roosevelt, were outlined several days ago when committee chairmen were named.

Roper yesterday asked for suggestions and advice as to how to proceed. The appeal for suggestions was sent to chairmen and members of the various committees.

Mason Quits Foundation.

New York, Nov. 27 (AP).—Max Mason announced tonight he would retire soon from the presidency of the Rockefeller Foundation in order to resume his scientific work in the fields of mathematics and mathematical physics.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

Test of a Lie Detector.

The Northwestern University Scientific Crime Detection Laboratory claims to have perfected a "lie detector"—the Keely Polygraph—through which it can be told whether crime suspects are lying or not. A blood pressure cup is placed on the suspect's forearm and a rubber pneumograph tube around his chest. The attitude of the subject is then recorded on a dial, as shown by his blood pressure, breathing and muscular reflexes.

• • • •

Elmer Twitchell underwent the test today. He was persuaded to put on the cuff and "brassiere" by the representation that it was just a routine check-up on his general physical condition. Once Elmer had been put into the polygraph harness he was interrogated as to truth and veracity with the following results:

Question No. 1.—How's your golf, Mr. Twitchell?

(Mr. Twitchell lost no time in stating that he was playing a sweet game, that he was scoring very well and that on Saturday he made two birdies and barely missed a hole in one. The polygraph blew out a cylinder head and developed a leaky gasket. It was some time before repairs could be made.)

Question No. 2.—Mr. Twitchell, I understand you went fishing the other day. Any luck?

(The result here was inevitable. Elmer, of course, launched into a tall tale of how he ran into a big school of big ones and just slaughtered them. Upon reaching the "but" in the statement, "I got 45 and could have filled the boat, but," the polygraph backfired and blew the chest belt clean off Elmer's body and onto a chandelier.)

Question No. 3.—What was it you said to the boss when he said you'd have to work Saturday afternoon?

(An extra cuff was placed on Elmer's wrist as a precaution. "Why, I walked up to him," said Elmer, "and I said: 'Where do you get off ordering me to work Saturday afternoon? Who do you think you are, anyhow? You may be able to bully-rag some guys around this plant, but you can't get away with that stuff with me. Why, you big . . ."

There was an explosion and the polygraph flew through the roof and landed in the ash can. It was beyond repair.)

Note—The conductor of this column is going to try the lie detector on two subjects at the earliest possible moment: The movie house barker who tells you whether there are any good seats left or not, and the auto salesman who answers your questions: "How many miles will it give to the gallon?"—Ed.

League Policy On Italy Is Hit By Senate Aid

One-Sided Sanctions Lead to War, Says Munitions Committee Prober.

By the Associated Press.

Pittsburgh, Nov. 27.—The League of Nations sanctions policy was criticized tonight by the Senate Munitions Committee's chief investigator as a policy "leading to war."

Stephen Raushenbush, the Senate aid, in an address prepared for delivery before the Pittsburgh Foreign Policy Association, hit sharply at the shipping of materials of war "to one side only."

"It is clear," he said of the Ethiopian situation, at another point, "that the dominant League powers are not fighting for complete justice so much as a workable agreement in their own interest."

Raushenbush forecast a possible clash in the coming session of Congress between those who favored shipping to one side in an effort to end war and what he called the "non-League group," which "wants to forbid the shipment of munitions and materials of war to both belligerents, also loans and credits, and let general merchandise leave these shores for all belligerents at the complete risk of the purchasers."

The Administration, he said, favored the latter policy.

"I cannot help but look upon the League-group proposal," he said, "as an unconscious but direct attempt to duplicate our wartime experience both in regard to neutrality and in regard to the war which followed the failure of that neutrality, and in regard to the peace which followed that war. They wish us to sell only to one set of belligerents. That is exactly what we did during the last war, because the Entente Allies had control of the seas. Presumably the League group, always including England, will again have control of the seas."

He said he favored "one kind of cooperation with the League powers, and that consists in demanding now of the dominant League powers their detailed plans and time tables for those revisions of the status quo which will allow the crowded peoples of the world more territory and the assurance of greater freedom of trade."

RFC Head Denies Cooke Quit in Row

Relations With EHFA Aid Cordial, Says Jones.

Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, denied yesterday that differences with the RFC had caused the resignation of Morris L. Cooke as president of the Electric Home and Farm Authority.

Cooke, who remains as head of the Rural Electrification Administration, said in Philadelphia, according to the Associated Press, that he saw "eye to eye with Mr. Jones as to EHFA policies." He said his resignation was due entirely to his desire to concentrate on rural electrification.

Jones announced Cooke's successor as president of the EHFA will be a member of the RFC organization.

Referring to Cooke, Jones said: "Certainly the most cordial relations exist between us and he remains a member of the board of EHFA."

China Clipper Readied For Final Hop to Manila

Guam (Thursday), Nov. 28 (AP). The transpacific mail seaplane China Clipper was conditioned today for the final hop tomorrow of its 8,000-mile inaugural flight from Alameda, Calif., to Manila. The big flying boat arrived yesterday from Wake Island, completing the 1,536-mile trip in 10 hours and 3 minutes.

Welcoming preparations were made in the Philippine capital, 1,700 miles from here. President Manuel Quezon proclaimed a celebration. The Clipper left Alameda five days ago. About 1,400 pounds of the starting 2-ton mail load remain aboard for Manila delivery.

'Schnozzle' Substitutes For Farley as Fall Guy

New York, Nov. 27 (AP).—Jimmy (Schnozzle) Durante, the funny man, batted for Postmaster General James A. Farley today and got himself initiated into the Circus Saints and Sinners Club as the Thanksgiving "fall guy."

F. Darius Benham, an official of the club, said Farley had written he couldn't be initiated at this time because he was attending to other things, but would be glad to be the fall guy any time in January.

War Traffic Increases Suez Canal Receipts

Paris, Nov. 27 (AP).—An increase of 35,000,000 francs (about $2,275,000) in Suez Canal receipts in 1935 over 1934 was forecast today by canal officials.

Italian military operations, it was announced, responsible for an increase in traffic which made the income, from January 1 to November 20, 789,000,000 francs compared with 759,000,000 francs for the corresponding period of last year.

Holiday Spirit Will Be on Tap At Night Clubs

Club Habana, River Bend, Griffith Farms, Others Should Please.

By Chanticleer.

The odds are up on the board that before this festive day is over the holiday spirit gets you.

Any betting man would risk plenty figuring you'll either have a delicious Thanksgiving Day dinner at one of Washington's fine restaurants—or you drop in at one of the after-dark spots for music, dancing, gayety and a bit of whoop-la.

If any small thing can be said in this space to direct those feet that feel the urge to seek out cuisine and festivity to the place that meets the mood—then a genuine Thanksgiving deed has been performed.

• • • •

Club Habana—In a double-barreled holiday humor. Yesterday was the first anniversary of Guy Scott's Connecticut rendezvous. Paul will make reservations. Moe Baer and his orchestra for dancing. Nadine and Girardo in a round of spectacular dance numbers.

• • • •

River Bend: George Stein brings a new band to this Mount Vernon highway spot—with Ralph Cannon, vocalist, and the Dawson-Richardson-Cannon vocal trio. Billy Rupprecht is there, too. Distinguished for Southern turkey dinners.

• • • •

Griffith Farms: Suburban spot, to, with Brick Dornin and his Varsity Six for tonight's dancing. It's Griffith Farms' first Thanksgiving and nothing is being spared to make it a glorious success. Log fires and stand-up bar.

• • • •

Hamilton's Rainbow Room: Popular gathering point for young and old alike. Milt Davis and his orchestra for dancing. Sometimes hard to find a table in the busiest hours.

• • • •

• • • •

Ramon's: Dupont section of Connecticut avenue, where "Ramon presents Rudy Schramm and his singing partner, Van Smith." One of the better places to visit after the theater. Rudy plays your requests.

• • • •

Dude Ranch: On the Baltimore pike. Ralph Garren and his orchestra, with vocalists and floor show. Out where they raise their own chickens. Special favors, noisemakers and the works tonight. Dixie Dyer and Jimmy Staley in lights.

• • • •

La Paree: Last day for the big circus on the floor. Emory Daugherty and his orchestra for dancing. Marie Fowler and Ray Beck, soloists. Always the holiday spirit. Special dinner for Thanksgiving.

• • • •

Maryland Club Gardens: Suburban, with one of the handsomest bars in the local precincts. Chicken dinners a specialty. Floor show, with Jimmy Harris and his new orchestra "proudly presented."

• • • •

Club Volga Boatman: Matt Windsor's reproduction of Old Russia. Genuine atmosphere and all that sort of thing. Michael Michaleof plays your favorites on his violin. Russian chorus. Dancing 'til 3.

• • • •

Club Heigh-Ho: Call Ramon for reservation. Excellent ballroom dance team featured. Marty Rubin sings your favorite intimate ditties; Pete Macias and his orchestra for dancing.

• • • •

• • • •

Ambassador room: At Ambassador Hotel, with Harry Albert and his orchestra. Eve Davis, newly acquired vocalist. The moderne touche in cocktaileries. Pleasant, easy to take. Swell pianist in this band, too.

• • • •

Mayflower Lounge: Buddy Harmon and his orchestra for dancing. Sidney has his office just around the corner: music is grand. Specializes in your favorites of yesterday. Cigarette girl's name is Harriet.

• • • •

Russian Troika: Helen Hamilton's rendezvous, where the Russian artists come and stay for the winter because they love it. Dancing, floor show. Chef knows his business.

• • • •

Madrillon: Where Host Peter Borras believes food comes before fun, and Maestra Brusiloff reverses the conviction. Result: both okay. Versatile band. Floor show.

• • • •

Shoreham: Ballroom features Ramon and Renita, considered by many the leading ballroom dancers in the United States today. Also the Bonners and other artists. Barnee and his orchestra for dancing.

Hatchet Buried By Communists And Socialists

2 Parties Consider United Front Against War and Fascism.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Nov. 27.—National leaders of the Communist and Socialist parties composed their ancient differences in part tonight over the advisability of a united front against war and fascism and in support of a Farmer-Labor Party in the United States.

The opinions were aired by Norman Thomas, leader of the Socialist Party, and Earl Browder, general secretary of the Communist Party, in a "debate" before approximately 20,000 persons composing a "sell-out" audience in Madison Square Garden.

Communists Moderate.

Tonight's debate was notable for two things: First that Browder's expressions publicly reversed past denunciation by the Communist Party of a possible Farmer-Labor Party in the United States, and second, that the debate accented the uncertainty of the Socialist Party in the United States.

Thomas, National Socialist leader, was cited by the right wing "Old Guard" of the party in New York for breaking party discipline in debating Browder. However, the national executive committee gave Thomas permission to go on the platform.

Browder's support of a Farmer-Labor national organization was in line with the action of the recent seventh comintern of the International Communist Party in Russia, which extended the "People's Front" to include all persons inimical to fascism.

Urge Counter-Attack.

"The best form for a successful counter-attack by the liberal, progressive and radical forces in this country," said Browder in a predebate statement, "is a broad Farmer-Labor Party dedicated to the needs of the overwhelming majority of the American people who toil with hand and brain, and free from the domination that Wall Street exerts upon the two old parties.

"Such independent political action, already beginning on a small scale throughout the country, would be the best method of checking the rising tide of fascist reaction."

Thomas declared that both Communists and Socialists "recognize that they are in common danger from fascism in America and, if it is by any means possible, intelligent Socialists and Communists do not want to have to learn to get along together only in a concentration camp here in America."

7 Students Ousted For Immorality

U. of Arkansas President Acts at 'Home-Coming.'

By the Associated Press.

Fayetteville, Ark., Nov. 27.—Aftermath of a home-coming week celebration at the University of Arkansas, seven men students were expelled today on charges described by Acting University President W. N. Gladson as involving "gross immorality." Details of the charges were not made public.

Dean Gladson said that the investigation had involved four members of the football team. One player was being sent home, and the three other players probably will not be permitted to play in the Arkansas-Tulsa University game at Tulsa, Okla., tomorrow, the dean said.

Emphasizing that the investigation was not closed, the dean said similar charges against "several other students and other persons on the campus" had been taken under advisement by the discipline committee which he heads, and that "the committee also is attempting to establish any possible degree of guilt of a fraternity and a sorority."

6 Seattle Policemen Are Held as Burglars

Seattle, Nov. 27 (AP).—Prosecutor Warren Magnuson filed burglary charges today against six Seattle policemen, a National Guard sergeant and a county employe, held as members of a safe-cracking gang accused of looting Seattle stores of more than $5,000.

Police Chief Walter B. Kirtley said the eight had confessed. Another accused police officer, R. C. McQuade, died last night after falling from a jail cell bunk. Inspector Walter Dench said McQuade committed suicide.

The second of two policemen who surprised another gang of safe-crackers in a beer parlor early yesterday, died from gunshot wounds. He was Patrolman Theodore E. Stevens, 34. His partner, Patrolman Trent A. Sickles, 31, was killed outright.

The Federal Diary

Registered in U. S. Patent Office.

By Morgan Baker.

PRELIMINARY organization work among the more than 2,000,000 State, county and municipal employes throughout the country is progressing satisfactorily, according to national headquarters of the American Federation of Government Employes here.

BAKER.

AFGE President E. Claude Babcock, Treasurer Cecil E. Custer and Charter President David R. Glass will go to Chicago in December to represent the national AFGE offices at a convention to be held for the purpose of organizing the State, county and municipal groups under the AFGE banner.

The convention, under tentative plans, will open at the Hotel Morrison December 10, with representatives from the groups of State, county and municipal workers already organized in government unions of the American Federation of Labor in attendance.

The Wisconsin State Federation has been active in making preparations for the meeting, and last night the national offices of the AFGE received an application for a charter from the Minnesota State Federation which will be assigned the tentative number, 1002, as the second group of such employes to seek AFGE charters.

Most of the present Federal unions intend to await the outcome of the convention, Mr. Babcock said, before making application for charters, but the Minnesota group and the Seattle municipal employes, who are organized as A. F. G. E. Lodge No. 1001, were heretofore not affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, and are therefore making their applications direct to the A. F. G. E. prior to the convention, at which they will presumably be represented.

The chief problem of the convention, it is said, is one of organization on such a basis that the State, county and municipal employes can co-operate with the present membership of the A. F. G. E., so each group will retain autonomy over its own affairs.

Several suggestions as to the type of organization have been made, but the final decision will be made in Chicago. The A. F. of L. has assigned jurisdiction to the A. F. G. E., and this step was generally welcomed by the existing Government unions of civilian employes, but there are still problems to work out, mainly with respect to safeguards for the existing rights of all groups concerned.

$2,000 Positions Open.

Examinations for positions with salaries ranging from $1,800 to $2,000 a year are announced by Civil Service Commission as follows:

Junior medical officer (interne), $2,000 a year; junior medical officer (psychiatric resident), $2,000 a year, St. Elizabeths Hospital, Washington, D. C. For junior medical officer (interne) applicants must be senior students in a grade A medical school; for junior medical officer (psychiatric resident) they must have been graduated from a grade A medical school with a degree of M. D., not prior to January 1, 1934, and must have completed an accredited interneship of at least one year.

Negative cutter, $1,800 a year, dydrographic office, Navy Department. Four years' experience of a certain specified kind in negative cutting, in lithographic reproduction work required.

Members of AAA Lodge No. 116, American Federation of Government Employes, announce a "get-together" party with supper, entertainment and dancing at N. Auth Provision Co., Seventh and D streets southwest Saturday night. A. Lubore, secretary, says all friends of the lodge are invited.

We Are Thankful.

We're thankful first, of course, that we are living,
And next we have a fair degree of health;
We're thankful for our folks and at

We're glad for all our friends of

For friendships that are solid on

We're grateful, too, for chance to

In short, we're pleased to say we

We're thankful that we daily meet

They teamed up, and Davis developed into one of the town's better warblers of risque lyrics . . . Curiously enough, his stanchest patrons are gray-haired men and women . . . They bawl out the answers to his songs with all the vigor of collegians . . . Lew Gensler took Davis to the Coast recently to make a picture . . . Timid away from the floor, despite his risque expertness, Davis didn't get past the gatekeeper on the Coast lot for two days . . . Five times he went hopefully to the gate and five times he was chased away . . . "But I'm to be in the picture," Davis would say politely, but he'd wither before the suspicious glare of the gatetender and slink back to his hotel.

Another dance and entertainment is being planned by the Athletic and Recreational Association at Agriculture, to be held in the patio of the administration building December 7.

AMONG the Government employes taking part in "The Merry Wives of Windsor," to be presented at St. Paul's auditorium Monday night under direction of Jesse Veitch, Postoffice Department, and Kent Dyer, Resettlement Administration, are:

John Victory, NRA; Charles A. Bell, Resettlement; William Milton, WPA; A. L. Diket, Commerce; James M. Rawls (F), Labor; Paul Murphy, Pan American Union; Stanley Karmazin, Government Printing Office; Milton Hirshfield, Patent Office; Joseph Harley 3d, Treasury; Ray Crowell, Resettlement, and Virginia True (P), Interior.

The Adjutant General's Office Bridge Club will hold an organization meeting at 8:15 p. m. Monday at Musicians' Hall, 1105 Sixteenth street northwest. Clair Bressler (P), director, expects 10 or 12 tables the first night.

Goes to Resettlement.

William Howard Gammon, who had been connected with the Biological Survey since 1931, handling pay-roll work, has recently been transferred to take charge of the pay-roll force of the Resettlement Administration, which employs a large force of clerical assistants. Walter J. Heison has been advanced to the position held by Gammon.

To Study Mosquito Control.

In accordance with a co-operative agreement between the Forest Service and the Biological Survey, Dr. W. S. Bourn, for the past nine years associated with the Boyce Thompson Institute for Plant Research in its work in the Chesapeake Bay and Currituck Sound area, was recently appointed assistant aquatic biologist to assist in studies of the effects of mosquito-control and drainage operations on wild life.

Post-Thanksgiving Biology.

At the regular bi-weekly meeting of the Biological Society of Washington, Saturday night at the Cosmos Club, John A. Stevenson, Bureau of Plant Industry, will present a paper on "Fungus Prodigies" illustrated with slides.

There will also be one hour of motion pictures of hawks, owls, and ravens, presented by Frank and John Craighead and an illustrated talk on "Heredity Evidence of a Spiral Force in Development—From Studies of 650 Black Skimmer Embryos" by Prof. Alice L. Brown. Visitors are welcome; the program begins at 8 o'clock.

Status of D. A. R.

Q. Is the D. A. R. a Government institution?—Mrs. Charles P. McKenzie (P).

A. The National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution is not so considered; it is, however, one of the few organizations to hold a charter under the Federal Government and it reports annually on its work to the Secretary of the Smithsonian Institution.

Federal Monument Book.

Q. Where can I find descriptions and pictures of the statues and monuments of the city of Washington?—Sara Stuart (C).

A. Many of these are contained in a book, "Washington, the National Capital," by H. P. Caemmerer, published as Senate Document, No. 332, Seventy-first Congress, Third Session. It may be purchased from the Superintendent of Documents.

"St. Wapniacl" Explained.

Q. What is St. Wapniacl?—Jerry L. Mansfield (P).

A. This name is merely a convenient device for recalling in the customary order the secretaries of the ten Government departments, the letters in this name being the initials of the offices of the Cabinet members, as Secretaries of State, Treasury, and War; Attorney and Postmaster Generals, and Secretaries of the Navy, Interior, Agriculture, Commerce and Labor.

Stores Ready For Christmas Buying Season

Merchants of Capital Will Inaugurate Shopping Period Tomorrow.

Gayly decorated store windows will formally inaugurate the 1935 Christmas shopping season tomorrow, the Merchants and Manufacturers Association announced yesterday.

"The shopping public will have a better chance to make their Christmas purchases now than later," said Edward D. Shaw, secretary. "Before inviting the public to do their shopping early in Washington stores, we have made certain that our stores are prepared to receive them."

Buyers are gradually learning the advantages of spreading the holiday shopping period over five weeks or longer instead of waiting until the last week before Christmas, according to the association.

"Instead of making our opening of Christmas displays in December, the complete holiday merchandise stocks are now being offered," Shaw said. "So many people are realizing the advantage of making their holiday purchases in advance of the usual rush that the merchants have decided to give them every opportunity here in Washington."

C. H. Frame, superintendent of the Railway Express Agency, believes this season will be the biggest and best since 1929. Express shipments will be delivered on Christmas Day, he said, but he advised early shopping and shipping to ease the burden of the thousands of employes engaged in selling and transportation.

Mother Ends Life In 'Torch' Suicide

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Nov. 27.—A few minutes after she had waved goodbye to her three children as they went to school, Mrs. Ruth Roos, 37, burned herself to death today.

Three neighbors saw Mrs. Roos run from her back door into the yard, her body enveloped in flames. The neighbors smothered the flames by wrapping her in rugs.

Her husband, George Roos, had been to the drug store for medicine for Mrs. Roos, who had a sore throat. When he returned, his wife was dead.

Dr. Thomas C. Phillips, Southwestern District coroner, returned a verdict of suicide "while suffering from an acute attack of insanity."

Dr. Phillips said an open jar of gasoline was found in the cellar, a box of matches beside it. A gasoline-soaked towel was found on the cellar stairs.

2d Pacific Mail Flight Is Set for December 6

By the Associated Press.

The Postoffice Department announced yesterday that the second flight over the transpacific airmail route would begin at San Francisco December 6.

The flight will be to Honolulu, Guam, Manila, P. I., and back. The return trip will start December 16. No passengers will be carried.

D. C. Heads Approve Ouster of Policeman

Dismissal of Private George E. Kimmel from the police force, recommended by the Police Trial Board, was approved yesterday by the District Commissioners.

Kimmel was found guilty of being under the influence of alcoholic beverage while off duty and of conduct unbecoming an officer.

'Turkey War' Hinted.

New Rochelle, N. Y., Nov. 27 (AP).—It will be sirloin steak instead of turkey at a lot of Thanksgiving dinners tomorrow. An explosion occurred today in Max Geld's butcher shop and more than 1,100 turkeys were destroyed. Police said it was the start of a "turkey war" among rival butchers.

"Thanksgiving"—1936.

THANKSGIVING—THEN AND NOW.—The first American Thanksgiving, as depicted at the left, might not have been as gala as the feats of today, but it meant a lot more. The Pilgrims who settled bleak New England had just survived one of the most critical periods in the early history of the Nation. Incidentally, historians inform us, more Indians than Pilgrims partook of the feast. To the right is a painting of Thanksgiving, 1936, by Doris Lee, which won a $500 prize in Chicago and raised a furor in art circles. It depicts the hustle and bustle of getting Thanksgiving dinner with plenty of fuss and oodles of feathers. We thought you'd like the contrast.

Traffic Deaths Increase; War's Toll Surpassed

28,760 Killed Throughout U. S. in First 10 Months of This Year.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Nov. 27.—Deaths on the highways of the country reached a new high mark in the first ten months of 1935, the National Safety Council disclosed today.

Council statisticians counted 28,760 motor-vehicle fatalities in the first ten months of this year as compared with the previous high of 28,753 during a similar period in 1934.

They predicted the 1935 toll, despite the efforts of an aroused officialdom, would equal last year's all-time mark of 36,000.

Toll Greater Than in War.

They also figured out this comparison to illustrate the enormity of the slaughter: In 18 months of the World War, 50,510 American soldiers lost their lives; in 18 months of perilous peace in 1934 and 1935, a total of 51,500 Americans lost their lives in auto accidents.

The trend of motor-mishap deaths had eased downward a trifle during the first three quarters of 1935. But 3,640 persons perished in October.

October's toll greatly exceeded the 3,531 recorded in the same month last year and the 1929-1933 average of 3,238. October's total, surpassing by 220 the high of 3,420 reached in August, was the largest of the year.

Pedestrian Toll Drops.

Fatalities in 1935 exceeded those of 1934 in five of the first ten months. Increases were noted in the deaths of persons under 4 years of age and over 65, but a slight slump in the number of pedestrians killed by motorists was detected.

Despite the general upward tendency, the council said 23 States reported fewer deaths this year than last.

The council named the following "safest cities" in their population class and calculated their death rates per 100,000 residents: Milwaukee, 10.4; Providence, R. I., 6.1; Fall River, Mass., 5.2; Evanston, Ill., 3.5; Central Falls, R. I., and Wauwatosa, no deaths.

Labor Regime Forms Rule for New Zealand

By the Associated Press.

Wellington, New Zealand (Thursday), Nov. 28.—Michael J. Savage, New Zealand Labor Party leader, prepared today to form the first Labor government in the history of the country, as the result of a smashing victory in yesterday's general elections.

Final returns showed the Labor Party won 52 seats in the House of Representatives while the coalition government of Prime Minister G. W. Forbes, in office since 1931, took only 20 seats. The remaining eight places went to independents.

Envoy Is Handcuffed, Then Released

Ghaffar Djalal, Minister to the United States from Iran (Persia), and his wife. The envoy was handcuffed by Elkton (Md.) police yesterday as his car was stopped on speeding charge, but was freed and went on to New York.

Iran Envoy Seized as Speeder, Handcuffed but Released Later

Elkton Authorities Find They Have No Jurisdiction in Holding Djalal; Driver Also Freed and Diplomat Continues His Journey to N. Y.

By the Associated Press.

Elkton, Md., Nov. 27.—Freed of handcuffs clapped on him during a scuffle with Elkton town police, Ghaffar Djalal, minister to the United States from Iran (Persia), today continued his trip to New York.

His status as a foreign diplomat—learned after the scuffle—brought dismissal of charges of speeding. Even though his chauffeur, William Collier, 28, of Washington, pleaded guilty to such a charge, the magistrade held he had no jurisdiction.

Police Chief Jacob Biddle started the affair when he stopped Djalal's car after, Biddle claimed, it had passed through one part of town at an excessive speed. Biddle said he was pushed off the running board and the car proceeded.

Biddle called on Constable Clayton Ellison and George M. Potts, former police chief, for assistance and the car was stopped again.

Then, Biddle said, the scuffle began, to the accompaniment of the barking of a dog in the back seat of the car.

"He (Djalal) grabbed at my badge," Biddle said, "and then grabbed onto my tie and pulled it out of my vest. To avoid any trouble, I told Constable Ellison to put the handcuffs on him."

The party then went to the office of Sheriff Eugene Racine where the handcuffs were removed and the minister's identity made known. The Elkton magistrate was out of town and Sheriff Racine advised that the diplomat be taken to nearby North East for an immediate hearing.

Magistrate George C. Rawson heard the case, including Collier's ples of guilty.

"I lack any jurisdiction in a case involving a foreign diplomat," Rawson said. "The only way this matter can be pursued is for the State of Maryland to take it up."

State's Attorney E. D. E. Rollins said he did not know of the case officially, but, so far as he was concerned, it was closed.

Chief Biddle said that a woman with Djalal was not identified.

"She sat in the car and talked nearly as much as he did," Biddle said. "She was a foreigner—she talked his language."

Chief Biddle also said that he asked the Mayor whether a complaint against Djalal's alleged speeding should be forwarded to the State Department.

Cash Pours In to The Post; Donor Urges Additional Rehabilitation Aid.

Thirty-four more contributions, totaling $69, sent the fund The Post is collecting for the legal defense of Edith Maxwell up to $158.85 on its second day yesterday.

The fund will be used to assure the girl, cast into a Wise (Va.) jail by a mountaineer jury that found her guilty of the murder of the father, who had beaten her for staying out late at night, of full legal defense as she seeks a new trial.

And even as the fund accumulated, a suggestion came yesterday from one of Maryland's leading social workers, Mrs. Willie Greene-Day Perry, that it should be swelled further into a "rehabilitation fund," over and above the legal defense needs.

"Edith Maxwell can never be free in Wise, Va., even if acquitted by the court," Mrs. Perry wrote.

A resident of Bethesda, Mrs. Perry was supervisor of county aid for Montgomery County and one time executive director of the Montgomery County Social Service League. She is married to a prominent Bethesda merchant, Walter E. Perry.

Her letter follows:

"It gives me pleasure to inclose a check to be applied to the Edith Maxwell Defense Fund. Your supervision of this fund gives the assurance that it will be prudently administered, and your leadership in behalf of social justice merits support of the socially minded and intellectually honest individuals and groups of this community.

"I hope that response to your appeal will be generous enough to establish an adequate defense fund, and then to build a reserve which may be used in making it possible for Edith Maxwell to adjust in a new environment after she has been given her civil freedom. For Edith Maxwell can never be free in Wise, Va., even if acquitted by the court. In a community where the moral and social codes are based upon the inflexible 'Thou shalt not' doctrine, she will always bear the stigma of an offender and be pointed out as the girl who ought to be in prison now, and would be, if it were not for the foreign lawyers who came down and got her off."

"Will Ruin Life."

"Being liberated from jail into such a hostile atmosphere provides little that is provocative of growth toward self-support and wholesome living. It means little more than starting her off on another journey, loaded with an insurmountable handicap. In the end she may well wonder why she was freed for a slow and tortuous defeat.

"Rehabilitation for Edth Maxwell, of course, cannot be planned hastily. It will require intimate knowledge of the situation, of her and her family. It will involve wise and experienced leadership, time and financial resources.

"But of this we can be assured—if the financial provision is made, her real freedom to more useful and self-respecting citizenship can be developed. I, therefore, petition you to urge those interested in real freedom to contribute to an Edith Maxwell rehabilitation fund in order that she may not be deserted in the camp of the enemy, where even her tachers have so little understanding of human behavior as to feel she is a bad girl who has violated the law and should be punished to suit the crime."

Mountain Girl Opens 'School' For Prisoners

death and in Edith's being locked up in the red-brick jail.

Since July 21 the pretty young teacher has been in a cell. And she'll be there until March, even if she is granted a new trial by Judge H. A. W. Skeen, who sentenced her last week to 25 years in the penitentiary for first-degree murder.

Judge Skeen, straight as a pine tree and hard of hearing, is expected to rule on December 12 concerning the new trial. If he refuses to grant another hearing, Edith's attorneys, A. A. Skeen, a former judge in nearby Clintwood; former State Senator R. P. Bruce and W. W. Dotson, will appeal to the higher courts, carrying it "clear to the United States Supreme Court if necessary."

But no matter where they carry it, Edith is almost sure to be in jail here at least until March. That's when the next term of court opens.

The girl is making the best of it. At first it worried her.

"I'm afraid people'll get to thinking I'm like them," she told her only brother, Earl. But young Maxwell, who left the mountains 16 years ago and has seen much of the world since, told her to try to regard it as interesting experience.

Edith did just that. And now she is teaching school again. She has no textbooks, but she's holding informal classes anyhow. She's telling the other women prisoners about history and literature and geography. She's passing on to them as much as they can absorb of the knowledge she picked up during her two years at East Radford Teachers College, East Radford, Va.

Often she writes letters for the completely illiterate. She was girlishly pleased yesterday because she'd taught one how to write her own name.

Helped by Brother.

Edith's lot is not quite so hard as that of the other inmates of the big cell. Her brother, Earl, has seen to that. Soon after she was locked up he arranged to have a bed moved in for her. He brings her clean linens every week, he takes her fresh clothing and keeps her supplied with face powder, toilet soap and lipstick.

Earl is ten years older than Edith. The girl worships him, she does whatever Earl says. When she came to the barred door this afternoon she looked fresh and cheerful. Her dark bobbed hair was brushed neatly back from her face. She had on a soft blue dress with a navy and white polka dot bow at the throat. Her attempts at daintiness in such sordid surroundings were pathetic.

But even with the comforts that the mountain girl's brother has been able to provide, the cell is an ugly, loathsome place. Sometimes it contains as many as 24 women at one time. That's usually on Sunday, after the heavy Saturday night run of drunks and disorderlies have been brought in. And over it all hangs the unmistakable jail smell; that peculiar, nauseating odor of iron, damp cement, disinfectant, and poor ventilation.

Drain on Finances.

Edith's brother is her most frequent visitor. He has been here ever since she was first locked up, doing everything he can for her. But the constant drain on his finances is bound to make the situation difficult as time goes on.

He's proud. He said today he could take care of Edith and the whole family. He is a traveling salesman for a wholesale candy firm in New York.

But trials cost money. Expenses of the first one haven't been met yet. Meanwhile, the expense of looking after Edith goes on.

Edith herself is in debt. When she went to East Bedford State Teachers College, she borrowed some money from the school and some from an aunt who is postmistress in a nearby small town. She was paying off on those notes with money she earned teaching. But she only got to teach one year. She received $580 for that.

Hit With Slipper.

Before the school term opened this fall Edith was arrested. She had hit her drunken father, a former blacksmith, over the head with one of her slippers when he dragged her around by the hair and threatened "to break her neck." Trigg Maxwell died an hour later that same night. His daughter was charged with his murder.

And so she sits in her cell. Her hopes for a new trial from Judge Skeen are high. She and her lawyers and her family want the same judge again. They might ask for a change of jury, but they want Judge Skeen to preside. They all think he's a fair, honest man.

If Edith is acquitted she wants to go away from the mountains. Some city in the North would be nice, she thinks.

"I'd want to take nurse's training," she said.

Earl Maxwell said he'd move the whole family away; "probably to New York."

Attorney Fined For Excess Fee From Veteran

Test Planned for U. S. Law Fixing Legal Charge in Compensation Cases.

By the Associated Press.

Jonesboro, Ark., Nov. 27.—A fine of $400 imposed on former General Counsel William Wolff Smith, of the Veterans' Administration, today, provided a test case on which attorneys will seek a final ruling concerning fees which may be legally charged a veteran for assistance in obtaining compensation and compensation adjustments.

Smith was convicted by Federal Judge John E. Martineau here yesterday on an indictment charging that he wrongfully collected a $569.20 fee from Arthur E. York, Corning (Ark.) World War veteran, whom he represented in a claim for disability compensation adjustment.

The Government alleged that the legal fee was $10. Smith, who resigned as Veterans' Administration general counsel in 1932, prior to taking the York case, claimed the national economy act repealed that section of the World War veterans' act which fixed the $10 fee limit.

In ruling against him and fixing a fine of $400, Judge Martineau commented that "the attorneys involved probably acted in good faith, believing the fee limit had been repealed."

The defense at once took an appeal to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals and Smith made $500 bond.

"The case is of great importance to all claimants before the Veterans' Administration in Washington, and to the bar of the country and the District of Columbia bar in particular," said Defense Attorney J. A. Tellier. "Until today, none of the questions raised had ever been passed upon in court."

Mexico Teachers Strike.

Eagle Pass, Tex., Nov. 27 (AP).—One hundred and fifty school teachers in nine towns of northern Coahuila, Mexico, walked out of their classrooms today, fulfilling a threat made by the teachers' association two weeks ago.

They planned to remain on strike until 11 months' back salary is paid.

Adair, the chairman, with Mrs. Gline Bowman, former national president of the federation, both in Richmond, and with Miss Florence Buford, in Charlottesville.

By the end of the week, Mrs. Bowman is expected to go to Wise. All three members of the committee have already been gathering available data.

And reports kept coming in of the feeling of the 22 Virginia clubs in the federation. First the Norfolk club suggested financial aid for the girl. Then word came yesterday that the Petersburg club had adopted resolutions urging that the case be re-opened, calling upon all local organizations to support this effort, citing its own belief that the girl had not had a fair trial.

For the State organization, Mrs. Bowman is expected to seek interviews with the principals in the case in Wise. Should the committee decide that Miss Maxwell was a victim of injustice, it would probably recommend that the State organization seek a new trial. It might suggest that the local clubs contribute financial assistance, and, if necessary, that the State group itself might do so.

At her home in Alexandria, Miss Ramey, principal of the Evans Kingsman Maury School here, regent of the Virginia federation since May, said last night:

"The committee was led to work on its study because of the feeling that seems to have sprung up in the clubs all over the State, judging from the papers, that an injustice has been done. So the committee is investigating the matter for itself."

Poised and balanced, she answered a question as to her opinions with the comment:

"My personal opinion is that, on the face of it, so far as I can tell from the papers, there has been an injustice.

"My personal feeling is that the basis on which the jury apparently made its decision—the papers say it was because the jury felt a girl should not do anything or stay out anywhere unless her father willed it—was decidedly unfair.

"In such a thing, all the club members, as business women, are very much interested, and we want to study it for ourselves."

Action from the nearest member club, the Arlington County Business and Professional Women's Club, can probably not be expected for some time. Its next regular meeting will be December 17.

Another powerful Arlington group, the Arlington Women's Club, will meet Monday at 2 p. m. in the Community Hall at Arlington, and the subject may come up then.

Dispatches to The Post yesterday indicated sympathy throughout the State for the girl many consider a victim of the stern mountain code that a girl must submit in every way to her father.

At Charlottesville, the director of the Institute of Public Affairs of the University of Virginia, Dr. Charles G. Maphis, said:

"I realize it might be unfair to criticize the verdict of a jury without hearing all the evidence, and although my opinion is based on newspaper accounts, I had the feeling that it was an outstanding case of miscarriage of justice on hearing of the verdict in the Edith Maxwell case.

"From the facts reported, I could see no evidence of malice or premeditation, but, on the other hand, a clear case of self-defense.

"I hope, therefore, that the higher court will review the decision."

A man well acquainted with the hill people of the Blue Ridge region, Dr. F. W. Neve, of Ivy, for 47 years a worker for religious, educational, and social welfare, commented:

"The evidence against Edith Maxwell does not seem to support the verdict.

"It is unfortunate that she had to be tried in a community where prejudices clouded the chances for a fair trial, and I think she certainly ought to get a new trial in a community where these prejudices do not exist."

Two Popular Society Girls Will Be Presented Today

Miss Sally Mitchell LeFevre and Miss Frances Andrews to Make Bows; Navy Relief Ball to Be Brilliant Event.

By Evelyn Peyton Gordon.

Today in every home in this country, the great national holiday of Thanksgiving will be celebrated in some way. In New England, of course, it will be celebrated after the fashion of our forefathers who originated the day many years ago, as a true day for giving thanks.

In Washington, where there are so many who do not know about Thanksgiving, namely, members of the Diplomatic Corps, there are various kinds of celebrations. All Americans will have their turkey dinners, principally with members of the family of those near to them as guests, and later in the day, there will be many social events to occupy the time. Thanksgiving Day is more in demand than any other for debut parties, and this afternoon two popular young members of society will make their bows. Miss Sally Mitchell LeFevre, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. LeFevre, will be presented at a large tea at the home of her parents on Tracy place, and Rear Admiral and Mrs. Adolphus Andrews will introduce their daughter, Miss Frances Andrews, to society at a reception in their home on Kalorama road.

Miss LeFevre's debut will recall to many the debut of her sister, the popular Mrs. Gordon Luke, who was formerly Miss Hester Anne LeFevre. She was presented several years ago. The debut took place in the same house in which today's bud will make her bow, and pretty Sally Mitchell, with her blue eyes and soft brown hair gives promise of being as popular as her sister. Later this evening Mr. and Mrs. LeFevre will entertain at a dinner at the Chevy Chase Club for their daughter. The guests will be the young girls assisting her and their escorts. They will remain at the club for dancing, and some may join the group which will attend the Navy relief ball at the Willard.

Pomp and Brilliance.

Miss Andrews, who is one of several Navy debutantes of the season, will entertain at a buffet supper after her reception. Her guests will be the group assisting her and their escorts, and later they will attend the Navy relief ball.

The ball, a traditional Thanksgiving night event in Washington for many years, will be the high spot of the day. There will be pomp and brilliance, strangely mingled with gayety and dancing. High ranking officers of the Navy as well as many others will entertain at dinners before the ball, and many will entertain at box parties. The Harbor, a smart cocktail bar arranged for the occasion will add a different note to the ball this year, and the Navy and Marine Corps Bands will provide fine music for dancing.

Mrs. Claude A. Swanson, wife of the Secretary of the Navy, will have as guests the Ambassador of Germany, Herr Hans Luther; Frau Edmond Koerner, who is visiting at the embassy; the Minister of the Union of South Africa and Mrs. Ralph William Close, the Minister of Greece, Mr. Demetrios Sicilianos; the Counselor of the Greek Legation, Mr. Nicholas Lely; the Assistant Naval Attache of the British Embassy and Mrs. A. L. P. Mark-Wardlaw, the Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Daniel C. Roper, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Mark L. Bristol, Mrs. Ruby James Gordon, Mrs. Albert Niblack, Mrs. Guy Despard Goff, Gen. and Mrs. Hugh Matthews and Capt. and Mrs. Frank Fletcher.

Mrs. Ridley McLean, widow of Rear Admiral McClean, has as her guests Capt. and Mrs. Harvey Delano, of Newport. She will entertain a group box at the ball.

Roosevelts in Georgia.

The President and his official family will be separated for the Thanksgiving holiday. The Chief Executive and Mrs. Roosevelt have already gone to Warm Springs, Ga. They will have with them the Assistant Postmaster General, Mr. Harllee Branch; Mr. Karl Crowley, Miss Stella Akin, Mr. George Berry, Mr. Leo T. Crowley, Mr. John W. Fahey, Mr. Harry L. Hopkins, Mr. J. Monroe Johnson, Mr. Smith Purdum, Mr. Horace Russell, Mr. Charles A. Jones and Mr. W. E. Reynolds.

The Secretary of State and Mrs. Cordell Hull will remain in Washington for the holiday, and the Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Morgenthau are already at their country home for the week-end.

The Secretary of War and Mrs. George H. Dern, who have been absent some weeks attending the Philippine inauguration, are on the high seas, bound for this country, and the Attorney General, Mr. Homer S. Cummings, is taking a brief vacation at Pinehurst, N. C. Mrs. Cummings is visiting in New York. The Postmaster General has joined Mrs. Farley and their children in New York, and the Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Swanson will spend a quiet day, to be culminated by the Navy ball.

The Secretary of the Interior, Mr. Ickes, will remain at his home, Hayes, in nearby Maryland, and the Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Wallace will have with them their young daughter, Jean, their sons being in schools too far away to come home for so short a holiday. The Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Roper will have a family gathering at their home, and Miss Perkins, Secretary of Labor, will spend a quiet day in her apartment at the Carlton.

U. D. C. Aids to See 'So Red the Rose'

Mrs. A. E. Barr Returns From Convention.

District of Columbia officers of the United Daughters of the Confederacy will attend the Friday evening showing of "So Red the Rose" at the Earle Theater.

Mrs. A. E. Barr, division president, who has just returned from the U. D. C. national convention at Hot Springs, Ark., will have a large party with her, including Mrs. Fred L. Volland, Mrs. Clarence L. Engle, Mrs. Cora Talley, Mrs. Cora E. Settle, Miss Laura Martin, Miss Loreana A. Hewett, Mrs. C. K. Spreck, Mrs. Charles H. Wagner, Mrs. Richard A. Allen, Mrs. G. H. Alexander, Mrs. Norman H. Britton and Miss Frances D. Shirley.

Black and White Ball Presents 50 Debutantes

Mrs. Dunlop, jr., Miss Alfaro Head Receiving Line at Mayflower Function.

Approximately 50 of this season's debutantes in the National Capital and a sprinkling of out-of-town debutantes attended the Black and White ball last evening at the Mayflower and were presented to Washington bachelors by Mrs. William Laird Dunlop, jr., who inaugurated the function five years ago in Washington.

In addition to the all-white gowns and powdered or silver headdresses worn by the debutantes, this year they wore sprays of gardenias in the hair as a further mark of identification. Their escorts also carried out the gardenia idea by wearing them as boutonnieres.

Miss Alfaro Heads Line.

Miss Amelita Alfaro, daughter of the Minister of Panama and Senora de Alfaro, the season's ranking debutante, who stood next to Mrs. Dunlop in line, wore a beautiful gown of hammered silver, made with V-neck back and front, with shirring on the shoulders that formed a draped effect that crossed in the front of the bodice, wrapped around the waist, and formed panels down the back.

Miss Agnes Sholes and Miss Janie Belle Sholes, daughters of the United States Consul to Brussels and Mrs. Walter H. Sholes, wore lovely white velvet gowns, the ones they wore when they were presented at the Belgian Court. Miss Eleanor Campbell and Miss Eliana Campbell, daughters of the new commercial counselor to the Chilean Embassy in Washington and Mrs. Carlos Campbell, were dressed alike in frocks of white silk net. They, too, were in the receiving line, and will participate in debutante activities here this winter.

Other out-of-town debutantes included Miss Solveig Smith-Peterson, of Milwaukee, house guest of Miss Catherine McKane, who wore white lame made with a tuxedo collar and a slight train. An effective tiara of gardenias added a distinctive touch to Miss McKane's ensemble. Also from out of the city were Miss Anne Butler, of Philadelphia; Miss Cornelia Johnson, of Vernon, Tex., and Miss Dorothy Cherbonnet, of New Orleans.

Outstanding Gowns.

Miss Mary Patterson wore an attractive gown of white velvet, made with tight-fitting bodice and very full skirt, scalloped at the hemline. In addition to gardenias in her hair, she wore a lei of the same flowers and a cluster on her bodice.

Miss Alice Clarke was dressed in silver lame, draped in a most becoming manner at the waistline in the front. Miss Leonie McCoy's gown was cream-white hammered satin, most becoming with her silvered hair.

Orchestra Plays Music of Mexico

Diplomat Sponsors Concert at Pan American Union; 1,000 Attend.

Maestro Miguel Lerdo de Tejada, director of the Mexican Typical Orchestra, presented a concert of Mexican music at the Pan-American Union last night under the auspices of the Charge d'Affaires of Mexico, Senor Don Luis Quintanillo.

The orchestra consists of 70 musicians, including some of the principal soloists of Mexico. There are also 15 singers and two dancers.

The uniforms of the members are black with rows of silver buttons down the sides of their trousers; their hats are richly adorned with silver and the sarape worn by the musicians affords a striking contrast to the remainder of their uniforms.

Nearly 1,000 guests, members of diplomatic, official and residential society, gathered to hear the orchestra, which accompanied the all-star Mexican high school football team to Washington. The team will compete tomorrow with the Central High School team, Washington champions, in Griffith Stadium for the benefit of the Police Boys Club.

The program included "Marcha Patriotica," El Faison, with Prof. Silveiro Prieto, soloist; a vocal solo, "Granada," by Jose Rubio, tenor; "Rapsodia Mexicana," Marimba selections by the Martin Brothers, including "Polka de Concieto" and "Stacatto;" "Cancioneros Rancheros," by Laura Rives and Raimundo Perez; a group of old Mexican songs, a group of contemporary Mexican songs, "Corrido Ranchero" and "Jarabe Nacional," by Pedro Valdes and Laura Rives.

Three Debutantes Make Bow To Society at Parties Here

Yolande de Mauduit, Anna Lee Stuart and Jean Heiberg Presented at Receptions and Tea Held Yesterday.

Three of the season's debutantes made their bows to Capital society yesterday: Miss Yolande de Mauduit, daughter of Mrs. Griffith de Mauduit, who was presented at the National Woman's Country Club; Miss Anna Lee Stuart, daughter of Capt. Harry A. Stuart, U. S. N., and Mrs. Stuart, who was presented at a reception at the Army and Navy Country Club, and Miss Jean Heiberg, daughter of Lieut. Comdr. Walter Heiberg, U. S. N., and Mrs. Heiberg, who made her debut at a tea given at her parents' home on Wyoming avenue.

Miss de Mauduit has already had another debut party given for her by her cousin, Mrs. James F. Curtis earlier in the season. But yesterday was the formal presentation, and receiving with the debutante and her mother was Mrs. Walter R. Tuckerman, president of the country club.

The debutante wore a gown of white crepe fashioned with long sleeves and a high neckline, and carried a bouquet of gardenias. Presiding at the tea table in turn, were Mrs. John Bigelow, Mrs. Herbert Seymour Howard, Mrs. Russell Sard, Mrs. Thomas Ellett, Miss Florida Hewitt, Mrs. Edward Spalding, Mrs. Joseph Taussig, Mrs. Pierre Gaillard, and Mrs. James Ives.

Miss Stuart wore a charming frock of soft blue taffeta made with a brief jacket and tiny puffed sleeves. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses. Mrs. Stuart wore a gown of blue velvet with a jacket of blue lame, and Mrs. J. J. Blandin, grandmother of the debutante, who received with her, also wore blue velvet.

Assisting Mrs. Stuart were Mrs. William H. Standley, wife of the Chief of Naval Operations; Mrs. Earl Metz, Mrs. Frank Fletcher, Mrs. Harry Freeman Clark, Mrs. Harry Meem, Mrs. Edward Tierney, Mrs. Powell Minnigerode, Miss Mona Gill, Mrs. W. T. Willett, Mrs. Samuel Ficlen, Mrs. Percy Quinn, Mrs. Moncure Burke and Mrs. Richard Gruelick.

Assisting the debutante were Senorita Amelita Alfaro, Miss Mary Patterson, Miss Peggy McNeale and Miss Elizabeth Radeker.

Mrs. Harry F. Clark will give a luncheon for Miss Stuart on December 21 at the Colonial Dames Club, and Mrs. Samuel Ficklen will also entertain at a luncheon for Miss Stuart on December 7 at the Shoreham.

Commander and Mrs. Heiberg presented their daughter at a tea in their home yesterday, when the debutante wore a frock of white satin with a jacket of white and gold lame, and carried a bouquet of yellow roses and African daisies. Mrs. Heiberg wore an afternoon gown of green crepe with long flowing sleeves.

Assisting Mrs. Heiberg were her sister-in-law, Mrs. E. R. Heiberg; Mrs. D. P. Penhallow, Mrs. Frank Fletcher, Miss Eloise Sargent, Mrs. Charles Marlatt, Miss Ellen Tyler, Mrs. W. D. Puleston and Mrs. William Payne, of New York.

With the debutante were Miss Leonie McCoy, Miss Mary Wells, Miss Jean Gilbert and Mrs. John McGee, who was formerly Miss Narcissa Sullivan.

Dr. and Mrs. Charles Lester Marlatt will entertain at a buffet supper in honor of their daughter, Miss Constance Marlatt, and Miss Mary L. Wells, on December 7. It will follow the reception at which Miss Marlatt and Miss Wells will be presented to society, by Dr. and Mrs. Marlatt and Mr. Hewitt Wells.

Honoring their daughter, Dr. and Mrs. Marlatt will entertain at a dinner and dance party at their home on Sixteenth street, December 30. Miss Marlatt, who is a student at Smith College, will spend the Christmas holidays with her parents and will be feted at the affairs being planned for the debutantes of the season.

Miss Butler Is Wed Here To Mr. Norris

Mildred Burnham Is the Bride of Ade Mony Spottswood.

Of interest is the announcement of the marriage of Miss Frances Butler, daughter of Mrs. John A. Butler, of Georgetown, and Mr. John Gilbert Norris, son of Mrs. Charles A. Norris, which took place in the gold room of the Hamilton Hotel last night.

The Rev. Andrew V. Graves officiated in front of an improvised altar of yellow and white chrysanthemums which was lighted by candles. Preceding and during the ceremony a program of organ and violin music was presented. The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Richard S. Butler, wore a model of white chiffon velvet with lace-inserted sleeves. Her veil of tulle was held in place by a cap of lace, with bands of the same lace edging the train. White roses and lilies of the valley formed the bridal bouquet.

The bride's only attendant was her sister, Mrs. James Paul Meegan, of Buffalo, N. Y., who was frocked in shirred fuchsia velvet and carried a bouquet of roses. Mr. Norris had as his best man his brother-in-law, Mr. Lawrence B. O'Connor. Assisting the bridal party in receiving were the mothers of the young couple and the sister of the bridegroom, Mrs. Lawrence B. O'Connor. Mrs. Butler wore sapphire blue velvet with a corsage of gardenias, and Mrs. Norris was gowned in black velvet with a corsage of the same flowers. Mrs. O'Connor wore a Grecian frock of brown and yellow crepe.

Upon their return from a wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Norris will make their home in Washington. The bride wore a traveling suit of deep green camel suede with accessories of brown.

The bride attended the Georgetown Visitation Convent, in Washington, and St. Mary's College, in New York. Mr. Norris is a graduate of George Washington University, later receiving a law degree there. He is a member of the Delta Tau Delta fraternity.

Peterson—Baker.

Announcement is made by Mr. and Mrs. George E. Baker, of Broadwater, Nebr., of the marriage of their daughter, Miss Bonita Beryl Baker, and Mr. Edwin W. Peterson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl M. Peterson, of Cromwell, Minn., which took place in the Lincoln Chapel of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church here yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Joseph R. Sizoo, D. D. Baskets of late autumn flowers, ferns and palms decorated the church. The bride was gowned in ivory satin, fashioned with long, tight-fitting sleeves and a yoke of lace and circular ruffles outlining the back of the skirt. She carried a bouquet of gardenias and lillies of the valley.

Attending the bride was Miss Vera Berger, who was frocked in starlit blue lace with a fitted jacket and carried a bouquet of yellow roses. Mr. Peterson had as his best man, Mr. Harold A. Naisbett.

After the church ceremony a reception was given in honor of the young couple at the home of the Assistant Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. M. L. Wilson in Chevy Chase for members of the immediate families and a few friends. Assisting the bridal party and Mr. and Mrs. Wilson in receiving the guests was the mother of the bride, who was gowned in plum-colored crepe and wore a corsage of rosebuds.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Peterson left for a wedding trip to New York, the bride wearing a traveling suit of blue crepe with a coat and accessories of black. Upon their return they will be at home here.

"Old King Cole" will be the second of a series of six children's plays which the Children's Theater of New York will present tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock at the National Theater.

Post's Bulletin Service Offers Interesting Data

All Requests Which Inclose Two-Cent Stamp Will Be Filled.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

WITH Mr. Turkey Gobbler having a monopoly on your time and interests today, no doubt your shopping lists are put away until tomorrow. So—instead of our usual news of shops, let's turn our reporting spotlight on another subject. One, by the way, which you're bound to find helpful once you realize all it can mean to you.

That's The Post bulletin service. All you do is write in and inclose a 2-cent stamp and there will be mailed to you any number you request of these bulletins, which give you plenty of information about 'most everything.

For instance, there's one on calling cards, telling what type to use and when to use them, others on how to have pretty nails and hands; the bride's silver chest; what I should know about furs; how to take care of my fur coat; planning the wedding day; choosing a hat; things to know about glass, etc.

• • • •

There's an especially interesting bulletin on appropriate gifts for wedding anniversaries. It tells all about that first anniversary being the paper one, the second, the calico, the third the leather, the fourth, silk, etc.

• • • •

The two pamphlets on gay ways and new ways of wrapping hristmas packages are sure to be in demand.

The first mentioned, written by The Post interior decorating expert, Elizabeth McRae Boykin, gives suggestions on wrapping packages to suit them to the individual. For instance, she says for a lady who knits, red paper wrapping tied with several strands of white yarn is sure to be attractive and appropriate. Instead of a bow, she says, have a new ball of white yarn with knitting needles stuck through it.

For a fisherman, blue paper wrapping with a fish line to tie it with and a selection of flies and hooks for trimmings on the cord.

For a man who loves to tinker, building paper of brown paper wrapping tied with coarse brown cord with nails and toy tools at the ends of the cord and attached here and there on the cord.

There are numerous others, for a boy on the team, for a golfer, for a bridge player, for a girl who goes to dances, for a bookish soul, for an athletic girl, for somebody musical, for a girl with a job, for a traveler, for a collegian, for a lady who sews a fine seam, for a business man, for a girl in the grades, for a boy scout, etc.

• • • •

PERHAPS you never dreamt how simple it is to take good care of a fur coat, nor how many seasons this care will add to the life of that coat? Well Amos Parrish, fashion authority, tells you all about it in one of The Post bulletins and believe us it's a grand thing to know. To give you an idea, let's take his seventh suggestion. It says, "An occasional glazing will do your furs good. To do this, wet a stiff (but not metal) brush slightly and brush the fur in the direction which the hairs run. Do not have the brush so wet that the water penetrates to the skin. Use only enough water on the brush to moisten the top layer of fur. When the coat is dampened all over this way, run a coarse comb through and then hang the coat in a cool place to dry."

Call Ruth Anne Davis, of The Washington Post, National 4200, Extension 323, for further information, or write, inclosing stamped, addressed envelope.

FAVORITE FOODS OF famous folk

Underwood & Underwood.
MRS. CLAUDE A. SWANSON.

By Pattie Ellicott.

THE FORTUNATE guests who went to Baltimore with Mrs. Claude Swanson, wife of the Secretary of the Navy, to witness the football game between the Navy and Notre Dame are still exclaiming over the toothsome picnic lunch provided by the thoughtful hostess for the motor trip.

Mrs. Swanson, who is an excellent homemaker and personally supervises the Swanson menage, had prepared a picnic luncheon which included hot coffee in thermos bottles, piping hot, too; devil eggs and a wide variety of tea or picnic sandwiches.

The guests remember best, perhaps, the pickle relish sandwich made by using a delicious pickle relish concocted at home in the Swanson kitchens and a tea sandwich of chopped bacon and lettuce on white bread.

Frequently in these picnic luncheons a sandwich appears which fully justifies its name of "satisfying." It is made in this manner:

Satisfying Sandwich.

2 slices rye bread from round loaf
1 large slice boiled ham
1 large thin slice Swiss cheese
2 tablespoons prepared cole slaw

Medical Gains Since Colonial Era Recounted

Many Diseases Conquered Since First Observance of Thanksgiving.

By Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

ON reading the medical records of the Plymouth colony, we cannot but sense the high courage and sacrifice of those early settlers. In many pioneering ventures disease has constituted the most powerful foe, and to the Pilgrims sickness and death came with appalling force.

They were not without medical service. There was a physician among the passengers on the Mayflower in 1620, and his name is mentioned frequently in the early annals of the colony as the surgeon of the settlement. Who was this Samuel Fuller? He apparently held no medical diploma, and probably had received no more training than would accrue to an apothecary's apprentice. For several years he served as medical adviser to all the colonies about Massachusetts Bay. It is related that after Gov. Endicott's arrival in 1628, because of an epidemic of scurvy, he requested Samuel Fuller to come to the assistance of the people of Charleston and Salem "in their distress."

Despite the faithful service of Fuller, the early colonists sought medical advice wherever they could find it. One of the most widely disseminated medical documents was that sent to Gov. Winthrop by a certain Dr. (?) Edward Stafford, of London. This brief manuscript listed prescriptions for madness (insanity), falling sickness (epilepsy), disease of the bladder, "bloodie flux" (diarrhea with hemorrhage) and yellow "jaundise." Pain in the breast was treated by instructing the sufferer to "weare a wilde catt's skin on ye place grieved."

In the colonial medicine chest there was a black powder to prevent plague, smallpox and all sorts of fevers. For burns with "gunn powder or otherwise," the inner bark of elder was made into a tea (probably the first mention of the tannic acid treatment for burns). Strict caution was enjoined against letting blood except in pleurisy or contusion (injuries). Special diets are frequently referred to, and the statement is made that in the beginning of all fevers the patient is to fast for two or three days, and both meat and drink are to be restricted.

We may with profit contemplate medical progress during the span of years from 1621 to 1935—from the first Thanksgiving to the present one. All disease has not been conquered, but we may view with satisfaction victories over smallpox, diphtheria, typhoid fever, scarlet fever, tuberculosis and scores of other conditions. We have learned hundreds of lessons in disease prevention. Rules of hygiene now come to us from our knowledge of physiology, of chemistry and of bacteriology. The skillful use of diets approaches a science, and the progress of surgery, the development of hospitals and schools of nursing have surrounded the sick with comfort and safety.

With all our progress, however, we may bow in humility before the fortitude and the devotion to principle of the Pilgrim fathers and mothers.

Mural Tells Story of Woman's 3,000-Year Quest for Beauty

The arts of coiffure and make-up were well known both to the Chinese beauties of the fourth century and the Grecian women of the days of Helen of Troy, as the above panel from Clara Fargo Thomas' mural, "A Pageant of Beauty," reveals. At left is a Chinese exquisite being groomed for the day. At right is a Minoan lady in elaborate headdress. At top of the panel is a caravan bringing perfumes and oils to Hellenic women from the Far East.

Capital to See Clara Thomas' Famous Mural

'Pageant of Beauty' Will Be Displayed Next Week at Jelleff's.

GRAPHIC proof that neither Hitler, Mussolini, the Soviet Union, dress reformers nor modern exponents of "common sense" will ever be able to deter woman from her quest after physical beauty is contained in a mural decoration to be exhibited in Washington next week. It is Clara Fargo Thomas' much discussed "A Pageant of Beauty," which is to be shown at Jelleff's from Tuesday to Saturday.

The mural, which is founded on extensive historical studies made by Mrs. Thomas, depicts women from the days of Queen Nefertiti—1350 B. C.—down to the present practicing their beautifying arts. The decoration was made for the country home of Mrs. Elizabeth Graham Lewis, better known as Elizabeth Arden, and has been lent by her for exhibition in Washington. It was exhibited last summer in London in connection with the silver jubilee of King George and Queen Mary.

In preparations for executing the mural, Mrs. Thomas made an exhausting study of feminine beauties of all ages. Her studies led her to conclude, she said in a recent interview, that Queen Nefertiti, relative of King Tutankhamen remains the most beautiful woman of all time.

Mural Blasts Tradition.

The mural blasts man's cherished tradition—that the old-time girls were all natural beauties. Women of the past were as artificial in their beautifying as those of today it shows. Even Helen of Troy, every man's dream woman, is shown fluffing out her freshly shampooed tresses with a curling stick. Roman ladies for all their mental advancement are shown walking on their hands and knees to make their figures lithe.

Queen Nefertiti is depicted in the first panel of the group. The mural reveals that she did not depend alone on her delicately carved features to bring her beauty acclaim. She is shown touching up her lips and studying the effect in a mirror. Before her is a large perfume vase and grouped about it are jars containing kohl (the Egyptian mascara' and dyes for tinting the nails.

That the early Egyptian women went in for body exercises in a big way is attested in the second panel, which shows Nubian slaves swinging noble ladies around by the arms. Nearby are other women tumbling and turning somersaults.

Other panels show caravans bringing oils, perfumes, silks, jewels and other beauty aids from the Far East to the woman of the Hellenic world. They show these women experimenting with rudely-constructed shower baths. Later the Roman women enjoyed warm baths in primitive bath tubs.

That woman of India early indulged in the luxury of the pedicure is revealed in the mural. Queen Elizabeth's beauty secrets also are bared as are those of Madame de Pompadour. So determined did the search for beauty become according to the mural that in the early nineteenth century women were suspended in air by chin straps—to reduce double chins—and laced into corsets by heroic measures.

Mrs. Thomas, now one of the foremost mural decorators of the country and the first American woman to hold a mural exhibition in London, began her career by accident 15 years ago when she started decorating her son's bedroom. Her works include "Trees to Tribunes" murals in the News Building in New York city and "Freedam of the Press," soon to be installed in the Tribune Tower in Chicago.

A preview reception and tea, at which Mrs. Lewis, owner of the mural, will be present, will be held at Jelleff's Monday afternoon.

Privileges Urged For Girls of 16

Speaker Expresses Doubt They Will Abuse Freedom.

Some "private life" for the girl of 16 was urged by Miss Elizabeth Woodward, staff member of a woman's magazine in a recent address at a meeting of women's clubs in Philadelphia. This private life, she said, should include:

A room to herself, mail that had been unopened by elders, the right to choose her own clothes and freedom from constant cross-examination.

"Freedom," Miss Woodward is quoted by the Associated Press as saying, "is one of the things the girl of this age wants most. If she has proved herself reliable, she should be given a reasonable amount of it. She will not abuse it if her parents adopt the method of talking things over instead of telling her what to do."

This BUSINESS of LIVING

Room and Meals Offered in Exchange for Light Home Duties to Refined, Unemployed Woman of 50; Domestic or "Auntie" Type Sought.

By Mary Haworth.

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: Can you help me find the kind of woman I am looking for to live in my home? I am offering room and meals to some refined, unemployed woman around 50, in exchange for light home duties. I have had women in my home before on this basis and the arrangement has proved mutually agreeable.

But what has the depression done to us? Recently I advertised in the domestic help wanted column for a middle-aged woman on this basis and most of the responses came from women who had fallen from a higher estate. One had been a traveler, one a public lecturer, another was a young divorcee and still another was a department store buyer, now working part-time.

• • • •

Imagine calling downstairs to a woman who until recently had owned a big hotel of her own and saying, "Better get some hard rolls when the baker comes. And will you please walk the dog for me this morning? I have a lot of telephoning to do!" I simply encouraged these women to try to find some more suitable place.

• • • •

Surely there must be a lot of women of the somewhat more domestic or "auntie" type who perhaps have a small income, but not enough to make them comfortably independent, who would fit well into my home on this basis. Perhaps this type of woman doesn't read the ads. I called up one charitable organization but was told their help is mostly given to families. Neither did the Life Adjustment Center have the proper names to suggest. Perhaps if you are good enough to print this letter it may lead to my finding the right woman. Churches may know of many such women, but it would be a job to canvass all the churches.

• • • •

There is just my husband and myself and the woman's time would be quite free aside from just keeping the house looking nice. I am giving you my telephone number, but not for publication.

MRS. J. B.

• • • •

DEAR MRS. J. B.: I'm sure I don't happen to know personally any woman who might be interested in your offer, but certain readers of this column may know of such a woman, or may see in your proposition a possible solution to an economic impasse in their own life. I shall be glad to give your telephone number to any interested inquirers. M. H.

Quilts to Dispose Of.

DEAR MISS HAYWORTH: If you will kindly give me some pointers about this project I shall be most appreciative: I have some beautiful hand-pieced, hand-quilted coverlids, with more available, that I should like to sell if there is a market for them. They are not antique, but really lovely and I need the money. Would shops or stores sell them on commission and what are the usual prices? They are made of cotton materials. Thanking you for any suggestions, I am, sincerely yours, QUILTER.

• • • •

DEAR QUILTER: The Gentlewomen's League at No. 1 Dupont circle has acted for over 30 years as a sort of philanthropic middleman for women who have food, needlework and other products of the household arts to sell. Mrs. M. W. Drinkard is manager of the exchange, which is supervised by a board of 30 directors, of which Mrs. Webster Ballinger is president. I suggest you visit or telephone the exchange (the number is POtomac 2663) and ask Mrs. Drinkard's advice about merchandising your handiwork. M. H.

Middle West's Marriage Age Is Below East

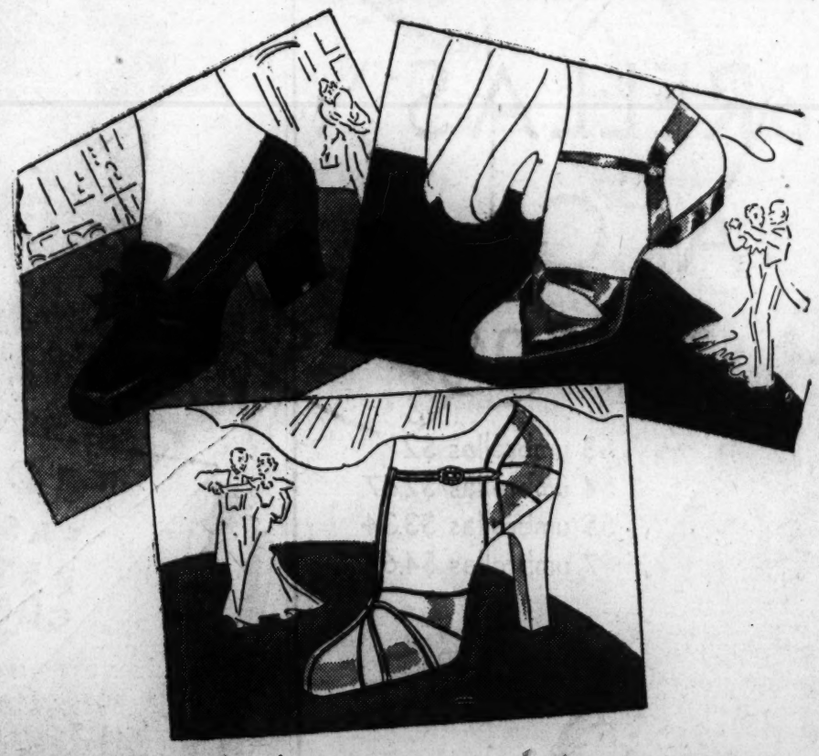
Special Dispatch to The Post.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—Midwestern men marry earlier than Easterners, but the women of these two groups marry at the same age. Children are the most appreciated factor in family life both East and West, and while the percentage of "mixed" religious marriages is greater in the former, Midwestern parents are less adverse to their children contracting such marriages than are those of the East. And living with relatives or in-laws is overwhelmingly voted by both groups as detrimental to happy and successful marriage.

Such are a few of the major comparative results, announced by the Bernarr Macfadden Foundation as shown by first returns from five Eastern and five Midwestern States in a Nation-wide "fact" survey among married couples on marriage and the home. The survey is supplementary to a national poll to ascertain public opinion on what constitutes ideal marriage.

Specifically, returns show that the average age at marriage in the East is around 23 years for the man and 19 years for the woman, while in the Midwest corresponding figures are 22 years for the man and 19 years for the woman. Husbands in both Eastern and Midwestern groups appreciate most in their home life (listed in order): (1) Children; (2) good meals; (3) an attractive home; (4) a wife's social ability.

Dancing Shoes Have Several Heel Heights; Grecian Sandals Are Almost Weightless



Gold or Silver Kid Are Worn With Glamorous Evening Gowns.

By Amos Parrish.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—Everywhere you hear the beat of dancing feet these gala evenings. And for the smartest dancing feet, Fashion orders a blithe and carefree array of shoe . . . flat-heeled Grecian sandals . . . little-boy pumps . . . sandals with medium heels . . . sandals with high and frivolous heels.

We've sketched a Grecian sandal at the upper right of the illustration. Toeless—almost heelless and almost weightless—its wearer will feel light on her feet as thistledown . . . and walk with the grace of a Grecian goddess.

Glance at the trim pump sketched above at the upper left. Almost a carbon copy of little brother's dancing school pump! Neat as a pin and stubby toed, pumps of this type are going tea and dinner dancing on the very smartest feet.

The high-heeled T-strap, comfortably snugged round the ankle, boasts cut-outs a-plenty this season (notice the T-strap sketched), and there's an elegance about their gracefully curving heels that makes them a fashion-first year after year. T-straps come with medium heels, too, of course. And this year more women are wearing medium heels than any other type.

Fashion likes to wrap herself up in glamorous gowns of gold or silver lame, these late fall evenings, and she likes gold or silver kid shoes to go with them. When she wears a colored gown, her shoes may be dyed to match, but gold or silver will be just as good, because they go with anything. Often gold or silver kid combines with black—a smart and versatile combination Brocaded evening shoes get about a lot, too. And satin, too, of course.

The less formal "little-boy" pump sketched at the upper left is of black suede, and there's something mighty smart about its inky pile, as well as about its snubby-toed, clean line. A shoe that's unusual enough to intrigue the most blase stag line!

Pleasant HOMES

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin.

WE ARE GOING to butt into the lovelorn editor's department for a few lines and give our recipe for keeping a husband home nights. We think a good place to putter is more effective than our own allure, not meaning to be overly modest.

So we got very enthusiastic over helping a friend of ours make a den for her tinkering spouse. She was in such a dilemma at the idea of incorporating a carpenter's chest of tools and a work bench but we cheered her up with our own predicament of having to accommodate nothing less than a blacksmith's forge . . . luckily we had a barn! Anyway her husband's den turned out to be a great success. The walls were of plain plank finished only with a coat of stain and then waxed. The floors were left bare too and she delighted him by letting him build most of the furniture himself somewhat on the order of the built-in things in a ship's cabin. She put her finger in when it came to the draperies and spreads and added interesting wall decorations . . . the spread she chose was of a brilliant plaid wool with a lot of red and green in the design. Then for curtains, she picked out coarse fishnet in natural color and added draperies of the plaid wool . . . lined with sateen about the same color as the wood of the walls. Two easy chairs she had done in plain green and for the walls—where his tools didn't monopolize the space, she hung a collection of framed pictures of various craftsmen at work.

New Dress Fashion, Grecian Style, Set By Duchess of Kent

By the Associated Press.

LONDON—The Duchess of Kent, the former Princess Marina of Greece, has started another new dress fashion—the Grecian style.

Making her first public appearance at a west-end restaurant since the birth of her son, she swept gracefully across the dance floor to a reserved table with her handsome husband just as a midnight cabaret was about to begin. Sir John and Lady Milbanke and the Duke's secretary were others in her party of eight.

The Duchess wore an evening gown cut on simple lines. It was of midnight purple georgette in the Grecian style, pleated at the bodice and at the back and cut fairly high both back and front. She wore a necklace of pearls and diamond earrings.

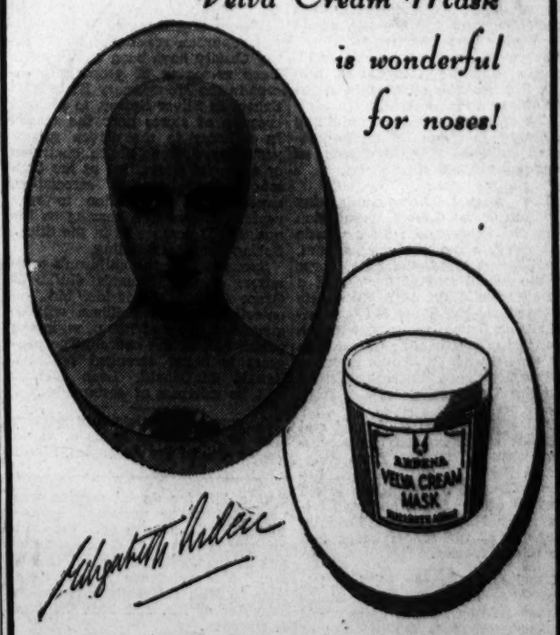
Velva Cream Mask is wonderful for noses!



● Do you realize that a shiny nose indicates pore trouble? Relaxed pores collect dirt which irritates them and causes an oily condition. Velva Cream Mask is wonderful for coarse pores. It stimulates the circulation to absorb the impurities that are doing the damage. Spread the mask over your face. Leave it on for fifteen minutes if your skin is sensitive, overnight if it is not. And your complexion will be so fair and smooth and fine that a light veil of make-up will be all you need to wear—even on your nose! Velva Cream Mask, $5.

New Alexandria School Budget Totals $244,857

Board Submits Estimate For 1936; $23,338 Increase Seen.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

At a future meeting the Alexandria City Council will give consideration to the budget submitted by the school board for the operation of thep ublic schools, showing the cost for the year, 1936 will be $239,402, as against $216,064.13 last year. To the budget should be added $5,455.56 for administrative costs, making a grand total of $244,857.56.

School receipts are estimated at $52,000 from the State, $1,800 for tuition; balance on hand, $2,200, and the city's share, $188,857.56.

In submitting the budget, Supt. of Schools T. C. Williams cited the increase in teachers' salaries from $154,163 to $60,892, which is accounted for in part by the automatic raises under the salary scale. Part of the salary of each extra teacher who was taken on in the fall of 1935 is applicable to the spring session from January 1, 1936.

Eight thousand nine hundred and sixty dollars is for new teachers during 1936, this item being large because eleven of the teachers are needed February 1 and practically their entire salary is applicable to this budget. These teachers are needed to relieve congestion at the schools at the present time, and to fill in places where there is reason for expansion at once.

A contingent fund of $2,500 has been set up, $1,814 for extra janitor services, $400 for painting Lee School, $200 for installation of old laboratory tables, $500 for typewriter exchange, $300 for help for janitors, $500 for home economics supplies, $375 for extra salary for a clerk to the principal, the salary of such clerk being $50 for the first six months and $50 for second six months; $80 for increases to janitors and watchmen, $90 for increase of the secretary and clerk of the school board, which will produce a maximum after July of only $110 for the combined functions.

The largest items of the budget are: Salaries of teachers, $160,892; salaries of principals, $14,700; janitors and watchmen, $13,000; 13 extra teachers, 10 white and 3 colored, $8,960.

Thanksgiving Day will be observed as a general holiday, with State, Government and city offices closed.

Church services are announced as follows:

Second Presbyterian Church, the Rev. Dr. William B. McIlwaine, pastor, services at 10 o'clock this morning. The offering will be divided between the Alexandria hospital and the Anne Lee Memorial Home for the Aged.

Immanuel Lutheran Church, the Rev. Elmer F. Leonhardt, pastor, services at 10 o'clock this morning.

St. Paul's Episcopal Church, the Rev. Percy Foster Hall, services at 10:30 a. m.; music will be by the junior choir, and offerings will be used for the children's Christmas festival. At 10 o'clock children will bring donations of groceries, clothing and toys for the mountain missions. The church will be adorned with fruits, vegetables and flowers, cotton, silk, sugar-cane and pomegranates, milk and honey, the annual harvest festival. Donations will later be sent to the Anne Lee Memorial Home, the Alexandria Hospital and to sick friends.

The festival of Thanksgiving music will begin in Christ Episcopal Church at 10:30 a. m., followed by a sermon by the rector, the Rev. Harry Lee Doll. The fruits and vegetables decorating the church will be distributed to the sick and poor.

Grace Episcopal Church, the Rev. Robert Masterton, will have Holy Communion at 7:30 a. m., the altar to be decorated with fruits and grains of the field, and the congregation will bring foodstuffs to be divided between the Anne Lee Memorial Home and the Alexandria Children's Home and Day Nursery.

The First Baptist Church, the Rev. Pierce S. Ellis, pastor, will have services at 10 a. m. Members of the church are asked to bring contributions, as the pastor has four deserving families for whom he is providing Thanksgiving.

Special masses will be said as St. Mary's Catholic Church at 6:30 and 9 a. m., the offering to go to the Alexandria Hospital.

The Salvation Army is providing a dinner to about 75 underprivileged children, at 12:30 o'clock, at headquarters, 319 King street.

The annual home-coming-day program of the George Washington High School opened with a parade last night, when students, alumni, the Citizens Band, the cadet corps of the school and others staged a parade from King and Royal streets to Haudon's Field, the old Alexandria High School grounds, where a "pep" rally was held in preparation for the football game this morning at 10 o'clock between the local team and the Washington and Lee High School team.

Police Capt. John S. Arnold and a police escort headed the procession, with a committee from Alexandria Post, No. 24, American Legion. Charles W. King was grand marshal of the affair, and was followed by Mayor E. C. Davison, members of the school board and the school faculty.

Charles M. Kennedy, of Elgin, Ill., regional director in Southern States for the Loyal Order of Moose, will be the speaker at the meeting of the Alexandria Order of Moose on Tuesday evening next in the Virginia Public Service auditorium.

Two men—giving the names of R. T. Mathews, 41 years old, and R. L. Ford, 27, of Richmond Va.—are being detained by the Alexandria police, charged with an infraction of the State liquor law. According to the police, they had liquor purchased at a wholesale establishment in Baltimore, valued at $143. The court deferred hearing until December 3, and both men gave bond in the sum of $1,000.

In the account in The Post yesterday of the meeting of the city council, it was incorrectly stated that a bill for dental service was presented, made necessary by injuries alleged to have been received by Mrs. William J. Greenan in a fall at the Jefferson School Building. The reference should have been to Miss Elizabeth J. Greenan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Greenan.

Mrs. Harriet Ellen Groves, 70, widow of Fielding Groves, died yesterday at her home, 433 East Clifford avenue. She is survived by three daughters, Miss Kate Groves, Mrs. George McGuinn, of Alexandria, and Mrs. John Steele, of Middleburg, Va.

The funeral will be held at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning from the Cunningham funeral home, 809 Cameron street, conducted by the Rev. Dr. John S. Sowers, pastor of the Del Ray Baptist Church. Burial will be in Ivy Hill Cemetery, Upperville, Va.

Montgomery Nabs Law Student For Impersonating U. S. Agent

MONTGOMERY COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Telephone, Shepherd 2363.

Carl H. Unger, 31, of the 1300 block Sixteenth street northwest, a senior at National University Law School, was arrested by Takoma Park police yesterday on charges of impersonating a Federal officer, trespassing and disorderly conduct. Unger was arrested by Town Policeman Frank Lane and Montgomery County Patrolman Windsor Poole when several complaints of Unger's actions were telephoned the police station.

According to police, Unger went to the homes of Mrs. Grace Connine and the Rev. E. A. Manry, minister of the Seventh Day Adventist Church, and demanded entrance on the plea that he was a Department of Justice agent.

When Mrs. Connine refused him admittance until he produced his credentials, Unger is alleged to have threatened to shoot her and her son Charles, 19. She called police. Unger had no firearms when searched.

Unger is alleged also to have insisted upon entering the home of Mr. Manry, who called police when the man failed to produce credentials. He also is said to have attempted to enter several other homes in the 800 block Flower avenue.

Police said Unger told them he was the son of a prominent druggist, of Shamokin, Pa., and that he attends law school here.

Unger told police he was attempting to "check up on a man who had been running around with my girl friend." Police withheld the name of the girl, but said she lived several blocks from the scene of Unger's visits.

Unger was being held in default of $500 bond last night, with trial set for December 16 in county police court. Late last night town police said he would be turned over to Department of Justice agents.

Trial of 50 criminal appeals from police court decisions ended yesterday in the Montgomery County Circuit Court at Rockville, Md.

State's Attorney Pugh confessed pleas of not guilty in 20 of the cases. He told the court the evidence was so flimsy that warrants should never have been issued in the first place. Thirteen cases paid fines assessed by the police court without going to trial in the higher court, seven persons were convicted, three found not guilty and in one case a hung jury resulted. The remaining six were continued.

Arthur Burke, of Silver Spring, an automobile salesman, was injured slightly yesterday when he lost control of his car at the overhead bridge of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad on East-West highway near Wisconsin avenue. The car crashed into a telephone pole and turned over several times. Burke being thrown through the roof. He was treated for an injury of the shoulder by Dr. Benjamin C. Perry, of Bethesda.

A special matinee performance for the benefit of the Montgomery County Social Service League will be held tomorrow at 3 p. m. at the State Theater, Bethesda, Md. The theater has been donated free for the performance. The films have been donated by the Twentieth Century-Fox Film Exchange and the United Artists Film Exchange. All receipts will be given to the league.

Alleging false imprisonment, causing him humiliation before his fellow employes and customers of the store, Lemuel H. Rinker yesterday filed suit for damages of $10,000 against Walter N. Bradshaw, of Chevy Chase, Md., alleged proprietor of the Calvert Drug Store, Connecticut avenue and Calvert street northwest. The suit was firm charged him with theft of cuit Court through Attorney Fred A. Maltby, of Silver Spring.

Rinker alleges that a private detective in the employ of the drug firm, charged him with theft of money from the cash register, and detained him in a rear room. Even after the cash register had been found correct, charges were made in front of customers and employes of the store, causing him mental anguish.

Eleven organizations in the eastern suburban section of Montgomery County have been mobilized to force re-zoning of property adjacent to the Montgomery Blair High School in Silver Spring, to prevent erection of stores near the school. In a letter to the eleven groups yesterday, J. Bond Smith, chairman of a special committee of the high school parent-teacher association, urged each organization to send representatives to a hearing on the question December 16 in the Silver Spring County Building.

Sponsored by the children's committee of the Woman's Guild of Grace Church, Woodside, Md., an entertainment for children will be given tomorrow at 7:30 p. m. in the parish hall of the church. The program is being arranged by Mrs. Ranald McDonald. Leah Burket will be mistress of ceremonies.

A special Thanksgiving service will be held today at 10 a. m. in the Church of the Ascension, Silver Spring, Md. The Rev. James S. Cox vicar of the church, will have as the theme of his sermon "Americanism and Thanksgiving—the Heritage for Which We Thank God." There will be Holy Communion services at 8 a. m. Grace Episcopal Church, Woodside, Md., will hold communion service at 10 a. m., and the Rev. Richard Aselford, vicar of the church, will deliver the sermon.

Mass will be said today at 8:15 a. m. at St. Michael's Catholic Church, Silver Spring. The evening service will be for men, and is part of the mission which is being held this week by the Rev. Thomas A. Fox, of the Paulist Fathers.

Thanksgiving services will be held in the Chapel of the Redeemer, Glen Echo, at 10 o'clock this morning, the Rev. Mills Perkins officiating.

Joseph Pies, of the Conressional Country Club, will be in charge of the annual turkey dinner and dance for the benefit of the Chapel of the Little Flower, Thursday, December 5. Mr. Pies came to this country from Germany, where for three generations his family have been proprietors of a restaurant in Oberheimbach, celebrated for its cuisine and wine cellars.

The dinner from 5:30 to 8, and the dance from 8:30 to 12, will be held in the auditorium of the Glen Echo Fire Department.

Employment Shows Increase in Canada

Ottawa, Nov. 27 (AP).—An employment gain in Canada of 14,903 persons between October 1 and November 1 was reported today by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. The bureau said the November 1 pay roll of 9,482 firms making returns stood at 1,012,103 persons compared with 997,300 on October 1.

The bureau reported the employment at November 1 was higher than that of any month since December 1, 1930.

Rudderless Ship Saved.

St. Johns, Newfoundland, Nov. 27 (AP).—Battered by a terrific storm, the 1,200-ton collier Bjerkli was towed into port late today by a tug and the steamer Beta.

Word of the Norwegian tramp's plight was brought to shore by the first mate and six members of the crew, who fought the storm all last night in a lifeboat to seek assistance for the rudderless craft.

Lyons Citizens Seeking Return Of Roy Braden

His Record Praised and Added Authority Is Suggested.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 500. Clarendon, Va.

Reappointment of Roy S. Braden as county manager was recommended to the county board in resolutions adopted last night by both the Lyon Village and Lyon Park Citizens Associations.

The resolutions praised Braden's record during his four years in office and suggested to the board that he be given "more complete administrative authority, as contemplated in the original county manager act passed by the General Assembly."

Braden submitted his resignation to the county board effective December 31 in order that the incoming board on January 1 be given a free hand in making the appointment.

The Lyon Park association also went on record as indorsing action of the Arlington County Civic Federation's executive committee in proposing that the State corporation commission grant the Potomac Electric Light & Power Co. the right of extending his service in Arlington County through its subsidiary, the Braddock Light & Power Co.

Delegates to the Arlington County Civic Federation from Lyon Park are C. O. Schuster, A. D. Adams, Arthur Orr and C. K. Lewis.

Indorsement was given by the Lyon Village association to the efforts of the special committee of the federation, headed by Chance Buchanan to have the Potomac Electric Light & Power Co. extend its service throughout Arlington County.

Carrying out its annual policy to bring good cheer to the needy in Arlington County, Mrs. Mae E. Jacobs, superintendent of public welfare, in co-operation with the churches and civic organizations, distributed more than 30 baskets containing food, together with large packages of clothing last night.

Special Thanksgiving services, with Holy Communion, will be conducted this morning at 8 o'clock at St. George's Episcopal Church by the Rev. Henry J. Miller. Morning prayer and sermon by the rector will be at 10:30 o'clock.

Postoffice inspectors will appear before the county board at its meeting tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock at the request of County Manager Roy S. Braden, to answer questions regarding the establishment of a central postoffice for Arlington County.

Braden stated that he has requested representatives of the department to appear before the board as a result of the many petitions which have been filed by various organizations in the county asking for a central postoffice.

Rail Line Sold, Dairy Region To Keep Service

$35,000 Deal Assurance Road Will Continue in Operation.

Continuance of the Washington & Old Dominion Railway was virtually assured when its sale to the recently organized Washington & Old Dominion Railroad Co. was approved by Judge Walter T. McCarthy in Arlington County Circuit Court yesterday.

The road was sold for $35,000. Judge McCarthy signed an order directing that a fourth of the sum be paid in cash and that the balance be paid in three equal installments, in 1 year, 18 months and 2 years.

The former company, the Washington & Old Dominion Railway Co., had been in receivership for two years. Because of a falling off of revenue due to bus and truck competition, abandonment of the line had been forecast.

The line, the only railroad serving the rich dairy and farming country along the southern shore of the Potomac between Washington and Bluemont, Va., was originally a steam road, a spur of the Southern System. In 1912 it was leased by the Washington & Old Dominion Railway Co., in which the late John R. McLean, of Washington, and the late Senator Davis Elkins, of West Virginia, were interested.

This firm electrified the line and took over a spur to Great Falls, Va. The Great Falls branch was abandoned about a year ago, and last summer receivers asked Judge McCarthy for permission to abandon the entire line. Because of protests from residents served by the road, Judge McCarthy suggested that a salvage attempt be made.

The sale yesterday was the result of Judge McCarthy's suggestion. The new company will operate the line, which links Bluemont, Purcellville, Round Hill, Leesburg, Herndon and Fairfax with Rosslyn.

The new firm was recently granted a charter by the Virginia State corporation commission. It was authorized to issue $100,000 of capital stock. Officers include Davis Elkins, of Morgantown, W. Va., president, and George C. Baggett, of Alexandria, vice president and general manager.

Frontier Guard Slain.

Warsaw, Nov. 27 (U.P.).—A Polish guard on the Danzig frontier was killed tonight by two men believed to be Ukrainians. When the guard challenged them to stop, they shot him.

Special precautions were ordered in view of the trial of 12 Ukrainians in connection with the murder last year of Polish Minister Pieracki, accused by them of instigating terrorism among Ukrainians.

2 Men Jailed As Police Sift Girl's Slaying

Death of Telephone Operator Not Suicide, Coroner Declares.

Broken Chair and Marks of Violence Only Police Clews.

Tangled clews in yesterday's mysterious slaying of Miss Elizabeth R. Lynch, 35, P. E. P. Co. telephone operator, were sifted last night by homicide squad detectives and the District coroner's office as two men were questioned by headquarters investigators.

Miss Lynch, bruised and battered, a bullet through the left side of her face, was found at 6:45 a. m. yesterday, sprawled on the kitchen floor of her home at 918 Fourth street northeast. Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald, after viewing the body, announced:

"Definitely, it is not suicide."

Kappel Calls Police.

It was Kappel who summoned police. Miss Lynch, a divorcee, had been Kappel's "sweetheart" for some time, it was reported. Police said he admitted he owned the gun with which Miss Lynch was killed.

A broken chair and apparent evidences of a struggle in the Lynch kitchen puzzle police. There were no powder marks around the bullet wound, police said. This indicated, they said, that Miss Lynch was not shot at close range.

The chair, investigators reported, had apparently been smashed during a scuffle. There were evidences that it had been hurled against an iron stove in the kitchen.

Escorted Woman Home.

During last night's questioning by Detective Sergeant John Dalglish, Kappel reputedly told of taking Miss Lynch home about 11:30 p. m. Tuesday. He said he didn't see her again until yesterday morning when he went home.

Both men, police learned, were out with Miss Lynch Tuesday night. After they took her home, they went to a "club" in the 1300 block of I street northwest and remained until nearly 6 a. m.

Kappel, police declared, found Miss Lynch's body when he entered the house. He immediately ran back into the street and called to Cullen, who was entering his home a few blocks down the street. They both returned to the Lynch woman's home and called police.

Coroner MacDonald said the woman had been dead for several hours. Rigor mortis had set in, he said. The gun was at her feet. Miss Lynch's body bore marks of violence.

Quarrel Is Reported.

It was reported Miss Lynch and Kappel had quarreled Tuesday night and that he had taken her home for that reason. Several weeks ago, detectives were told, Miss Lynch was unable to go to work because of a blackened eye, allegedly received during an argument at her home.

Miss Lynch was employed as a switchboard operator at the PEPCO service station, Tenth street and Florida avenue northwest. Both her parents died last year and she received the Fourth street house as part of her father's estate.

Both Kappel and Cullen have been arrested numerous times. Kappel's charges range from liquor law violations to disorderly conduct.

Cullen, a newspaper pressman, has a record for disorderly conduct and various other offenses. His police record dates back to 1918, Kappel's to 1913.

Boy Says Knifing Was an Accident

Didn't Mean to Kill Other Youth, He Insists.

The 13-year-old boy whose pocketknife took the life of a playmate, William Wesley Suddath, 15, of 3921 Prospect avenue northwest, Tuesday night, yesterday told police that the stabbing was an accident. He said:

"I had called William 'chew tobacco' earlier in the day. He was trying to catch me for it. I had a board I had been cutting in one hand and the penknife I found that day in the other. He rushed at me and hit me. When I tried to push him away the knife stuck him."

Boxwell Freed In Crash Death Of 16-Year Girl

A coroner's jury acquitted Detective James F. Boxwell, of the Twelfth Precinct, yesterday after an inquest into the traffic death of Virginia Donnelly, 16-year-old school girl, killed while riding on a motorcycle on Bladensburg road northeast, July 28.

The inquest has been delayed until this time due to the disability of James Parker, 18, 18 Seventh street southeast, driver of the motorcycle. Parker suffered a fractured leg in the collision with Boxwell's car at Bladensburg and Queens Chapel roads northeast.

Virginia, a student of the Powell Junior High School, who lived at 1855 Wyoming avenue northwest, was killed instantly. The jury held the death accidental when testimony revealed that Parker had entered Bladensburg road right in the path of Boxwell.

In a second traffic inquest, Joseph Click, 28, 1123 New Jersey avenue southeast, was ordered held for the action of Police Court under the negligent homicide act in the death of Richard Good, 60, colored, 488 L street southwest. Good was struck early Sunday at Seventh and Water streets southwest.

Witnesses told the jury that Glick's car was being operated at an excessive rate of speed.

Police Private Hurt.

William C. Wrenn, a police private attached to the Twlfth Precinct, was critically injured when his automobile skidded and overturned on a curve in the new Mount Vernon - Richmond highway about a mile north of Mount Vernon late yesterday.

A woman occupant of the machine, Mrs. Mary Collins, 2123 K street northwest, was also injured. Riding with Wrenn and Mrs. Collins was her daughter, Frances, 18, who escaped injury.

In Alexandria Hospital attendants said Wrenn, who is 34 years old, suffered a dislocation of the neck. They described his condition as critical. Mrs. Collins suffered several fractured ribs, and her condition was considered less serious.

Wrenn lives at 1907 K street northwest. He was formerly a member of the vice squad, attached to the Seventh Precinct.

2 Police Raids Net 7 Arrests For Gambling

Three men and a woman were arrested and charged with operating a lottery yesterday when members of the police vice squad raided an alleged numbers establishment in the 900 block of Rhode Island avenue northeast.

Police said they seized a quantity of new numbers pads and over 300 slips. More than $55 was taken from one of the men. Sergt. George Deyoe, of the vice squad, who led the raid, said the place was operated from a room in the rear of a restaurant.

Alexander Tacconelli, 52, 2600 block of Tenth street northeast; Walter J. Howe, 44, 3400 block Fifteenth street northeast, and Kermit and Mary Mallette, both colored, of the 1300 block Girard street northeast, were charged, and will be arraigned before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage for a hearing sometime next week.

In a second raid, three men were seized when the vice squad made several race horse bets across the counter of a cigar store in the 1700 block Fourteenth street northwest.

Road at Monument May Be Abandoned

16th St. Route Not Needed, Park Official Holds.

Abolition of the Sixteenth street roadway through the Washington Monument Grounds is under consideration by the office of National Capital Parks, Supt. C. Marshall Finnan said yesterday.

The road, which ran from Constitution avenue south to Monument Circle, was torn up last summer to permit construction of a flood levee in the grounds. Its replacement had been planned, however, bids for the contract having been opened recently.

Finnan declared permanent elimination of the roadway would result in a saving of about $17,000, adding that the small amount of traffic it bears justifies the plan.

Bandits Board Auto at Corner, Taking Driver's $240 and Car

Three Force Victim Into Soldiers Home Park For Holdup.

Three colored men boarded the automobile of Herman Sussman, a novelty salesman, at First street and Michigan avenue last night and forced him at gun point to enter the rear seat before they drove into the Soldiers Home grounds to rob him of $240.

One of the robbers stepped on the running board of the machine as Sussman was making a safety stop. He pushed a pistol toward Sussman's face and commanded surrender, adding:

"I'll blow your brains out!"

The gunman's two confederates came alongside at this juncture and got into the rear seat with Sussman, one of them making him pull his hat over his eyes.

Sussman was left alone in the home grounds, the robbers driving off with his car, a paper bag containing $100 worth of silver money and $140 in bills in a pocketbook.

The car was recovered later at First and Channing streets northwest. Sussman's empty pocketbook was in the rear seat.

Kensington Grade Job Goes Ahead

Bids on Bridge Will be Asked Next Month.

Bids will be asked on the Kensington, Md., grade crossing elimination project next month, Dr. Homer E. Tabler, chairman of the Maryland State Roads Commission, said yesterday.

Dr. Tabler's announcement ended rumors that the project had been postponed indefinitely by the State commission and was in danger of being eliminated from the PWA grade crossing elimination program.

An allocation of $145,000 for the project was made last year by the PWA. The State has appropriated $70,000 for rights of way. The dangerous crossing, which has taken nine lives in recent years, will be spanned by a bridge.

Police Hunt Hidden Vault Of Ed Killeen

Proof Sought to Link Slain Racketeer to Wilson Case.

Montgomery County investigators last night searched the basement of Edward V. Killeen's summer home on Conduit road in Brookmont, Md., for a secret vault which they believe holds records linking the slain overlord of Washington gambling with the killing of the newspaper route agent, Allen B. Wilson.

Existence of the vault was reported to State's Attorney James H. Pugh by a woman once familiar with the secrets of the home where Killeen recently made his headquarters and where he was slain Saturday by his mistress, Lillian Maddock.

Nine years ago, the woman said, one of Killeen's lieutenant's occupied the house. She and several other young women living in the neighborhood were friendly with the gambling henchman's wife and one day, she disclosed, the wife took them through the premises during her husband's absence.

They visited the basement where the wife showed them a panel in the wall specially constructed of brick and made so that it could be opened by pressing a release secreted in the floor. The wife, Pugh's informant said, feared detection by her husband to such an extent that she permitted no lights to be lighted and disclosed the contents of the vault only by candle light.

Stacks of Papers.

In the dimly lit recesses of the vault, the woman said she could discern various kinds of gambling equipment and stacks of papers.

The woman led Pugh, Detective Sergt. Theodore Vollten, head of the county police identification bureau; Sergt. Roy Snyder and Policeman Wilson Payne on last night's search of the Killeen premises. She found the house had been considerably altered since she last saw it, but after a careful examination of the basement, she and the officers found what was believed to be the old vault.

They were unable, however, to locate the secret release in the floor and though by picking and hammering authorities satisfied themselves that a portion of the wall under the cellar stairs is hollow, the search was abandoned until examination can be made in daylight, probably today.

For some time Washington and Montgomery County authorities have been attempting to link Killeen with the "mistake" murder of the newspaper route agent. They believe Killeen to have been the brains behind the attempt to "get" Edward "Mickey" McDonald, rival gambler, that resulted in Wilson's murder by mistake.

May Find Evidence.

Authorities believe if they are able to get into Killeen's vault they may find documentary evidence to confirm their suspicion.

Pugh and officers examined the entire house in preparation for the arraignment on a murder charge of the Maddock woman at a preliminary hearing early in December.

In the second floor bedroom in which Killeen died, Payne reenacted the shooting. Five shots were fired. Four were recovered previously, two of them in Killeen's body. The fifth was found last night embedded in the baseboard.

Pugh declined to reveal the identity of the woman who accompanied the searchers. She said that when she last visited the house the basement walls were of brick. Last night they were of granite block. The panel that is believed to open into the vault is made of brick tile. It is about 4 feet across and the wall directly opposite juts out into the furnace room, confirming belief in the existence of a small chamber.

Traction Firm Asks to Reroute Several Buses

Hanna Says it Cannot Get Money for More New Equipment.

Several changes in its bus service were proposed to the Public Utilities Commission by the Capital Transit Co. yesterday.

Riley E. Elgen, commission chairman, after a conference with J. H. Stephens, Transit Company vice president, said the proposed changes undoubtedly would improve service. Formal request for approval of the changes, to be effective about December 15, is to be made soon.

The conference yesterday followed one the day before between John H. Hanna, president of the Transit Company, and commission officials, in the course of which Mr. Hanna protested against threatened action by the commission to force improvement in street car and bus service. The company, Mr. Hanna pleaded, is doing everything in its power to give better service and to improve and increase equipment. It was spending all the money it had and could not get more, he said.

Proposed changes discussed yesterday include direct bus service to Randle Highlands, Hillcrest and Benning. Half of the South Washington buses now stopping at Barney Circle would be sent on to Hillcrest. The other half would be sent on into the Benning area. Some of the special Benning buses now operating would be continued. The present Hillcrets service would be abandoned.

East Washington buses, now stopping at Barney Circle, would be sent on into Randle Highlands, where half would stop and the others would go on to the present terminus of the Anacostia line.

Six of the Connecticut avenue buses would be run down Twentieth street to Constitution avenue, to Sixth street northwest. This would be designed to give better service to the Government departments.

Plea for Toys Launches Drive To Help Santa Claus Keep Faith

Council of Social Agencies to Distribute Gifts to Needy Children of City; New, Old and Broken Toys, Garments Requested.

An appeal for donations of toys and other articles for distribution as Christmas gifts to children of the needy was made yesterday by the Council of Social Agencies. A central committee representing groups which will co-operate in bringing a happier Christmas to many homes yesterday met with District Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen and completed plans for the annual project.

A headquarters from which the program is to be directed will be opened at 933 G street northwest. The space was loaned the central committee in charge by the Prudential Life Insurance Co. through courtesy of the H. L. Rust Co.

The Playgrounds Department, the Fire Department, Police Department, Parent-Teacher Associations, Boy Scouts, Girl Reserves of the Y. W. C. A. and the National Training School for Boys are among the agencies actively to participate in the work.

Old and broken toys are to be repaired, repainted and given to children for whom there wouldn't be any Santa Claus otherwise. They should be in as good condition as possible, because time for repairing them is limited, committee members said. But the gifts don't have to be second-hand toys, broken and discarded by the more fortunate of the city's kids.

"The more fortunate people of Washington are urged to keep the council Christmas exchange in mind," the committee said, "and when bying presents for their own children, to buy an extra toy or a warm garment and have it sent to the Council of Social Agencies' Christmas shop at 933 G street northwest."

Money may be contributed also, Miss Louise Davidson, committee chairman, said. "It will be wisely spent to bring Christmas happiness to someone," she said.

"Try," she asked, "to send good, serviceable presents—the sort of thing anyone would be glad to receive, the sort of present that would seem like a real Christmas present. Presents suitable for children up to 14 years of age are earnestly solicited."

Work of collecting and preparing the gifts will be begun on December 2 under direction of a central committee composed of Miss Davidson, Mrs. John Jay O'Connor, chairman of volunteer activities of the council; Mrs. L. B. Castell, president off the Parent-Teacher Association; Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police; Charles E. Schrom, chief of the Fire Department; Louis Barrett, co-ordinator of recreational activities; Mrs. W. A. Roberts, executive secretary of the council; Mrs. Loren Johnson, Mrs. M. W. Buell, Miss Sybil Baker, supervisor of playgrounds; Miss Mary Edith Coulson and Mrs. E. G. Montgomery.

Funeral Services Set For Mrs. H. S. Turrill

Funeral services for Mrs. H. S. Turrill will be held in the western section of Arlington National Cemetery tomorrow at 2 p. m. Chaplain Ralph C. Deibert will officiate at the services, which will be held at the grave.

Mrs. Turrill was the widow of Brig. Gen. H. S. Turrill. She died in New York on Monday.

New Jobless Check-upPlan Finds Favor

D. C. Board Is Impressed With More Simplified System.

Regular Reports Would End Necessity for Card Index.

A new plan for administration of the District Unemployment Compensation Commission, calling for partial abandonment of a proposal to build up a 1,440,000 card index record of every employe in the District, "favorably impressed" the commission at a meeting yesterday.

Announcement that the new scheme had "favorably impressed" the commission was made in a statement in which the plan was outlined as coming from the controllers of a number of business concerns.

"The board," the statement said, "plans to consider seriously this suggestion and is anxious to have any suggestion or comment which the public may have to make in respect to this suggestion."

Provisions of Plan.

The plan provides:

(1) That all employes be duly registered as of January 1, 1936; (2) that all employes be required to divide employes into two classes, those permanently employed and those employed temporarily or occasionally; that, as to permanent employes, the employer will furnish each month a summary statement showing only the number of permanent employes, the total wages paid and the tax paid.

"(3) That upon separation from employment of any permanent employe the employer be required to prepare a separation report which would contain the number of weeks, the hours per week and the wages paid such employe during the entire term of his employment, and that a copy of this report be handed the employe, another copy forwarded to the board, and another copy kept as part of the records of the employer.

"(4) That as to temporary and casual employes the employer should report every month the names of such employes, the weeks worked, the hours of employment per week, and the wages paid.

Monthly Reports Involved.

"Such an arrangement would have a provision to the effect that any employer who indicates by his conduct that he will not keep records of permanent employes as provided by the plan, or otherwise fails or refuses to comply with the orders of the board in respect to such permanent employes, should be required to make detailed monthly reports.

"Advantages of the plan are that it would eliminate the necessity for keeping records on thousands of persons who are permanently employed and who are, therefore, unlikely to make claims for benefits under the act, and in any event would make such claim only in case they are separated from their permanent employment; and further that it would simplify in large measure the making of reports by employers."

New Film Bills Make Local Bows for Edification of Holiday Amusement-Seekers

'Annie Oakley' Reclaims Stars Of Distant Era

Has Late Keith Preview; Belasco Stars Arliss; Theater Notes.

By Nelson B. Bell.

"ANNIE OAKLEY." RKO-Radio picturization of a story by Joseph A. Fields and Ewart Adamson, adapted to the screen by Joel Sayre and John Twist, starring Barbara Stanwyck, with Preston Foster, Moroni Olsen, Melvyn Douglas, Pert Kelton, Andy Clyde, Margaret Armstrong, Delmar Watson, Adeline Craig and Chief Thunder Bird. Directed by George Stevens. Previewed Monday midnight.

Although it concerns itself primarily with the romance between the different little rifle shot from backwoods Ohio and the male braggart who admitted that he was the greatest marksman in the world, "Annie Oakley" also reflects with picturesque realism the spirit, the petty animosities and the thundering melodrama of Buffalo Bill's world-famous "Wild West Show."

Those who remember the form this vivid depiction of life in the Old West took in the roofless arena in which it usually was presented will discover to their acute pleasure, and the revival of many thrillingly happy memories, that the producers of the picture have been diligent in their research and, in the main, painstaking in their transference of fact to the dramatic requirements of cinematic fiction.

The basic elements of the story of Annie Oakley and her love for the first man she ever met in competitive shooting possess the merit of actuality. They have been altered only sufficiently to meet the supposedly rigid demands of "dramatic effect."

Annie Is Pivotal Figure.

Moroni Olsen, incidentally, succeeds only in bearing a striking physical resemblance to Buffalo Bill. The authentic flavor of the character of the former scout and buffalo hunter is lacking from an impersonation that gets no deeper than the merest surface artificialities of a personality that consisted of far more than long curly hair, fringed buckskin chaps and patent leather riding boots. It is when Cody is astride his milk-white horse, accepting the plaudits of the crowds in long-shot perspectives, while the perfectly trained steed also takes his bows on one knee, that Olsen creates the most convincing impression.

But the central figures, after all, are Annie Oakley, as portrayed by Barbara Stanwyck, and Toby Taylor, who does a little masquerading for Rifleman Butler, the real original of the picturesque and swaggering fellow impersonated with a lusty braggadocio by Preston Foster.

The development of Annie Oakley from a bashful country girl without an ounce of "showmanship" into one of the greatest feminine attractions ever known to any form of show business is etched as completely and as effectively as Miss Stanwyck's conception of the character will permit. Of the two jobs, Mr. Foster's is rather the better.

Was Star of Two Decades.

Many humorous touches are emphasized during the 17 years of Annie's stardom with the "Bill" show." During the triumphant tour of the European capitals, she is seen shooting a cigaret from between the lips of the crown prince, later to be known to the world as Kaiser Wilhelm II, Emperor of all the Germans. Again, she commits faux pas after tactical error in confusing the nice social distinctions of court etiquette and otherwise "being herself," from Paris to St. Petersburg. Always first, and above all else, she is one of the wonders of the world in the marvelous accuracy of her rifle fire.

In the end, she is a simple, lonely, human little woman overwhelmed by the happiness of having once more plucked from a half-blind obscurity the one man of all her noisy, glittering explosive world whom she really loved.

As a background for this distinctly personal narrative, is the color, the ballyhoo and the cyclonic action of the world's greatest congress of horsemen, marksmen and red men of a wild and largely forgotten West.

Sitting Bull, Comedian.

The Indian roles of Rain-in-the-Face and that Sioux warrior, Sitting Bull, who defeated Custer at the Little Big Horn, are in the hands of real redskins, with Chief Thunder Bird re-enacting many of the amusing incidents of primitive simplicity that actually punctuated the red man's timid advances in the direction of a partial adoption of the white man's civilization.

While "Annie Oakley" cannot be looked upon as one of the great accomplishments of the contemporary screen, at least it comprises an important document for the preservation of a fair simulation of the adventurous life of an Old West that never can be reclaimed.

Melvyn Douglas, as half-owner of the Buffalo Bill show; Pert Kelton, as one of Mr. Foster's susceptible admirers; Andy Clyde, as the Cincinnati hotel proprietor who promoted Annie's first professional rifle match—which she won in fact, but loses, for a purpose, in the picture—and scores more contribute a rough-and-ready quality of honest effort to the film's conscientious attempt to recreate a lost era in American history.

"Gentlemen's Sport," an RKO-Radio shortreel; a new issue of the Pathe News and another of those quaint cartoon comedies in the new three-tone Technicolor process, "Molly Moo-Cow and the Butterflies," are the subjects that augment a feature that last night at RKO-Keith's introduced the exciting '80s to a new generation of theatergoers.

Belasco

"MR. HOBO." Gaumont British picturization of a story by Paul Lafitte, adapted to the screen by Maud Howell with scenario by Guy Bolton, starring George Arliss, with Gene Gerrard, Frank Cellier, Patrick Knowles, Viola Keats, George Hayes, Henrietta Watson and Mary Clare. Directed by Milton Rosmer. Reviewed Wednesday afternoon.

While we should not go so far as to say that this sort of thing represents the true metier of Mr. Arliss' experienced and polished art, he has been discovered doing it before.

That is to say, there is a decided affinity between such vehicles as "Mr. Hobo," made on the other side, under the constantly expanding auspices of Gaumont British, and "The Millionaire," "A Successful Calamity" and "The Working Man," produced amid the opulent facilities of our own Hollywood.

The present picture, an engagingly ingenuous comedy-drama, has overtaken Mr. Arliss in a mood of almost elfin whimsy. His "Mr. Hobo" is an idealistic dreamer, with a fine penchant for bromidic philosophies, the open road and the sun shining warmly on one's back.

A crust of bread and a possible franc in the pocket—the locale of the story is Paris and rural France—are among other desirable factors in the perfection of his simple scheme of living and "desiring only those things which he has a possible chance of getting."

Meets the Heiress.

It is this sort of unpretentious creature who presents himself one day at the palatial dooryard of the heiress to the Granville iron mine fortune—a heritage that is reputed to be dwindling away to a handsome liability.

And there starts the real drama with which the plot proceeds to entangle itself.

By one of those happily coincidental disasters that throw the counterpart of William J. Locke's "Beloved Vagabond" into the clutches of the law, he and his companion, a gay young man who is not impervious to the casual advantages of large wealth, come across the path of the crooked banker who is plotting the compassionate assimilation of the Granville assets as a means of averting a distressingly personal financial catastrophe. At the same time, he is attempting to hit upon some likely catspaw to assume the presidency of his tottering bank and pull out of the fire such of his burning chestnuts as may be salvaged from the considerable fiscal conflagration that is threatening to consume him.

Blessed with the fortunate name of Francois Rothschild, and conveniently mistaken for an affluent but eccentric member of the family whose distinguished founder he already has impersonated in the celluloids, "Mr. Hobo" finds it a simple matter to be accepted at considerably more than his face value. He assumes the presidency of the bank, miraculously converts the most innocent gestures of bewildered executive activity into causes of astonishing prosperity in the marts of trade and eventually manages to insert himself into the renegade banker's secret negotiations.

Saves Some Other Chestnuts.

A pretended suicide, a deft coup at the psychological moment and a laying bare of the sinister plot that threatens the welfare of the young woman and her mother, who once had given him food at the price of a modest chore, carries "Mr. Hobo" safely into the same comfortable haven that already has sheltered Mr. Arliss' earlier excursions into practically the same field.

This, however, is a George Arliss that has seldom, if ever, been glimpsed before—an unshaved, unkempt, but not a mentally or spiritually uncouth, Arliss, graced with an utter simplicity, an unwavering faith in the triumph of the right and a carefree optimism that sees a great deal of the good in a great many people but is blind to most of the bad.

In "Mr. Hobo," the star finds himself surrounded by a cast of conspicuous capability, including among its number a few who lent luster to the recent picturization of Jerome K. Jerome's "The Passing of the Third Floor Back." As he was in the earlier film from the same studio, the symbol of evil in the present production is Frank Cellier, who, despite an unsympathetic role, substantiates the impression that he is an uncommonly fine actor. Another who was in the "Third Floor Back" is Mary Clare, cast in a less important part, but executing it no less skillfully.

Support and Supplementaries.

Gene Gerrard, as the erstwhile partner of Mr. Rothschild's penury; Patrick Knowles, the young lover of the play, and Viola Keats are members of the supporting cast who contribute most to the rounded excellence of a play that holds attention in spite of its frequent extravagances.

In the greater part of the story's action, Mr. Arliss is more than he has recently been the facile and ingratiating comedian.

The Belasco's new bill, as usual, is diversified in its complementary attractions. A release in the "Adventures of a Newsreel Camerman" series, dealing with the fighting navies of the world; a Civil War song-comedy of doubtful virtue, "The Old Camp Ground;" "A Stroll Through Holland," a scenic travelogue, and another Pathe News, detailing that amazingly vigorous contention concerning the scoring of the final points in the recent Army-Notre Dame football game, are the auxiliaries of a feature that reveals a novel, if not wholly new, George Arliss.

Cleveland's Airport To Be World's Largest

Cleveland, Nov. 27 (AP).—By far the largest airport in the world will be developed here through a $2,800,000 expansion project ordered today by the Works Progress Administration.

"The Cleveland municipal airport will be twice the size of the present large airports and will be 50 years ahead in development of facilities for air traffic," said Maj. John Berry, airport manager.

Just a Shadow of Former, Gobbling Self!

At least, that is what this fine and pretty fellow bids fair to become if the tiny Miss Shirley "Curly Top" Temple is successful in her Thanksgiving stalking of an imposing holiday feast. Miss Temple, you will observe, is hot on the trail of the giant turkey with a hatchet and a salt-cellar, which, after all, are the only implements needed by one of her years and dimensions to enjoy all of the thrills of such a hunt as our Puritan grandfathers never even dreamed. No point—just a studio "still" that seems a little more attuned to the season than usual.

Musical Piece Brings Famous Stars to Town

'Anything Goes' Will Be National Bill to Vie With Strong Films.

At the National Theater, the attraction for the week beginning next Monday night will be "Anything Goes," Vinton Freedley's production of the Cole Porter musical comedy, costarring William Gaxton and Victor Moore, that will have run a solid year in New York. Supporting the stars in this whimsical shipboard comedy of "Public Enemy No. 13" will be seen a notable cast and ensemble, led by Benay Venuta and Irene Delroy. The fact that the "book" is by a quartet of such famous humorists as Guy Bolton, P. G. Wodehouse, Howard Lindsay and Russel Crouse is assurance enough of its scintillant quality.

• • • •

Margaret Sullavan, Randolph Scott, Janet Beecher, Walter Connolly, Elizabeth Patterson and a long list of other players of the first rank are cast in the principal roles of Paramount's picturization of Stark Young's novel of "So Red the Rose," opening its Washington engagement on the screen at the Earle Theater tomorrow. In this story of the war-torn South are combined dramatic elements of infallible appeal. The production is a handsome one and the cast one of excellent selection down the least of the minor roles. On the stage, Benny Davis, foremost of the theater's contemporary discoverers of budding talent, will offer his "Star Dust Revue."

• • • •

Ronald Colman, supported by the gentle charm and exquisite beauty of Joan Bennett, will be the pictured star of the screen portion of the entertainment at Loew's Fox Theater, beginning tomorrow, in "The Man Who Broke the Bank at Monte Carlo." There is a quality of unique humor and engaging romance permeating the entire footage of this film that marks it as something a little apart from the usual comedy-drama. Nigel Bruce, Colin Clive, Montagu Love, Ferdinand Gottschalk, Charles Fallon and others of note occupy the auxiliary roles of prime importance. On the stage, Joe Morrison, singing juvenile of stage and screen, will headline the vaudeville.

• • • •

Bert Wheeler and Bob Woolsey, aided and abetted, as is their wont, by Dorothy Lee, will be the pictured co-stars of the bill opening today at the Warner Brothers' Metropolitan Theater. The vehicle of their latest absurdities is "The Rainmakers," reputedly one of the most laughable films they have made in recent months—or maybe years. There are songs in the new piece, foremost among which is "Isn't Life the Sweetest Thing?"

• • • •

• • • •

Loew's Palace Theater, by a last-minute decision yesterday afternoon, will present Cecil B. De Mille's production of "The Crusades" as the chief feature of the screen bill for the week beginning tomorrow. In this gigantic subject of the holy pilgrimages of the early Christian era the principal roles are played by Loretta Young, Henry Wilcoxon, C. Henry Gordon, Ian Keith, Katherine De Mille.

• • • •

At the Little Theater, the attraction beginning today and continuing throughout the remainder of the current week will be Paramount's picturization of Harry Leon Wilson's story of "Ruggles of Red Gap," in which the stellar roles are played by Charles Laughton, Charles Ruggles, Mary Boland and ZaSu Pitts. Short-reel subjects will round out the entertainment.

• • • •

For the week beginning with Sunday's matinee at the Gayety Theater, Manager Jimmie Lake announces Lillian Dixon and her "All-Star Revue." The extra added attraction will be supplied by the incomparable Hinda Wasau, direct from a seven-month run at Leon & Eddie's famous night club in New York. The supporting cast and chorus are described as the most sensational of the season, to date.

Skolsky In Hollywood

Hollywood, Nov. 27.

PETER LORRE is in his dressing room. It generally takes him an hour to dress for his role in "Crime and Punishment." He does this slowly, intentionally. He believes it aids him to portray the character.

He goes on the set and stands-in for himself. He is one of the few big actors who does this. He poses under the hot lights while Director von Sternberg arranges them and the camera.

He does this because Von Sternberg, who is particular about lighting a scene and an actor, asks him to do it. It means hard work for him, but he admires Von Sternberg.

While on the set, Lorre has a favorite drink: A mixture of raspberry sirup and water. He makes every one sample it. While making a flicker he doesn't eat much. His lunch consists of merely sliced fresh fruit, usually peaches.

• • • •

He walks about, whether it be in the studio or in a restaurant, much in the same manner as he did in "M." People who have seen him in this great flicker are scared when they first see him in person. He knows this and is greatly amused by it.

It was his excellent performance in "M" which got him a contract with Columbia. Before coming to America, he signed to play in the flicker, "The Man Who Knew Too Much," to learn to speak English. He is good at languages, and was quite adept at English in six weeks. He spoke a better English in the latter reels of "The Man Who Knew Too Much" than he did in the beginning.

• • • •

HE speaks in a low confidential voice, which cannot be heard very far away. At the studio he will visit different offices. He amuses by acting and making faces. When telling a story he acts out all the characters.

He is a mild, pleasant person.

He has a house at Santa Monica, to which he invities his friends for breakfast or dinner. He prefers to rest by himself in his garden here. He seldom barks. He is not a visitor to the Hollywood gay places.

• • • •

He is married to Cecilie Lvovsky, an actress. They met when they were both appearing in the German play, "The Candidate," and married when they met later in London. He was making the flicker. They were married during a lunch hour and Loree was in the make-up he used in "The Man Who Knew Too Much." They haven't any nicknames for each other.

• • • •

WHEN he isn't working, he relishes a big meal. He likes Hungarian goulash and is especially fond of new potatoes in cream. He will talk about food and give a lecture on why a certain salami is better than another type of salami.

He is not at all particular about clothes. He doesn't try or pretend to be fashionable. He always carries plenty of baggage, most of which he never uses. He claims it looks good when your traveling. He like cold showers and actually takes them.

Catholic U. 'Underdog,' G. W. Choice in Battles Here Today

This Morning...

With Shirley Povich

COME what may in the four games faced by Washington colleges before the 1935 football season passes into history, folks here are already able to measure the success of George Washington, Georgetown, Catholic U. and Maryland. As the self-appointed assayer of their football worth, this department, predicating its opinions on what has gone before, ranks 'em in the following order: (1) Catholic U. (2) Maryland. (3) Georgetown, and (4) George Washington.

POVICH.

All of which is, of course, not calculated to increase this department's popularity, if any, among G. W. folks, but after taking what I believe is a circumspect slant at the comparative records, George Washington appears to be running a distinct fourth in the local sphere. George Washington, a stand-out team last season, proved the outstanding disappointment of 1935 with its stunning setbacks in its big games. The Colonials did right by the Washington football public with their presentation of such opponents as Alabama, Rice and Tulsa on the home scene, but they never justified the preseason promise that they would be Washington's best football team.

G. W. saw its season blighted almost at the start when it absorbed a terrific 39-to-0 beating from Alabama. If G. W. did, indeed, have potentialities, then it never did recover from that drubbing. The 41-to-0 Rice debacle contributed nothing to the Colonials' bid for high standing locally or nationally and a 7-to-6 beating by the lowly Wake Forest team was an extremely bitter dose. One-sided victories over Tulsa, Catawba and Davis-Elkins provided little balm.

Coach Jim Pixlee produced another team that lacked diversity in attack until the waning games of the season when he attempted his spread formation with no marked success, although it did provide spectator appeal. Pixlee again was unable to surround Tuffy Leemans with blocking backs, and injuries to Leemans deprived the team of a degree of even its weak punch. The new backfield coach, Reinhart, apparently worked no wonders with the backfield which lacked a single sustained drive against Rice, Alabama or West Virginia.

A VICTORY over North Carolina State this afternoon would enhance Catholic U.'s standing as the No. 1 team locally, but any result barring a one-sided defeat could hardly change the rating. Dutch Bergman's Cardinals, beaten only once, have proven the surprise team of Washington. C. U. hit its high spot with a thrilling victory over Detroit, but with the exception of the lapse against DePaul at Chicago, the Cards have been a consistently swell ball club.

A thumping 41-to-0 victory over La Salle, a team that was unbeaten last season, launched C. U. on its most successful campaign in history. Then followed victories over Duquesne, Detroit and St. Mary's of Texas, the 6-to-0 loss to DePaul, and decisive triumphs over West Virginia Wesleyan and Western Maryland. The Cardinals' schedule did not entail such severe tests as Alabama and Rice, but against Duquesne and Detroit they were moving in fast company.

C. U. was probably the best-rounded team of all the local colleges with a defense that has permitted only five touchdowns, excellent kicking, a diversified running attack that capitalized on the lateral pass, and an end in George Mulligan who qualified as the best pass receiver among the Washington colleges. Verily, if C. U. had a weakness, it was not discernible to the opposition as was G. W.'s sad attempts to function when Leemans was not carrying the ball.

Maryland qualifies for the No. 2 rating because of its late-season improvement which saw the Terrapins stage a spectacular 13-7 battle against Indiana that they should have won, and then bump off Georgetown by a 12-to-6 score. The Terps improved rapidly after a dismal start that saw 'em beaten 33 to 0 by North Carolina, and held to low scores by its various Virginia rivals, none of which boasted strong teams.

DESPITE its late-season successes, Maryland failed to justify the promise of pre-season reports. The ineligibility of Andorka wrecked the team's line and Bill Guckeyson always lacked for able support in the backfield. The clever end play of Willis and Ennis was a powerful factor in Guckeyson's sweeps and the Terrapins, except for their lapse in the Carolina game, were potent on the defense.

At Georgetown, Coach Jack Hagerty's team of sophomores provided a pleasant surprise. Gradually improving after an opening-game setback by Albright, a team that was destined to lose only once this season, the Hoyas reached out for national recognition when they held New York U. to a 7-to-6 score after threatening for three quarters to win the game. Until the 12-to-6 beating by Maryland, which deprived Georgetown of the No. 2 ranking, Hagerty's team had yielded only two touchdowns.

Georgetown, like G. W., lacked a sustained driving attack, however, and was held to moderate scores by such weak foes as Roanoke, Richmond and Miami. A 13-to-0 victory over Manhattan, however, was a better performance than any achieved by G. W. Hagerty was the only Washington coach who played the lateral passing game to the hilt and it was with that weapon that Georgetown was at its best.

Whatever may be the protests on this department's ranking of the teams, there can be little question as to the four lads who deserve All-District honors in the backfield. Tuffy Leemans, of G. W.; Bill Guckeyson, of Maryland; Irish Carroll, of C. U., and Tom Keating, of Georgetown, were tremendous standouts, or I might as well argue that Abou Ben Ahdem was an also-ran. Leemans, Guckeyson, Carroll and Keating—I like 'em in that order.

The Great Kingfish Levinsky May Soon Be a 'Barleymoor'

Copyright, 1935, by the United Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 27.—Maxwell street's most muscular fish peddler—in the head—tonight bid a reluctant if not lasting adieu to the fistic and associated industries.

Kingfish Levinsky seeks new fields to conquer. The first may be the cinema.

"I'm the Personality Kid in person," he confided hoarsely as he leaned across the bar of the North Side bar and grill which bears his name. "Like this John Barleymore, from that actin' family. I mean, with all them wimmen and everything. Maybe I can act, too, huh?"

The King is willing to leave fighting and wrestling for the moment, and, chances are, those noble professions are willing to sacrifice the services of the modest herringheaver. The ring has been kind to the pride of Chicago's Ghetto! It has been a kindness verging on magnanimity.

Take Has Been Good.

Although the King has taken some $150,000 out of it, he probably made up his mind last Wednesday morning a few hours after he had engaged in a brief mixed-wrestling engagement in St. Louis with Ray Steele, wrestling patriarch of Glendale, Calif.

Levinsky was to box and Steele was to wrestle and 12,000 customers came to see 'em do both, or either.

They saw the Kingfish, 200 pounds of ferocious fighting man, unleash one punch from the floor as he rushed at the wrestler. The blow connected, but it only stunned him.

After all, one becomes accustomed to many surprises in the wrestling trade. Thereupon the grappler whirled the King around the canvas and threw him with a thump and, I believe, a body lock. Time of bout: 35 seconds.

"Hey, I didn't want to break my arm," Levinsky explained tonight. "I got my career. I got years ahead of me and I gotta be careful."

Remembers the Bomber.

The King is no novice at short engagements. He met the Brown Bomber—but briefly—here in Chicago last summer in a bout that went on 40 minutes ahead of time because, it was said, the promoters feared the worried Mr. Levinsky would flee the arena.

A cordon of policemen escorted him into the ring, not particularly to save him from mauling by the crowd but to assure his presence at the combat. Later it was said they should have drawn their nightsticks to prevent him from being assaulted by the methodic Mr. Louis.

For this thrilling encounter the Kingfish's end of the gate was $32,374. But, again, it is doubtful if he got any of the proceeds. First, there is his colorful sister-manager, Mrs. "Leaping Lena" Levy.

"Lena's nuts," said the Kingfish.

North Dakota Final Foe of Colonials

Blanchette Holds Key to Offensive of Invaders; Starts at 2 P. M.

GEORGE WASHINGTON and Tuffy Leemans came to the end of another football trial this afternoon at Central High School Stadium, where they meet North Dakota's confident representatives at 2 o'clock.

The game does not simply mark the close of another campaign for Leemans, but also the final chapter in the most glamorous football story ever enacted by a George Washington player, and Leemans is prepared to make the most of the occasion.

North Dakota looms strong enough to provide the background for a whirlwind finish if Tuffy is in stride, and the steel-legged Belgian yesterday promised the best performance of his career. Between the halves he will be presented a diamond-studded gold football by Bourke Floyd, president of the Student Council, as a token of the esteem in which he is held.

Nodaks Back.

George Washington reigns a slight favorite over the Sioux, but it must win today to equal its best record of six victories in one season. Last year the invaders upset their host, 7-0, in a night game played in a driving rainstorm when Lou Chumick broke through and blocked a punt. Eight of the team that participated in that upset are back today for some more fun, and they may repeat.

The visitors will outweigh George Washington in the line but the backfield weights are about even. Bob Blanchette, 190-pound quarterback, who does all of the passing, and Bob Campbell, squat but speedy ball carrier, probably will bear the brunt of North Dakota's attack, although there are plenty of others ready for action should they fail.

The Leemans offense, as usual, will have to run around the George Washington team.

For Capt. Harry Deming, Sid Kolker, Ben Plotnicki, Hank Vonder Broegge and Red Rathjen, as well as Leemans, it will be their final game in Buff and Blue livery, and, like Tuffy, they are geared to a soprano pitch for the finale.

Syndicate Plans To Buy Browns

By the Associated Press.

St. Louis, Nov. 27.—The Globe-Democrat tonight said a syndicate of ten sportsmen here, including George Sisler, has been formed to purchase the St. Louis Browns of the American League.

The paper said Sisler, a former Brownie manager and one of the great first basemen in diamond history, and several others had already obtained an option on the club.

No attempt will be made by the syndicate, the paper stated, to buy Sportsmans Park, home grounds of the Browns and the St. Louis Cardinals, or other baseball property owned by the estate of the late Phil Ball.

Sisler and his partner in a softball venture here, Edward Marsh, were understood to have originated the syndicate.

Post-Season Games Out for Notre Dame

South Bend, Ind., Nov. 27 (AP).—It was learned on very reliable authority today that Notre Dame would not accept an invitation to play in the annual Rose Bowl game even should such an invitation be offered.

The football team, which finished a hard nine-game schedule Saturday with the finest record of any Notre Dame team since the Rockne era, is worn out and in no condition to play any post-season games, the Associated Press' informant said.

An invitation to compete in a post-season game in Honolulu already has been turned down.

Joe Louis' Auto Plate For 1936 Reads 'K-0'

Lansing, Mich., Nov. 27 (AP). Joe Louis' automobile will bear his knockout label next year.

Secretary of State Orville E. Atwood announced today that 25 special Michigan plates will be issued bearing a letter and a zero. Louis was given the plate 'K O," while Boxing Promoter Nick Londos, of Detroit, got "N-0."

Atwood said one plate will bear only the numeral zero, and said & and I cannot be used. He has not decided who will get the other plates.

The joyful sight that greeted holders of "daily double" tickets on Genie Palatine and Palamede, a combination that returned $1,916.90 for each two-dollar ticket.

Jockey Phillips, Thrown in Second Race, Rides Genie Palatine to Victory at $463 Mutuel; Wedge Lad Is Killed; Costs Claimant $1,500.

By Walter Haight,

A Staff Correspondent.

BOWIE Race Track, Nov. 27.—What happened at this race track today would fill a book but for the sake of convenience suppose we quickly detail the most important occurrences:

1. The daily double on the horses Palamede and Genie Palatine paid $1,916.90 for a $2 ticket, the second largest in Maryland history.

2. The horse Genie Palatine, winner of the third race, paid a $463.50 mutuel, the record for Maryland this year.

3. Wedge Lad, a well-played 2-year-old in the third race, threw his jockey over the fence, ran through the starting gate, crashed into the outside fence and broke his leg. Jockey Dabson suffered a broken toe and the horse, on which all bets stood, was destroyed.

4. L. Haymaker paid $1,500 for a dead horse. Haymaker had put in a claim for Wedge Lad and under the rules the horse was his property from the time it put a hoof on the track. C. F. Hockley, under whose colors Wedge Lad was to run when he met with the accident, turned over the papers to Haymaker shortly after the horse was put to death.

5. Jockeys Eddie Smith, of Washington, and Joe Wager, second leading winning rider of the year, were thrown among the flying hoofs in the first race when their mounts, Protected and Bunky, fell. Wagner resumed riding but Smith suffered a bruised back and was

Syracuse Ends Season With Md. Today

Duel of Outstanding Backs Expected Today in Baltimore.

A THRILLING duel between two outstanding halfbacks is expected this afternoon when Maryland meets Syracuse at Baltimore in the Monumental City's feature holiday sports attraction. The kick-off will be at 2 o'clock.

Bill Guckeyson, Maryland's reformed soccer player and hero of his team's 12-to-6 victory over Georgetown last week, is the Old Lineis nominee, while Syracuse's hopes for victory will be pinned on the frail frame of Vannie Albanese, a youngster who has attained stardom almost overnight.

Thoroughly rested after a two-week vacation from the gridiron, Syracuse will enter the fray a 6-to-5 favorite over the Terrapins. The big Orange eleven had an off day last Saturday, while Maryland engaged Georgetown in what developed into one of its severest tests of the season.

Lost But One Game.

The game also marks the close of Syracuse's football campaign and with their best record in years within their grasp the Northerners are well prepared to finish with a flourish. Regarded as too inexperienced to be formidable, Syracuse has lost only one game, and that to Colgate, and the team now ranks as one of the East's best.

Maryland has been strengthened by the return of Mike Surgent, regular guard, who was on the injured list, and the squad will be at its best, physically. The Terps also are confident of upsetting their opponents. In Guckeyson, Coleman Headley, Jack Stonebraker, Johnny Gormley and the others, the school has the best group of backs to represent it in a number of years.

All-New York Game Leads Grid Card

80,000 Expected to See Unbeaten N. Y. U. Face Fordham Rams.

By Alan Gould

United Press Sports Editor.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—Thanksgiving Day's football prospects are comparatively peaceful this year except in the Bronx.

There are a number of traditional matches elsewhere in the East as well as several vital engagements in the South and a round-robin among Rocky Mountain title contenders, but tomorrow's most interesting tilt takes place in the Yankee Stadium, with the unbeaten and untied Violets of New York University facing the challenge of the rugged Rams of Fordham.

Real Excitement.

The big town has been whipped up to a pitch of excitement not exceeded by the furore over Army and Notre Dame. Close to 80,000 spectators will jam the "house that Ruth built" to see whether N. Y. U. really has come back to a place among the topnotchers, such as it enjoyed during the halycon days of Chick Meehan's regime at university heights, or whether Fordham's powerful forwards will spill the team that has run up seven consecutive victories against somewhat ordinary opposition.

Fordham is the betting favorite at 6 to 5 as well as the choice of

N. C. State 8-5 Favorite at Stadium

Many Stars Will End Careers; Cardinals in Confident Mood.

C. U. to Depend Upon Carroll, Adamaitis in Season's Final.

By Lewis F. Atchison.

THE greatest football team ever to sport the Cardinal and Black of Catholic University will ring down the curtain on a highly successful season this afternoon on the turf of Griffith Stadium, where it clashes with North Carolina State at 2 o'clock, in one of the Capital City's outstanding holiday sports attractions.

State, too, is regarded as one of the most formidable elevens in the school's history and a victory over the Cardinals will climax one of the best campaigns in recent years. Fresh from a thrilling duel with Duke, which it lost, 7-0, the Wolfpack will enter the fray an 8-5 favorite.

Stars in Final Games.

It will be the final game of their college careers for a quintet of Catholic stars and four State huskies. Capt. Ed Karpowich, George Mulligan, acclaimed the greatest end in Catholic U. history; Pete Dranginis, Harold McGann and Bill Lajousky are bowing out this afternoon. All but Dranginis are linemen.

Capt. Barnes Worth, all-Southern guard; Steve Sabol, center; Vince Farrar, righttackle, and Willie Dusty, reserve quarterback; are those scheduled to play their last game for the Wolfpack. All have been important factors in their team's success and can be counted on for their best this afternoon.

Catholic will rely on its fleet-footed halfback, "Irish" Carroll, and a potent passing attack of Bill Adamaitis, to Mulligan or Hermie Schmarr to penetrate enemy terri-

Brown Longshot Of Day at 4 to 1

By the United Press.

Fordham 6-5 over N. Y. U.
Kansas 8-5 over Missouri.
Catholic U. 6-5 over North Carolina State.
Alabama 2-1 over Vanderbilt.
Pitt 3-1 over Carnegie Tech.
Penn 3-1 over Cornell.
Nebraska 2½-1 over Orego State.
St. Mary's 2-1 over Washington State.
Temple 3-1 over Bucknell.
Arkansas 8-5 over Tulsa.
Colgate 4-1 over Brown.
The following are 2-3—take your pick: Kentucky-Tennessee and Texas A. and M.-Texas.

Only One Likely Choice in Bowie's Thanksgiving Handicap

$2,500 Race Draws Field Of Eight

Thursday Meets Rival Again; Post Time Is 1:30 o'Clock.

THOSE who like to bet on a four-legged horse before chewing on a two-legged turkey can have their fill of the party of the first part today at nearby Bowie. The nearby Prince Georges County track offers the $2,500 added Thanksgiving Handicap as the feature event of an interesting program. The race has drawn a rather small but select field of eight to compete over the mile and a sixteenth course.

Only One, winner of numerous stakes this year and owned by Mrs. G. B. Howe, not only has been assigned the top weight of 128 pounds but likely will march postward in the favorite role. Only One, a recent winner at this distance with a heavy impost, will be heavily backed despite the fact that Selby Burch's Thursday, his conqueror in the Riggs Handicap at Pimlico is in the field with 115 pounds.

Meet at Longer Route.

However, Thursday's nose victory over the Howe representative was at a longer route. Coupled with Thursday in the Somerville-Burch entry will be Tweedle Dee, a promising and speedy youngster, with 110 pounds up. The Vanderbilt Stable is placing its reliance in Purple Knight, an impressive winner at the meeting. Weston, Chatmoss, Malbrouk and Official, each expected to be backed by the holiday crowd, are slated to see action.

Mad Frump, surprise winner of the Thanksgiving Day Handicap last year, has not been named but will compete in the fourth race in a well-matched field which includes Hut, Naval Cadet, Sir Ten and Master Lad, popular horses during the now waning Maryland season.

Limit fields of 12 likely will face the barrier in the first and third races which hold the key to the daily double. In the absence of an outstanding horse in either event, another large mutuel is expected. The betting on the "double" closes at 1:15 o'clock, 15 minutes before post time of the first race.

*Field.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—PALAMEDE, $7.60, $3.00, $3.60; ROCKY PRINCE, $2.50, $2.40; TRYLUBRIA, $21.70.

PALAMEDE was sent up fast going to the first turn, wore MINTIE down after being straightened into the back stretch, shook off ROCKY PRINCE and drew out at will when shaken up for the final drive. ROCKY PRINCE, under pressure in the early running, weakened after making a bold bid midway of the final turn. TRYLUBRIA went forwardly placed, but could not threaten. HOT GRIDDLE was held safe. KRAKATOA could not menace. MINTIE stopped. RUNANSTAY was pulled up. PROTECTED and BUNKY fell after being straightened into the back stretch.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $500; claiming. For maiden 2-year-olds. Foaled in Maryland. Start good for all but Texton from stall gates in chute. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 2:03. Off at 2:04½. Winner, J. D. Cohn's ro. f. (2), by Sir Greyster—Florestine. Trained by S. L. Burch. Value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:24, 0:48 3-5, 1:14 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—IRON ORE, $4.00, $2.80, $2.30; SIT OUT, $3.20, $2.60; CHRYSEIS, $3.30.

IRON ORE opened up a long lead when reaching the turn, swerved out after entering the home stretch, but continued stoutly until the finish. SIT OUT, bothered by the riderless FASHION QUEEN, improved her position gamely on securing racing room. CHRYSEIS, unable to keep pace with the winner after the first three furlongs, weakened gradually during the final drive. CICARY went well placed, but was not good enough when put to a hard drive. EASTER LAD met with early interference and dropped far out of it. TEXTON stood fast-footed when break came and was pulled up. FASHION QUEEN lost her rider soon after the break.

THIRD RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $800; claiming. For 2-year-olds. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:41. Off at 2:42. Winner, Mrs. A. S. Bowman's b. f. (2), by Genie—Sun Palatine. Trained by A. S. Bowman. Value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:24 3-5, 0:50, 1:16 2-5, 1:43, 1:48 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—GENIE PALATINE, $463.50, $83.60, $43.40; HI-WELL, $3.90, $3.30; STROPHE, $6.00. Daily double paid $1,916.90.

GENIE PALATINE sprinted into an easy lead when reaching the back stretch, went along smoothly until reaching the home stretch, began tiring and had to be vigorously ridden to stall off HI-WELL. Latter, ridden with by JACK PATCHES going to the first turn, worked his way up on the outside after moving into the back stretch, slipped through on the inside at the stretch turn and closed with a rush. STROPHE moved up fast at the final turn, but faltered in the closing test. JACK PATCHES moved up fast entering the home stretch, but tired approaching the finish. CANPRA closed a good gap. PEPPER PATCH was hard ridden and had no excuses. GRANDMA'S BOY stopped. WEDGE LAD threw his rider while on parade, crashed into the fence near the clubhouse turn and was destroyed when breaking his leg. All wagers stand.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; allowances. The Cresecentia. For 2-year-olds. Start good from stall gates in chute. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:07. Off at 3:08. Winner, C. V. Whitney's br. c. (2), by Macaw—Beaming. Trained by T. J. Healy. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:23 2-5, 0:47 3-5, 1:12 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BRIGHT PLUMAGE, $4.30, $3.80, $2.40; GOLD MESH, $8.40. Daily double paid $2,916.90.

BRIGHT PLUMAGE, outpaced for the first half-mile, moved up fast nearing the home stretch, swung to the outside and came out slowly after wearing GOLD MESH down inside the final furlong. GOLD MESH had nice speed from the start, raced MY COLIN into submission and held on well when collared. JAY JAY was hard ridden from the beginning, but was unable to stay with the first two after making a strong bid at the stretch turn. GALMICA was unable to enter contention at any stage. HIGH POOL tired. MY COLIN stopped badly after a half mile.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; allowances. The Samuel Ogle. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates in chute. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:31. Off at 3:36½. Two-dollar mutuels paid—ROUSTABOUT, $7.10, $4.70, $3.20; DEDUCE, $6.00, $5.10; EPICAL, $5.70.

ROUSTABOUT, away nicely but slow to gain his best stride, circled his field when moving up boldly at the stretch turn, came strongly in the final drive and was up in the last sixteenth. DEDUCE secured racing room on the inside when engaging the leader and took command after entering the home stretch, but could not stop the winner. EPICAL had keen speed to shake off stout opposition from HOPE TO DO, but was not good enough in the closing drive. DOWDY DELL came through a wide opening at the stretch turn, but hung in the closing test. HOPE TO DO tired after five furlongs. MOONSON was held safe. FLAG OF WAR showed speed for a half mile. SAND FROID had no excuse.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:03. Off at 4:05. Winner, J. V. Stewart's ch. m. (5), by Stripling Player—Heart o' Gold. Trained by J. V. Stewart. Value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SINGING HEART, $17.40, $8.60, $7.80; SPARTAN LADY (field), $8.90, $5.10; OLD JUDGE, $9.70.

SINGING HEART outran her field to the first turn, shook off stiff contention from SWEET MOLLIE in the first seven furlongs, saved ground to draw clear entering the home stretch, then, holding on gamely under punishment, outstayed SPARTAN LADY. Latter worked her way up steadily after getting into full stride, but fought it out willingly. OLD JUDGE, shuffled back going to the first turn, circled his field and finished with a belated rush. SWEET MOLLIE raced strongly for seven furlongs, then tired. LADY FLINDERS raced in the thick of contention early, but weakened in the final issue. MAJOR GENERAL was rushed around to the lead but had too much taken out of him and he tired. FLYING DERE was never a factor. PETEE BLUE weakened badly.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:35. Off at 4:37½. Winner, L. M. Two-dollar mutuels paid—RESPECT, $6.80, $4.40, $3.80; BUSTER BOY, $16.50, $6.70; PLAYMORE, $3.90.

RESPECT was sent into contention going into the back stretch, followed BUSTER BOY closely until reaching the home stretch, then came out slowly after gaining command midway of the stretch drive. BUSTER BOY ran off for a furlong before the start, had nice speed to set the early pace, and held on gamely in the closing drive. PLAYMORE was steadied until reaching the final bend, was carried wide into the home stretch and hung under a drive. SAMBO BROWN was gaining slowly at the finish. WORTHINGTON could not reach contention. WASWANAPPI tired. AMERICAN BELLE had no excuses. DIANE S. showed a flash of early speed.

Harvard Declines Fake Bowl Bid From Trojans

Stanford University, Calif., Nov. 27 (AP).—A practical joker "invited" Harvard University to compete against Stanford in the New Years Day football game at the Pasedena Rose Bowl and an answer, "declining" the invitation, was received from Cambridge today.

A check of the telegraph office revealed the "invitation" actually was sent over Masters' name. The answer, purportedly came from William J. Bingham, Harvard official.

Devitt to Play Staunton or Fork Union

Virginia Teams Meet for Honor of Facing D. C. Team at Richmond.

By John R. Vosburgh.

DEVITT PREP announced yesterday that it had signed a contract with the Richmond American Legion to play the prep school football champions of Virginia, either Fork Union Military Academy or Staunton Military Academy, Saturday, December 7, at the University of Richmond Stadium.

Fork Union and Staunton will play this coming Saturday for the State championship, the winner qualifying to meet Devitt in the "intersectional" contest.

Negotiations between the Richmond legion and Devitt were begun through The Post high school correspondent acting as an intermediary. Several telephone conversations between Devitt and legion officials resulted yesterday in Coach Jim MacNamara, of Devitt, conferring with the legion at Richmond. The contract is understood to assure Devitt 30 per cent of the gate receipts. The stadium seats 11,000 persons.

Announcement by the legion that Fork Union or Staunton will be Devitt's opponent came as a distinct surprise to the local school. It had been understood that Thomas Jefferson, the Richmond High School champions, would be the opponent. Fork Union and Staunton are considered two of the strongest scholastic teams in the East and a notch or two above the best high school team Virginia could possibly furnish.

Legion officials believed Fork Union or Staunton will have a greater drawing power than Thomas Jefferson.

Devitt Loses Star Player.

It was also learned yesterday that Devitt has lost one of its outstanding players for the remainder of the season in Buck Roberts, who became automatically ineligible by playing for the Maryland A. C. against the Washington Pros earlier in the week.

Devitt will turn loose in the forthcoming game one of the finest backfield men seen in Washington in years in Adam Zinkievich, 175-pound triple threat fullback. Zinkievich amittedly is the bulwark of the team, which is virtually built around the versatile 6-footer. Devitt has lost two games this season, but in both of them Zinkievich was out of the city.

Two former All-High players and a former All-Virginia prep school choice are included in the Devitt line-up. Rube Hayman, tackle, was an All-High selection at Central High; Jim Ham Lewis, the other tackle, was an All-Virginia choice when he played at Randolph-Macon Academy.

Army Coach Claims Cadet Victory Would Be Surprise to Him

Gallico

Southwest Ablaze; Picks the Navy; Oh, Mr. Gallico!

By Paul Gallico.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—The peepul have spoken. Or rather the editors have spoken for the peepul . . . A newspaper poll was overwhelmingly in favor of this department's eye-witnessing the forthcoming game in the Southwest this Saturday between Southern Methodist and Texas Christian, the only two unbeaten and untied teams to play one another at this late date . . . One of them will, in all likelihood, go to the Rose Bowl, because it is in the cards for Fordham to beat N. Y. U. Thursday afternoon. The Army-Navy game on the same Saturday is being played for sweet tradition. But that other game is for the marbles. They tell me that the Southwest is ablaze. Adios, Amigos. Van Con Dios. I'm off for the plains of Texas.

Thanksgiving Day selections: Note—These selections were made by me out of my own head without benefit of thaumaturgy, spiritualism or a two-tailed coin. Fordham, 20; N. Y. U., 6. And will I get violent violet letters if that one is wrong? But somehow I feel very strongly about that. The boys from N. Y. U. have too much at stake. That Rose Bowl talk, I am afraid, has them unbalanced They're going to press. Fordham with no Rose Bowl bid is going to be playing tough, sardonic, spoil-sport football.

The rest are fairly simple. Pitt, 19; Carnegie Tech, 7. To date, Carnegie Tech has beaten Case and Purdue. Pitt has plenty of class. Penn, 19; Cornell, 0. Cornell has had a sad season and just doesn't seem to be able to match Penn in class. Kentucky, 14; Tennessee, 7. Form pick. Washington State, 10; St. Mary's, 6. Might be an upset there, but I am through with upsets for the season. William and Mary, 14; Richmond, 0. Toss-up game. North Carolina, 20; Virginia, 0. No contest. The next best team in the South, playing a squad that has won one game all season.

Inasmuch as I will not see the Army-Navy game, which I am convinced will be won by the Navy, I would like for the benefit of those of my clients who like that colorful annual clash to do a little of the color now. This may be clipped and saved until Saturday, or it may be thrown away now.

HERE comes the Army; the blue-caped band enters first, trumpets blowing, cymbals crashing, and behind them swings the wonderful gray phlanx, the utmost in the singular poetry of marching men. Step, step, step . . . Rhythm in gray. They move with indomitable will and power. Their tramping feet on the echoing earth sing the song of might. They will hypnotize you if you watch them long enough. Or if you just watch the white-gloved hands, swinging, swinging, swinging, or the black-shod feet, picking up, laying down, picking up, laying down . . . Not a man out of step, not a man out of time or rhythm.

Hurrah; "Anchors Aweigh," here comes the Navy. Please re-read above paragraph and substitute blue for gay. Now they are bringing the Navy goat across the field to meet the Army mule. Look, the goat lowers his head, and tries to butt the mule. It is all that two midshipmen can do to hold him. The mule shies off. The photographers are trying to get them together for a picture. Two high naval dignitaries in gold lace just walked across the field and took their places in a box on the Navy side. The (Army, Navy) team runs onto the field for practice, and a great roar of welcome rolls up from the (Army-Navy) rooters. Two aeroplanes are flying overhead around Franklin Field. They drag streamers advertising whisky . . . .

Speaking of radio, this little note from a Mr. Silvia in Brooklyn, amused me. "Dear Paul: Interesting remarks from radio announcers at last Saturday's football—Dartmouth vs. Princeton. Ted Husing—'He has the ball. There he goes, crashing and slashing his way through the line for.....er.....no gain.'

"Rice vs. Texas Christian at Fort Worth, between the halves. Announcer: 'All the spectators are holding their seats and are having a fine time.'

"Notre Dame vs. Southern California. Announcer giving other scores: 'Kansas is leading Iowa, 7-7.'"

Well, so long, customers. It's off for Fort Worth and football as she is played in the Southwest.

Anti-Olympic.

The Women's International League for Peace and Freedom yesterday appealed to the American Olympic committee to vote for the withdrawal of the United States from next year's Berlin Olympics. The W. I. L. P. F. contended that "political, religious and racial discrimination has been practiced by the Nazi government, thereby violating the code for the Olympic games."

Bethesda Boy Honored.

Manlius, N. Y., Nov. 27.—Bill Turney, of Bethesda, Md., has been selected as guard on the Manlius Prep School all-intramural football team, Athletic Director Mark Bardley announced today. The members of the mythical team are named by vote of all the intramural coaches.

Heurich League.

The Heurich Flashes defeated the Little Tavern, 31 to 19, in one of three basketball games played in the Heurich League last night. In other contests, Rinaldi beat Bovello, 33 to 19, and Acacia defeated Fort Myer, 33 to 31.

Says Material Is Worst in Years

Gloomy Davidson Gives Reasons Why Navy Should Triumph.

By the Associated Press.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 27.—Gar Davidson, Army's silver-thatched football coach, isn't given to alibis. But he says if his cadet team trims the Navy at Philadelphia Saturday, he'll be the most surprised man in Uncle Sam's military service.

Seated behind a desk piled high with large white charts of formations to be used against the Middies, Davidson shook his head sadly and said that for Army to match, much less stop, Navy's power is more than any person can expect.

Indeed, Army triumphed in one of its objective games with Yale and gained a "moral victory" in tying Notre Dame, but Davidson frankly asserted that as far as material is concerned, Army football arrived at a new low this year—the lowest, in fact, since the World War.

Lacks Substitutes.

"To begin with," said Davidson, "we haven't qualified players in quantity. Any team is only as strong as its substitutes and it's sad to relate that our promising plebes of last year have not lived up to expectations this season, and the same goes for many of the boys who were reserves last year. One of the reasons is, however, that most of the reserves have not acquired enough experience in games to date to make them ready to carry the burden in case of an emergency.

"All this boils down to one thing, we've got only about 19 men we can count on with any feeling of security. We used our full strength against Notre Dame and that was 15 or 16 men. Still on the same tack, passes have featured our victories to date. All of which means there hasn't been any individual brilliance or power in any of them. Monk Meyer has been standing out only because he does the passing and the kicking and the other ten men have been doing their jobs.

May Be Iron Men.

"If it were possible I'd like to cast my starting players in the roles of iron men Saturday, but I don't think it will be possible, I don't believe the boys would stand for it."

Worrying Davidson the most is the fear that the Cadets reached their peak against Notre Dame. He recalled vividly how Army rose from the underdog role to whip Yale and then slumped badly against Mississippi State the next Saturday. He's afraid the same thing will happen in the Navy game.

Davidson will take a squad of 38 players to the suburbs of Philadelphia tomorrow afternoon to remain there until a few hours before game time. The squad went through a light practice this afternoon and the same diet is on tomorrow's schedule.

Navy Regiment, Team Both in Practice

Players Hold Last Drill for Army as Midshipmen Rehearse March.

By the Associated Press.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 27.—The Naval Academy football squad and the regiment of midshipmen both practiced for the Army-Navy game today, the players running through a short, final defensive scrimmage against the Cadet plays.

Before Tom Hamilton, head coach, took his varsity groups to the Thompson Stadium for secret practice the regiment rehearsed the marching and seating to be used Saturday at Franklin Field, Philadelphia.

Hamilton said the practice period was a "defensive night," with the main emphasis on pass defense. "Army" teams from the "B" squad furnished the opposition during the short scrimmage.

The Navy coach has been working steadily against the Army attack since the Columbia game, the "B" squad and plebes being formed into Cadet teams for the purpose. Although offensive training has not been neglected, the defense has receive major attention.

Backfield Yet Green.

Navy lacks an experienced triple-threat in its backfield, although the Navy backfields, as a whole, are versatile, there is no single player who can pass, run and kick with the same all-around ability as Monk Meyer, the Army's ace.

The Army team also packs considerable experience, while the Navy squad contains many sophomore players.

The Navy squad of 48 players will leave for Philadelphia at 6:30 p. m. tomorrow. They will arrive at the tomorrow. They will arrive at the Manufacturers Country Club, outside of Philadelphia, at 10:05 p. m. A light workout will be held here before the squad leaves, with another scheduled for Friday.

Sports Figures Have Reasons To Be Thankful This Day

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 27.—What some of the headliners in the world of sport will be thankful for on Thanksgiving Day:

Joe Louis: He's got a wife, money in the bank, great prospects in the fighting game, and an ice box filled with turkey.

Gene Sarazen: For that 220-yard spoon shot that gave him a chance to beat Craig Wood for the Augusta Masters Golf championship, his only important title of a sad year.

Discovery: Because he came back to the races and showed 'em he could pick 'em up and lay 'em down.

Jimmy Braddock: Because he jumped from the relief rolls to world's heavyweight boxing championship and because he paid back every dime he received from charity.

Knox College: For Coach Pete Reynolds.

Gallant Fox: He sent his son, Omaha, back to another family conquest in the Kentucky Derby.

Alabama Pitts: Because they let him play baseball.

Sir Malcolm Campbell: Because he drove his Bluebird over the salt flats of Utah at 301.33 miles per hour.

Goose Goslin: Because he smacked out that $50,000 hit in the final game of the World Series.

U. C. L. A.: Because the great "key mystery" was solved.

Tex Carleton: Because he was traded to the championship club (the Cubs, this time) for the second year in a row.

American League: Because it won the all-star game and World Series.

King Levinsky: Because he isn't a wrestler.

By Bill McCormick.

A WINTER boxing season as filled with delectable morsels as a Thanksgiving table is promised for local lovers of larrup once the new Joe Turner Arena at Fourteenth and W streets is opened to the public.

The new fight site will be christened next Monday night by a 15-round engagement between Phil Furr and Sid Silas for the District welterweight championship. That indeed should be an auspicious beginning, but the best is yet to come.

Unless the well-laid plans of Promoter Joe Turner and Matchmaker Goldie Ahearn go very much awry, December 9 will find Bob Godwin, recent conqueror of Buck Everett, on the police benefit card, making very determined passes at Terry Mitchell, the wild-swinging Harp from New York.

Gallagher Next.

The next bit of boxfighting business planned by the Turner-Ahearn combine will feature none other than Foggy Bottom's own Marty Gallagher, who last summer outpunched free-wheeling Kingfish Levinsky, and Al Delaney.

Although not well-known here, Delaney holds wins over Tommy Loughran and Buddy Baer, and is the same fighter who under the name of Otto Borchuk smashed several of Joe Louis' teeth with one punch. Louis always has insisted since then that Borchuk, or Delaney, as you choose, gave him his best fight (and Joe includes Primo Carnera and Max Baer). Louis also says for publication that Borchuk hit him harder than he ever has been swatted by any other fighter.

Then, should Godwin trounce Mitchell, which is entirely possible, he will be signed for a rematch with Buck Everett, which should be one of the highlights of the season. These two willing workers gave ten of about the best rounds seen in a heavyweight brawl hereabouts and the fact that Godwin wound up on the floor from a right-hand punch added fuel to the clamors for a rematch.

The new arena is practically finished now, lacking only a thorough cleaning to remove the construction debris. The bleacher seats will probably be completely erected today and work started on the ring. New ring lights have been installed and the entire fighting pit will be very very eclat, indeed.

Tickets at the new site will be taxed according to the New York plan, with the public paying the boxing commission tax as well as Federal taxes. This will boost the price of $1.10 ducats to $1.15, the $1.65 seats will continue to sell for that price and those choice locations which formerly commanded $2.20 now will be retailed for $2.30 at the box office.

To give the principals of next Monday's Furr-Silas bout added incentive, the Turner-Ahearn group yesterday announced the winner would be awarded a solid gold belt buckle. There is no belt to go with the buckle. Messrs. Turner and Ahearn evidently figuring even the winner will get plenty of belts in the ring.

Mexico City Game Not to Be Annual School Officials Deny That Reports Have Basis.

Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, and Birch E. Bayh, head of the physical education system, yesterday characterized as "unfounded" a published report that "officials" are seeking to make the game between Mexico City's all-high team and Washington's inter-high champions an annual contest.

Dr. Ballou asserted that "no official step" for such an arrangement is being taken. Bayh expressed the belief "it has not been brought up either officially or unofficially."

The superintendent pointed out that both he and the Board of Education in approving the game this year did so with the express understanding that it was not to be an annual contest. At the meeting of the board at which consent was given, some of the members took the precaution to avoid giving intimation that the board favors post-season games in general or establishing a post-season game as an annual custom.

Women Stars To Clash on D. C. Alleys

Gulli-Simmons Start 20-Game Match Saturday at Lucky Strike.

THE difficult task of the National Duckpin Bowling Congress in selecting the world-champion woman bowler of the current season will be made easier with that organization sponsoring a 20-game match between Ida Simmons, the country's leading duckpinninst from Norfolk, Va., and Lorraine Gulli, of Washington, former No. 1 star for seven straight years.

The two stars met for the first time this year a few weeks ago in a South Atlantic Ladies League match, but failed to settle the question of supremacy when each finished her three-game set with 345. The forthcoming match is scheduled for this week-end and will be divided into two blocks. The first block of ten games will be rolled at the Lucky Strike on Saturday at 3 p. m. and the latter block on Sunday at Earl Stocking's Silver Spring alleys at 2 p. m. and 7 p. m.

Ample seating arrangements have been made at both establishments to accommodate the spectators.

The girls in the Ladies District League turned in one of the best performances of the season last night. Lucky Strike was the scene of two season-record scores, with the Lucky Strike team shooting a 612 game and 1,690 set to blank Temple three games. The victory advanced them to within one game of the leading Rosslyn team, which dropped one game to Convention Hall.

Lucky Strike's two records were achieved by Catherine Quigley's 144 game and 361 set, Lorraine Gulli's 359 set and Polly Shugrue's 344. Rosslyn eked out an odd-game decision by the aid of Rena Levy's 144 game and Lucy Rose's 358 set. Arcadia whitewashed Natonal Beer with Ruth Rothgeb's 143 and Evelyn Ream's 361 featuring, and the Bill Woods were pressed to take an odd-game decision from Swanee.

In the Petworth League play last night at the Petworth alleys, Lucky Strike Barbers squeezed out a 2-to-1 victory over Brotman's Market. Elmer Cusack, of Brotman's Market, rolling high set with a 388. York Auto pulled away to a two-game lead in the league by beating Schaeffer Motor three times.

Mike Thompson, Grid Official, Rounds Out 40th Year Today

By the Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 27.—Richard J. (Mike) Thompson, nationally known as the dean of football officials, tomorrow rounds out his fortieth year on the gridiron, believing he soon may be retiring to the sidelines.

"Forty years is a long life for a football official," he said today before leaving for the game between Pennsylvania Military College and Ursinus at Chester, Pa.

Thompson, 58 years old, stocky and robust, has been an intensive student of the game since his youth.

"Even if I decide to give up officiating after this year," he commented, "I will continue to take an active interest in the game."

He could not recall how many games he has handled, but it was "somewhere over 500." Many have been intersectional contests. He went to the West Coast twice for the Stanford-California games.

During the early days of his career, officials were called on many time to make decisions on plays not in the rule books. Two of Thompson's have become famed.

One was on the "hidden ball" play by the Carlisle Indians against Harvard in 1903. The Indians slipped the ball under the jersey of a lineman who ran 95 yards for the touchdown and Thompson allowed the play. The rules committee at first agreed with him but years later termed the play "unsportsman-like conduct."

A drop-kick in the Andover-Exeter game in 1911 hit the ground and bounded over the cross bar. Thompson disallowed the score. In the Princeton-Dartmouth game the same day, the ball took a similar bounce and the score was allowed. The rules committee upheld Thompson's decision.

Thompson started playing football with Waterbury, Conn., high school in the early 90's but a broken ankle terminated his playing days and he turned to officiating.

Thompson dates his officiating career from 1895, because his books of newspaper clippings only go back that far. He entered Holy Cross the next fall and, while still a freshman, organized its first football team.

His first college game was in 1896 between Brown and Boston College, for which he received $5.

Lincoln Opens Feud Again With Howard

Old Rivals to Meet Tonight At Atlantic City.

A crowd estimated at more than 2,000 is expected to leave this morning for Atlantic City, where the annual Turkey Day classic between Howard and Lincoln university elevens will be held tonight in the Auditorium.

Closing a season regarded as somewhat disastrous, the Bisons, nevertheless, appear to be in shape now to trim the Lincoln Lions by approximately two touchdowns. This estimate is based upon the return of Plummer and Oxley to the backfield, following injuries, and the scoring proclivities of Snuffy Johnson and LaVerte Armstrong, who play beside them.

The Oxfordians have met reverses during the season comparable with those of the Bisons, but despite past defeats the ancient rivals are expected, as always, to rise to the occasion and make the classic what its name implies.

Since the annual Thanksgiving Day game between these rival institutions began 37 years ago, the teams have met 29 times, the Howard Bisons annexing 14 victories, while the Lincoln Lions have taken 8. There have been 7 7games in which the count was tied.

Gonzaga Downs Western by 12 to 6

Purple Scores on Blocked Kick to Win and Take Lead in Series.

GIVING away a good 20 pounds a man, Gonzaga climaxed an unexpectedly successful football season yesterday at Western Stadium by tripping Western, 12 to 6, before nearly a thousand spectators. The Purple now holds the edge in the series with the Red Raiders, having won three games and tied one in Coach Orrel Mitchell's six-year tenure at the I street school.

Jim Ellis took Western's opening kick-off and by virtue of two 25-yard runs deposited the ball on Western's 20-yard stripe. Western took it on downs, but was forced back to her own 15, at which point Bob Merkle blocked Johnny Hatch's intended quick kick, McCray falling on the ball in Western's end zone for the first touchdown.

Sustained Drive.

Midway in the second period a sustained attack with Jim Boyle, Ray Gormley and Jim Shaw alternating in reverse slashes off tackle took the ball to Western's 5-yard line. On the next play Gormley passed to Boyle for Gonzaga's second tally.

Western took the air and soon had the ball in Gonzaga territory. Aided by two penalties for offside Western had the ball on Gonzaga's 10, when Johnny Hatch threw a perfect strike to Edmunston, who sprinted across. The entire second half was a see-saw battle between the 30-yard lines.

Baltimore Asks Franchise of Braves

Mayor Indorses Move to Return Major Baseball After 30 Years.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 27.—A movement to bring major league baseball back to Baltimore after a lapse of more than three decades came swiftly to life today with the forfeited franchise of the Boston Braves of the National League as its goal.

A telegram bearing the indorsement of Mayor Howard W. Jackson was sent to Ford Frick, president of the National League, asking him to afford Baltimore a chance to bid on the Boston franchise before any agreement for its sale is made. At the same time, it was revealed that the mayor has had a part in negotiations under way for the last seven months looking toward the return of big league baseball to the home of the old Orioles.

The telegram was signed by Harry Goldman, life insurance executive, who took part in the organization of the American League, as well as the later Federal League that had a club in Baltimore during the limited years of its battle with the older circuits..

Cost Not Known.

Exact estimates of the cost of bringing the Braves' franchise and club to Baltimore and providing a park in which they could play cannot be made, Mr. Goldman said, but he expressed a belief that $1,500,000 would be sufficient for all purposes under existing circumstances. To this he added:

"As far as the financial requirements are concerned, Baltimore is ripe for big league baseball. I don't think that there is the slightest doubt about it, and that Baltimore will raise sufficient money to bring the major league to this city if such a thing becomes possible."

Mr. Goldman said he anticipated no great difficulty in reaching an amicable agreement with the International League and the Baltimore club of that league.

"I am convinced that local pride and the knowledge of the kind of big league town Baltimore would be will lead to quick and friendly negotiations with the Baltimore representatives of the International League," he added. "It is not conceivable that they would throw difficulties into the path if it becomes otherwise possible to bring the Braves here."

Levinsky Heading For Movies, Maybe

"I didn't wanna be a rassler. But maybe I'm a pretty lucky guy anyway. Ain't I, though? Lookit, I might have been a baseball player, huh? I wouldn't like it, either. You might get hit in the head by a ball. I knew a guy who got hit in the head by a ball. It killed him. That's dangerous, ain't it?"

Married Fan Dancer.

In addition, the King has had his marital troubles. For a time, he linked his rich life with that of a world's fair fan dancer, Roxanne Carmen, nee Rosie Glickman. But it didn't last.

"Hell," muttered Levinsky, "what do I want with a wife, huh? Lena got me into that. This dame, she was in my hamburg joint one night and Lena said I ought to marry the kid. The King's no dummy, but for a minute I forget myself, see? So I'm a husband already. It's no good."

Roxanne didn't think it was so good, either, and took her woes to the divorce courts. There it developed that Lena wouldn't let the new Mrs. Levinsky sleep with her bridegroom. There also was something else about the King's dog—"he's got personality, just like me"—but it all was too confusing. We'll just let it pass.

The King still is a big man on the West Side. But uptown, where he has his place, he doesn't stand too well. He likes to flip through the newspapers on the news stands, a habit not welcomed by the Italian newsboys of the community. Maybe the other day he did it once too often.

"There goes," muttered the newsy with little warmth, "Public Zero No. 1."

Steel Output Rises to 56% As Prices Hold

Abundant Evidence of Expansion Reported by Iron Age.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Nov. 27.—There is "abundant evidence" that actual consumption of steel is advancing, said Iron Age today in its weekly review. Ingot production was placed at 56 per cent of capacity, against 54½ per cent last week and raising the average for November to 54.20 per cent, or the highest for any month since May, 1934.

The publication's scrap steel composite has risen from $13 to $13.25 a gross ton, its highest level since the first week in October, 1930. The expected general advance in steel prices has failed to materialize, the summary declared.

"The turn-about on finished steel prices comes as a surprise," it continued. "Rising demand, higher costs of scrap, pig iron and fuel, and finally the recent advances in semifinished steel—all pointed to a mark-up of finished products as a logical sequence.

"It will be recalled, however, that the attitude of the industry toward the proposed advances has been divided from the first and the more conservative interests, by reaffirming current prices, have definitely settled the issue."

Railroads Enter Market.

"However, there is abundant evidence that actual consumption of steel is expanding. Motor car companies continue to take larger quantities of both pig iron and steel, farm equipment makers are planning for a 25 per cent increase in business in 1936, numerous Government-financed projects are maturing and railroad buying promises to resume its former position as a leading outlet for steel.

"The Union Pacific has entered the market for 70,000 tons of rails and 30,000 tons of accessories. The Southern Railway System has ordered 10,000 tons of 130-pound rails from the Alabama mill.

"Meanwhile the carriers generally are undertaking car-repair programs as the first step in the rehabilitation of their rolling stock and are likewise beginning to estimate their requirements in new cars. In addition to the 10,000 cars which the Pennsylvania is now figuring, it is estimated that 50,000 freight cars, requiring from 750,000 to 1,000,000 tons of iron and steel materials, will soon come before the trade for tenders, a substantial part of them shortly after the turn of the year."

Cotton Irregular In Quiet Market

By the Associated Press.

New York, Nov. 27.—Cotton moved irregularly in a quiet preholiday market today. Early declines were followed by rallies on trade buying and covering. December, after selling off to 11.77, closed at 11.86 with the general market steady, particularly on the near months, with prices net 6 points higher to 2 lower.

Shoe Sales Climbing To All-Time Record

New York, Nov. 27.—Although shoe output in December will probably be decreased sharply from the unusually high October figure of around 36,000,000 pairs, it is expected that output for the month will continue to compare favorably with last year. For the full year, 1935, production will probably increase to 370,000,000 pairs, which would compare with 357,000,000 pairs in 1934, and the previous record of 361,000,000 pairs attained in 1929, according to the Standard Statistics Co.

October production of 36,000,000 pairs is the highest for the month in any year since 1929, and represents a gain of more than 25 per cent over October, 1934.

Standard Oil 1935 Dividends $170,078,682

Mission Stock Valued at $13,206,000 Also Distributed.

New York, Nov. 27.—Aggregate cash dividend payments by the companies of the Standard Oil group for 1935 are estimated at $170,078,682 compared with $169,092,529 in 1934, according to figures compiled by Carl H. Pforzheimer & Co. In addition to the cash payments this year, the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey on March 15 distributed in the form of a stock dividend 1,339,345 shares of Mission Corporation capital stock which on the date of distribution had a market value of approximately $13,206,000, and which, if added to cash payments would bring the total for 1935 to $183,284,682 or $14,192,153 more than in the preceding year.

Although Imperial Oil, Ltd., and International Petroleum Co., Ltd., together will have distributed approximately $12,000,000 more than last year, this increase was largely offset by the reduced disbursements of Socony-Vacuum and Ohio Oil Co. and the suspension of dividends by the Standard of Kansas and the Standard of Nebraska.

Imperial Oil, Ltd., controlled by the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey will distribute approximately $33,649,840 or $1.25 a share this year, compared with $24,824,868 or 92½ cents a share in 1934, while payments of International Petroleum Co., controlled by Imperial Oil will total $36,310,220 or $2.50 a share, against $33,114,920 or $2.28 a share in 1934.

Railroad Revenues Continue Gains

New York, Nov. 27 (AP).—Net operating income of the first 39 railroads reporting for October continues to register subtantial gains over comparable figures last year. Net operating income totaled $43,134,792 in this month against $26,117,571 last year, a gain of 65 per cent. The October gross was $174,992,328 compared with $149,629,683 a year ago—up 16.9 per cent.

Ten months' net operating income advanced 2.6 per cent over 1934, from $1,405,241,800 to $1,442,035,129. Gross income for this period totaled $216,629,899 this year, a 2.3 per cent gain over last year's $211,807,320.

Premium for Gold Offered by Italy

Rome, Nov. 27 (AP).—The Bank of Italy today offered a premium of almost 25 per cent for gold.

It offered 15.50 lire for a gram of gold instead of the legal rate of 12.63 lire, based on .07919 grams of gold to the lira.

The Market

By Carlton A. Shively
A Special Correspondent

Stocks Turn Upward in Pre-Holiday Trading; Wheat Lower; Francs Firm.

New York, Nov. 27.—Stocks were quiet but managed to edge forward, reaching their best prices in the last hour. Turnover failed to reach the 2,000,000-share mark for the first time in three weeks, and in general the financial district had a holiday air. Foreign news was a shade more reassuring on the French currency side and less so on the Italian war front. The outlook was considered too good on the whole to warrant an assault on stocks, but too uncertain to attempt large-scale speculation on the long side. December wheat closed an eighth of a cent lower at 97¾ cents a bushel.

Railroad shares were the leaders of the recovery, modest though it was. Best gains were made by Delaware & Hudson, Great Northern, Union Pacific and Norfolk & Western, spurred by rising freight traffic. Mail order stocks were able to climb a point or so, but the farm implements were irregular. Rivaling the rails the tractions found high favor, especially the little-known ones. Twin City Rapid preferred continued its sensational rise, jumping 10 points. The common rose 2 points. Philadelphia Rapid Transit common and preferred and the Market Street issues were leaders in the odd-lot section.

Nickel Crosses 40.

Among the favored specialties were Alpha Cement, Agricultural Chemical, Chesapeake Corporation, Holland Furnace, Owens Glass, Hide & Leather and Youngstown Spring. American Bank Note receded a little on announcement of dividend resumption. Ingersoll Rand rose 2 points on payment of an extra. Nickel crossed 40 for the first time in five years. Wesson Oil opened 3 points lower on disappointment over the failure of directors to live up to street tipsters. Congress Cigar was another weak spot. Chrysler was a strong motor, but others were quiet. Bethlehem was the leader of the steels.

Foreign exchange attention again was centered on francs. The commercial banks during the past few days in which francs have sold far below the gold shipping point are reported to have absorbed all the francs they could use for gold shipments, the amount of gold shipped being limited only by the availability of cargo space on transatlantic ships. With the franc supply exceeding the capacity of the market to absorb it, reports have increased that the Bank of France has made arrangements to earmark for the American as well as for the British exchange funds in exchange for dollars to sell to support francs.

Banks Allow Exchange Margin.

The most interesting feature of these stories is that they recite that guaranties have been given covering the free export of earmarked metal in the event of an embargo. Commercial banks could earmark gold in France and add to their capacity to support franc exchange if they had guaranties reducing risk. Because of real or fancied risk most of the commercial banks allow a little more margin in their exchange deals to cover it, which is tantamount to reducing the franc's gold point.

Today the franc sold at 6.58¼, after holding steady for two days around 6.58½. The gold point is around 6.59. The market is waiting eagerly to see what happens when the French Chamber reassembles tomorrow, with a rising tide of expectation that the gold standard will weather another storm.

Treasury Financing.

With an announcement by the Treasury as to its December financing scheduled for Monday, Government bond traders and investment officers of banks have been doing some lively guessing. Most of the guesses are that the Treasury will offer three to five-year notes for the $418,000,000 December 15 maturity, while offerings for cash more 2¾ per cent bonds at par. For a while there was talk that the bonds would be offered at a slight premium, but this is subsiding. Guesses on the amount of new money to be asked range from $500,000,000 to $750,000,000, with some setting the figure a little higher. Existing 2¾s are selling at a premium which would make a new issue at par attractive. After the December 15 maturity the Treasury will have nothing but Treasury bills to take care of until April 15, when more notes fall due.

Sinking Funds.

The Interstate Commerce Commission's policy of requiring sinking funds for railroad bonds was reflected again today in an order authorizing an issue of the Georgia Northern Railway. Last week in the Virginian Railway case the commission clung to this policy, but did not refute the arguments advanced by the carrier to show that a sinking fund would be impossible. Since the Virginian bonds are not to be sold immediately, the showdown between the I. C. C. and the railroad is deferred. There are times when theory must yield to facts.

Free Market.

The free and open market, so much championed by the stock exchange, appears to have changed little in the past several weeks in Colorado Fuel preferred. Yesterday, on the ticker, ads were carried asking for stock, for cash, after 2:15. That meant, of course, that luckless shorts, unable to borrow the stock, were being sent down the river, the needed stock being bought "under the rule." When is a corner?

Steel.

In 1934 the steel industry was under the benign influence of NRA, the keystone, heart and kidneys of the New Deal. In the week of June 3, 1934, the steel industry's operating rate was 57.4 per cent of capacity, and by the last week of November it had fallen to 28.1 per cent of capacity. In June of this year, when the Supreme Court threw NRA out of the window, the steel trade was running at a rate of 39.5 per cent of capacity, and this week the rate is estimated at 55.4 per cent of capacity. That contrast perhaps is pricking the skin of the New Dealers, who would like to change things by putting the industry under a fresh code.

Washington Gas Revenues Show Gain in October

The monthly report of the Washington Gas Light Co., filed with the Public Utilities Commission yesterday, shows net operating revenue for the month of October, 1935, of $114,210, compared with $105,842 for October of last year, an increase of $8,368.

Operating revenue for October, 1935, $512,914, compares with $478,564 for October a year ago, an increase of $34,350. Operating expenses, including taxes and uncollectible bills, increased $25,982, this year's figure being $398,704, against $372,722 in October, 1934.

Nonoperating revenues for October this year increased $12,849 from last year's figure of $9,960 to $22,809, resulting in a gross corporate income of $137,019, which compares with $115,802 for October, 1934, or an increase of $21,217.

Interest deductions of $73,922 for October, 1935, were $1,234 more than last year's figure of $72,688, resulting in a net gain of $63,097 this year, compared with $43,114 last year.

Georgetown Gas Light Co.

The monthly report of the Georgetown Gas Light Co. also filed with the Public Utilities Commission yesterday, shows a net gain of $4,327 for the month of October, 1935, as compared with a gain of $2,123 for October of last year.

Operating revenues this October were $116,299, as against $109,205 for October, 1934, an increase of $7,094. Operating expenses, including taxes and uncollectible bills, increased $4,889, this year's figure being $107,532, against $102,643 for October, 1934.

Non-operating revenue was $1 less this year than last year, resulting in a gross corporate income of $8,768, compared with an income of $6,564 for October, 1934. Interest deductions for this year were $4,441, the same as October of last year.

District Telephones Up 12,783 in Year.

Washington was served by 199,215 telephones on October 31. This was a net increase of 12,783 telephones over the number in service at the end of October, 1934. Telephone calls in Washington also increased in October, there having been 22,295,000 calls made during the month, as compared with 20,638,000 calls during October, 1934.

Operating revenues of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. were $867,958 for October, 1935, which compares with $845,204 for the same month last year, according to the report of operations just filed with the Public Utilities Commission of the District of Columbia.

Operating expenses, including interest amounted to $690,306. Net operating revenues were $117,652. Taxes for October amounted to $62,172. The cost of telephone plant in service on October 31, 1935, was $37,240,490, according to John A. Remon, general manager of the company.

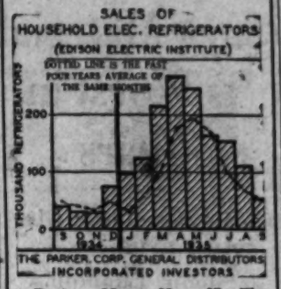
Refrigerator Sales 15% Over Last Year



Boston, Mass., Nov. 27.—The number of electric refrigerators sold in 1934 was 42 per cent ahead of 1933. In the first nine months of this year sales gained 15 per cent over the corresponding 1934 months. The average price of the electric refrigerator sold in 1931 was $245. Today it is about half that amount.

Wheat Declines On Tax Doubts

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Nov. 27.—Disconcerting effects of doubts about processing tax legality did a good deal to make wheat prices today average lower. Reports from Minneapolis, where at one stage December wheat showed a fall of 2 cents per bushel, said possibility that the Federal wheat processing tax would be nullified soon by a decision from the United States Supreme Court had brought about sharp curtailment of flour trade.

Rallying at the last on pre-holiday evening up, wheat closed nervous, unchanged to ⅜ lower than yesterday's finish; December, 97⅝-97¾; corn, ½-½ down; December, 59⅛-59¼; oats unchanged to ⅛ off, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 10 cents.

New Company Will Replace Insull System

Court Approves Plan to Reorganize Middle West Utilities.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Nov. 27.—A reorganizing plan for the Middle West Utilities Co., giant holding company of the utilities system formerly ruled by Samuel Insull, was approved by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson today.

The company went into receivership on April 15, 1932, and has been in the court's hands ever since. Some 600,000 investors were financially interested. At its peak, Middle West controlled some 350 gas, light, power and ice companies operating in 37 States and Canada. It was called the largest utilities system under one man's control.

The plan approved under section 77-B of the amended bankruptcy act calls for creation of a new concern, to be called the "Middle West Corporation." Stockholders will be given 9.4 per cent interest in the new company, the rest going to noteholders and secured creditors, chiefly New York and Chicago banks, which made huge loans to Insull before his empire crashed in 1932.

Judge Wilkerson, named two of the new company's nine directors, Daniel C. Green, who had served as trustee, and Walter A. Shaw, who has been acting as the court's adviser. He also named Attorney George I. Haight as a special member of the company's "personnel committee" to have supervision of the selection of officers.

All Groups Represented.

For the other trustees the secured stockholders named Hugh H. McGee, of the Bankers Trust Co., of New York, and three Chicagoans, J. O. Adams, Irvin L. Porter and Willoughby G. Walling. The noteholders selected Charles S. Dewey and Attorney Robert N. Golding, of Chicago, and the preferred stockholders, Adolphe Boissevain, Chicago.

The distribution of the stock will be: Secured bank creditors, 1,710,000 shares; unsecured creditors, 1,290,000 shares; preferred stockholders, 151,928 shares (estimated); common stockholders, 158,829 shares (estimated).

The secured creditors will receive: Bankers Trust Co. of New York, 568,022 shares; Continental Illinois National Bank & Trust Co., 475,046 shares; First National Bank of Chicago, 472,057 shares; Central Republic Trust Co. of Chicago, 173,995 shares, and General Electric Co. of New York City, 20,880 shares.

Dividend Raised; Extras Are Voted

New York, Nov. 27 (AP).—Directors of Ingersoll-Rand Co. today declared an extra dividend of $3 a share on the common stock, payable December 28 to stock of record December 9. A year ago an extra of $2 was paid. The company is a manufacturer of electrical drilling equipment and other types of machinery.

Greene Cananea Copper Co., owned by Anaconda, today declared a special dividend of $1 and a quarterly dividend of 75 cents on the common stock, payable December 16 to stock of record December 9. The quarterly payment places the stock on a $3 annual basis compared with $2 paid previously.

Directors of American Bank Note Co. resumed dividend payments on the common stock with the declaration of 25 cents a share, payable January 2 to stock of record December 11. This is the first payment since January 2, 1932, when 50 cents was ordered.

Penn. R. R. Reports Substantial Gains

Philadelphia, Nov. 27.—The Pennsylvania Railroad reports October net railway operating income of $57,570,625, which compares with $53,730,439 in October last year. Gross revenues for ten months were $304,169,705, an increase of $13,948,957 over the corresponding period of 1934.

Outstanding is the gain in freight revenue, which increased $4,479,260 over October, 1934, to $26,159,475 last month and to $225,332,946 for ten months, an increase of $12,597,345.

Italian Oil Monopoly Seeks Market Control

Rome, Nov. 27 (AP).—Italy's semi-official oil monopoly was increased in size today to facilitate a full control of the market.

A decree authorized an increase in its capital from 200,000,000 to 300,000,000 lire (a lira is worth approximately eight cents), and empowered government agencies to furnish the money.

N. C. State 8-5 Choice Over Cardinals

C. U. Stars End Careers in Today's Contest at Stadium.

tory. Carroll has been the Cards' chief threat all season and is at his best when the going is toughest. Thus, he should be ready for a dramatic finale.

State Has Backfield Stars.

But State has a squadron of backs to match Carroll's speed, Adamaitis' passing, and if need be the spectacular punting of "Spec" Foley. "Cowboy" Robinson, Eddie Berlinski, a promising sophomore, and Jumping Joe Ryneska, one of the South's ruggedest fullbacks, are the lads the Cards must stop. Duke just barely managed to hold them last week, repulsing one drive on its 3-yard line, and Catholic is certain to have its hands full.

State boasts a record of six victories in nine games, while the only blemish on its host's record is a 9-to-6 upset at the hands of DePaul. Victory today will mean the most successful season in years for either team and on paper it shapes up as 60 minutes of real football.

Md. A. C. Plays Return Contest With Clancys

Maryland Athletic Club's undefeated football team will travel to Portsmouth, Va., Sunday for a return engagement with the Clancys of Norfolk. Maryland defeated the Virginians, 3-0, on a field goal by Willis Benner late in their first game, which was played at Norfolk. This defeat was the only one suffered by the Clancys this season.

Unless Manager Ralph Boyer succeeds in arranging a game for December 8, Maryland will close its season a week from Sunday at Richmond, where it is scheduled to play the Arrows. The District team also is the only club to win over the Arrows this year.

Want Sunday Battle.

The Silver Spring Merchants are seeking an opponent for Sunday on the Silver Spring field. Still battered from the bruising tie with the Seaman Gunners last week, its fourth tie of the year, the Merchants are looking for a battle with any strong opponent, particularly the Takoma F. D. Call Robert Linkins at Silver Spring 173-M between 5:30 and 6:30 p. m.

Seek Football Foe.

The Takoma Fire Department eleven, unbeaten and unscored on thus far this season, is seeking a game in Maryland or Virginia for Sunday. Unlimited class or 150-pound teams interested are asked to telephone Manager Jimmy Myers at Atlantic 4821.

On the Air Today

SPECIAL Thanksgiving Day features will be generously sprinkled on your dials throughout today—and, as usual, many of the weekly commercial programs are injecting an atmosphere of the holiday in their productions.

The only football game to materialize is the New York University-Fordham game from WJSV and WMAL. The Dartmouth-Columbia game can be heard by going to WOL's studios, where arrangements are being made to accommodate grid fans in the reception room. The game will come down by Intercity net wires from New York.

Among the Thanksgiving Day features are the "Cathedral of the Underworld" with Alexander Gray, stage star, direct from the heart of New York's Chinatown, WOL, 12:30 p. m. . . . Gothic Choristers, WMAL, at 11:30 a. m., including Beethoven's "Hallelujah Chorus" . . . "National Farm and Home Hour," WMAL, at 12:30 p. m., in gala holiday hour with Morin Sisters, Homesteaders Orchestra, Walter Blaufuss, Sylva Clark and others.

Also: Kate Smith and large cast in special playlet, WJSV, at 7:30 . . . Story of a New England dinner in a roaring Western mining camp, in "Death Valley Days," WMAL, at 9 . . . Calvary Baptist Choir, in debut, WJSV, at 10:30 a. m.

John Shaffer, 1651 Lamont street northwest, writes to urge I turn my short-wave ear to HVJ, Vatican City, which is heard well under fair weather conditions between 10 and 10:55 a. m.—and with English programs.

Being something of a neophyte at short-wave, I cannot help but applaud Mr. Shaffer for his calling my attention to a program in English. In the last three days I have fully made up my mind either to learn Spanish—or give it all up! The life-savers thus far have been DJC and EAQ, with their English announcements.

Young America will meet in The Post's Spelling Bee tonight on WMAL, at 8. Teams of young fellows from the Washington Boys' Club, Third and C streets northwest, and from No. 5 Precinct Boys' Club, Seventeenth and Rhode Island avenue northeast, will go into an old-fashioned spelldown. Judge Charlie Stofberg will be schoolmaster for the occasion. "Pops" McCormick is absent this week—having a bite of Thanksgiving turkey with all the other McCormicks down Virginia way. Next week, teams from the Department of Agriculture and Patent Office meet.

In the meantime, if you can scare up a team from one of the Washington colleges or universities—notify The Post's radio editor. A challenge has been issued by Frank Ford Burnett in behalf of George Washington University—to all institutions of higher learning. Who'll accept?

80,000 to Witness Rams and Purple

most experts. Coached by Jimmy Crowley, one of Notre Dame's famous "four horsemen," the Rams have come through a big league schedule creditably.

They took a shellacking early in the season from Purdue, but tied Pittsburgh and St. Mary's. Meanwhile, N. Y. U. romped through a relatively light schedule, but registered several notable victories with a spectacular passing attack developed by Dr. Marvin A. Stevens, who came from Yale to coach the Violets. The 25-6 decision over Carnegie, which beat Purdue, and the 48-0 triumphs over Rutgers, which stood off Princeton's powerhouse for two periods, testify N. Y. U. is no longer one of the orphans of football de-emphasis.

Cornell-Penn. Also.

Ordinarily, in the East, the Cornell-Pennsylvania game is the holiday classic, but both have had disappointing seasons and not more than 40,000 likely will see their annual match at Franklin Field, Philadelphia. Penn, despite four setbacks, has entirely too much power for a Cornell team that has lost five of its six games and tied the other, with Columbia. Penn walloped Columbit 34 to 0 and may run up as big a score against the Ithacans.

Pittsburgh looks to have a decisive edge over Carpegie in their annual tilt for Smoky City honors. Colgate figures to enjoy a touchdown romp at Brown's expense. Temple is the choice over Bucknell. Two interesting intersectional games are booked at the Nation's Capital, with George Washington favored over North Dakota and Catholic University a slight favorite to beat North Carolina State. Syracuse should nose out Maryland at Baltimore.

Unless Louisiana State is upset by Tulane Saturday, the Alabama-Vanderbilt game tomorrow will serve the purpose only of deciding the runner-up for Southeastern Conference honors. Alabama is the choice, by several touchdowns. Otherwise in the South, it looks like Kentucky over Tennessee, North Carolina over Virginia, Virginia Poly over V. M. I., and Loyola of New Orleans over West Virginia.

Far Western Games.

The Denver-Colorado and Utah-Utah State games should settle at least half of the Rocky Mountain argument. Denver and Utah State have won five out of six conference games, the others four out of five. Colorado may rebound from its surprising defeat by Wyoming last week but Denver is the choice. Utah is favored over its State rival.

Oklahoma, under Biff Jones, figures to wind up a good season by beating Oklahoma A. and M. Arkansas is the choice over Tulsa, Texas over Texas A. and M., Detroit over Texas Tech.

Y. M. C. A. Court League To Start Play Saturday

The Y. M. C. A. Sunday School Basketball League, the oldest cage organization in Washington, will swing into another season next Saturday in the men's gymnasium. Mount Vernon plays First Baptist at 7:30 p. m., Calvary M. E. takes on Latter Day Saints an hour later, and West Washington Baptist clashes with Calvary Baptist in the 9:30 p. m. nightcap.

Saints Play Yard.

Winding up their football season, the St. Cyprians will clash with the strong Navy Yard team today at 2 p. m. at Gonzaga Stadium.

American Beermen Drill.

In preparation for their Sunday game with the Palace Preps, the American Beermen will hold an important practice drill this morning at 10 o'clock on the Rosedale field. All players are requested to report.

Culbertson On Bridge

Brutal Partners.

Every bridge player can name, off-hand, at least one person of his acquaintance who is downright brutal in his treatment of partners. To my regret, I know several. One of them, playing with a close friend in a recent game, and pursuing his usual ragging tactics, received such a retort courteous, accompanied by such laughter at his expense, that he may be permanently cured of this horrible trait.

His partner had, as usual, mangled an important hand. Long and bitter was the "bawling-out" that followed. His partner listened quietly, without a word, without even change of expression. When the "expert" paused for breath, the dub quickly reached into a back pocket, pulled out a small toy revolver, laid it on the table directly before his partner, and then sat back in his chair with outstretched arms.

"Shoot me!" he said simply.

"Bad Luck."

If it is true that "cards never forgive," the declarer in today's hand had better take a long vacation from bridge.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
4 ♠ [final bid]

West led the king of clubs and then shifted to a diamond, North's king winning the trick. Now a spade was led and a first round finesse taken! The singleton queen gobbled up the trick, and a low heart was led by West. Nothing if not consistent, declarer took another premature finesse, and lost to another blank queen! The ace of Clubs accounted for the setting trick.

And, on top of it all, declarer, instead of offering thanks for a wonderfully fortunate adverse lay of cards, cursed his "luck" and wailed that finesses never worked for him!

Today's Question.

Question: I hold spades queen 8 6 4 and dummy holds spades ace jack 7 2. How should I play the suit?

Answer: Lead low from your hand and finesse the jack. If that holds, lay down the ace. Your only chance to make all four tricks is to catch the singly guarded king under the ace.

Curiosity Brings Girl Cue Crown

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Nov. 27.—Curiosity killed the cat, but it made a national pocket billiard champion out of pretty 22-year-old Ruth Harvey, of Santa Monica, Calif.

While strolling past a billiard room 2½ years ago, Miss Harvey's eyes flashed on a billboard advertising free lessons in playing pocket billiards.

"I was curious to see what it was all about so I went in," Miss Harvey said. "The teacher was William King, husband of Bertha King, who held the national woman's championship for about 25 years and retired undefeated. The game looked so pretty that I decided to see what I could do at it. I thought it must be interesting because so many men played it."

Dance Scheduled Dec. 13 By Iowa State Society

Plans for a ball of the Iowa State Society December 13 in the Willard Hotel were announced yesterday. New members were urged to attend and meet other Washington residents from their native State.

P. R. Baldridge, president, announced the dance would be the first of a series of social functions to be sponsored by the society this winter.

German Diplomat Dies.

Peiping, Nov. 27 (AP).—Friedrich Rosen, 79, former foreign minister of Germany, died today.

When the former Kaiser Wilhelm fled to the Netherlands at the close of the World War, it was Dr. Rosen, then Germany's minister at The Hague, who greeted him.

Strange As It Seems —By John Hix

HOLIDAYS and times of festival and celebration are found throughout the world—all peoples and countries find something to observe in this manner. With one holiday taken from them, they turn to another. Shrewdly the Christian church substituted church holidays for pagan holidays in Europe during the rise of Christianity, and even now Easter, Christmas and other strictly Christian holidays can be shown to have their origin in celebrations that are older than Christianity itself.

Thanksgiving Day came to be America's first big holiday in much this same manner. Christmas as a holiday was looked upon with disfavor by the stern Puritan forefathers who searched the Bible in vain for any definite instruction on the point. Lacking this, they resented the celebration and in the Pilgrim colony actually prohibited it. The first Christmas in America was a work day.

They deemed a festival of thanksgiving proper, however, and proclaimed such a holiday. The early settlers, glad to have at least one important holiday on the calendar, gave it a full measure of popular support. Thanksgiving Day owes much of its early popularity to the fact that Christmas was an outlawed holiday among the Pilgrims.

Strange as it seems, in Mongolia thread is made by pounding animal sinews. The women take seasoned hamstrings of cattle and pound them until the fibers separate. From these fibers thread is made.

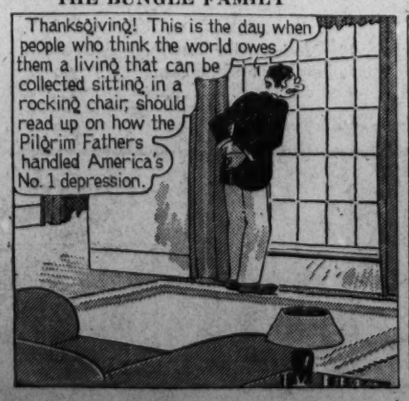
THE BUNGLE FAMILY — Thanks — By Harry J. Tuthill



Thanksgiving! This is the day when people who think the world owes them a living that can be collected sitting in a rocking chair, should read up on how the Pilgrim Fathers handled America's No. 1 depression.

They didn't just write a threatening letter to Congress about it.
No sir. They grabbed the biggest shovel they could find and started tearing up sod in some spot marked keep off the grass by the Indians.
Reg. U.S. Pat. Off. 11-28

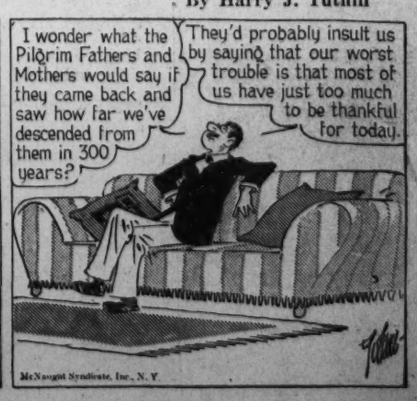
They didn't sit up all night trying to figure out how to get a new car before the old one was paid for.



I wonder what the Pilgrim Fathers and Mothers would say if they came back and saw how far we've descended from them in 300 years?
They'd probably insult us by saying that our worst trouble is that most of us have just too much to be thankful for today.

Big Attendance Is Expected at Court Here on Saturday.

One of the largest courts of award ever held in the Scout council is scheduled Saturday night at Powell Junior High School. The feature will be the awarding of Eagle badges to 17 Scouts who have attained this rank. A number of life and star awards will be made, also together with several miscellaneous badges for accomplishments. Since the auditorium was so crowded at the last court many of the scoutmasters are requesting reservations. Those who will apply for the Eagle award are:

Sidney K. Bishopp and Ray Martyn, Troop 5; Kenneth A. Wright, Troop 8; William Webb Zeller, Troop 12; Irl Brent and Richard Wright, Troop 54; Dan Miller, Troop 66; William Poos, Troop 72; Edward W. Talley, Troop 81; Granville Brumbaugh, Troop 87; William J. Weber, jr., Charles Dove, Henry E. Jones, Victor J. Orsinger, Walter Lawson and John Kester, Troop 82, and William Dagger, Troop 104.

Guide training, which was given in preparation for the national jamboree has been continued with opportunities for qualifying. November 30 is the last date on which quizzes may be taken.

Scouts Make Record.

Troop 99, under Dr. Heath as Scoutmaster and Mr. Ray as assistant, has made outstanding record in guide training during the past month, having qualified practically the entire troop. George Gee had the outstanding record in this field with a mark of 97.

Troop 43, at the National Memorial Baptist Church, is making a record for itself in providing leadership for other troops. During the scoutmastership of L. B. Grening, Assistant Scoutmaster William S. Anderson became scoutmaster of Troop 54, and Assistant Scoutmaster Percy C. Smith took over the reins of Troop 59. At a ceremony in Vienna, Va., Wednesday evening, Paul Stenger, formerly assistant scoutmaster of Troop 43, was inducted into the scoutmastership of the Vienna Troop, No. 152.

President Richard Miller, of the C. M. O., announces the completion of the program for the clan's annual election on Saturday. In addition to the election of officers and third-degree members, motion pictures of the C. M. O. and Camp Roosevelt will be shown, and further entertainment, consisting of music, Indian lore and magic, will complete the program.

Aid Seal Distribution.

Scouts of Washington are assisting the Tuberculosis Association by distributing Christmas seal posters. The Scouts will mobilize at their headquarters, 1727 K street northwest, between 9 a. m. and noon Saturday to receive posters for distribution.

The Skillet, Troop 8's paper, marks its tenth anniversary this month.

Troop 14 also is developing a splendid paper, called the Totem Topics. This month's issue shows, among other things, that the troop made an outstanding record for outdoor activities between July 1 and November 1, when 25 Scouts spent a total of 491 Scout days and nights in the open.

The Prince Georges County Court of Award will be held tomorrow at 8 p. m. in the old gymnasium of the Maryland University.

George Wright to Speak On Yellowstone Wild Life

"The Wilderness That Did Not Vanish," an illustrated lecture on wild life of Yellowstone National Park, will be presented by George M. Wright at 8 o'clock next Thursday night in the Government Auditorium, Thirteenth street and Constitution avenue northwest. Wright is chief of the wild life division, National Park Service.

Known as the discoverer of the nest of the surf bird in Mount McKinley National Park in 1926, an event which won Nation-wide acclaim by ornithologists, Wright is co-author of the fauna series on wild life published by the Federal Government. With Joseph Dixon, he organized the wild life division of the park service.

Jewish Congregations To Hold Joint Service

Jewish congregations throughout Washington will join in a mass Thanksgiving service at 11 a. m. today, in Ahev Sholom Synagogue, Fifth and I streets northwest.

Rabbis of the several synagogues, including Z. Green, J. T. Loeb, A. Volkman, S. H. Metz, M. Levinsan, J. Breslau, A. Simon, Norman Gertsenfeld, Cantor L. Novick and M. Goldberg will take part in the program.

An Explanation: After several months of busy selling, here's what we find . . . broken lots, 1, 2 and 3 suits of a kind, certain patterns, sizes or models that did not find ready favor with our customers (you see, we, too, make mistakes and sometimes buy some styles that do not sell as readily as others) . . . in truth, some of the suits are light colors left from last Spring. BUT, and this is important, a fair portion of them are Fall suits in dark patterns just waiting to be carried off by the alert shopper for $20. All in all, we say this . . . every suit is a spectacular buy . . . you know these famous names and you know what their regular prices are. Practically every size is represented in one group or another.

The range of sizes, though incomplete, is amazingly wide! Even if you wear the following unusual sizes you'll find a suit in the group to fit you . . . 34 short or 48 short . . . 35 long or 46 long . . . 48 regular or 52 long stout . . . Of course, there are plenty of suits for men who wear regular sizes.
